REGISTRY OPENS

World War II produced many heroes, both overseas and at home. For the first time there is a registry which recognizes those men and women who were unable to fight overseas, but who helped win the war through their efforts at home.

In addition to those who served in the military, the registry encourages those who contributed to the war effort on the home front to place their names on record. 16 million Americans served in uniform during the Second World War, but the American Battle Monuments Commission (ABMC) encourages all members of the World War II generation to enroll in the registry, accessible on the memorial web site at www.wwiimemorial.com.

Any American who served in the armed forces or contributed to the war effort on the home front, whether in factories, shipyards, farms or neighborhoods, is eligible.

There is no charge to place a name in the registry. Individuals can be enrolled through the web site or by calling the memorial's toll-free number at 1-800-639-4992.

The registry contains more than 1.3 million records, most submitted by the public. The ABMC has been compiling names for several years, but has only scratched the surface of the database potential, which also includes lists from the National Archives and Records Administration of those killed in service during the war, and names of those buried in ABMC WWII overseas cemeteries or listed on its Tablets of the Missing.

Of 1,002 U.S. adults responding to a survey last May, 22 percent believed that only 100,000 served in uniform during the war, 34 percent thought one million served and 14 percent thought 8 million served. Just 8 percent correctly stated 16 million and 22 percent admitted they just didn't know.

The WWII Memorial will be dedicated on the National Mall on May 29, 2004. The registry will be accessible from the Memorial when it opens to the public.

The Indiana Veterans' Service Officers' Association encourages any veteran of World War II or any person who contributed to the war effort on the homefront to place their name in the registry. Huntington County veterans and other members of the public are encouraged to contact their county Veterans' Service Officer, Tom Applegate, at 358-4863.

IT TAKES KNOW-HOW TO MAKE NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS, WILL POWER TO KEEP THEM

New Year's Day brings the urge to change things. Your life, your health, or how you work, are popular choices. Before you get carried away, however, decide whether you're making a wish list or real resolutions.

When it comes to things that are hard to do, make only one or two resolutions. In reality, you couldn't quit smoking, lose weight, stop cussing, and get all your work done every day, not all at the same time.

A study by psychologists at the University of Washington shows that most people keep the promise they put at the top of their list, at least for a month or two. People who thought seriously about their resolutions were more successful than those who come up with them at the last minute.

The researchers found that people are more willing to do something good than to give up something that's wrong. They found that 84 percent started to exercise, the most common resolution to do right. Only 7 percent wanted to reduce the use of tobacco or alcohol. Word your number one resolution carefully. Instead of saying you are going to relax more, say you are going to explore different ways of relaxing. You are likely to fulfill the resolution by experimenting with techniques.

Make a written plan. For relaxing, you might plan to surf the Internet for different techniques. Make a list of all you find and try a new one each month.

Columnist Ann Landers came up with a big list of "good" resolutions, a few of which you might like to try, such as:

- * Lighten up. Ask yourself, "Will it matter a week from today? Or next year?"
- * Be a friend, we need each other. . Don't discourage a beginner.
- * Walk tall and smile more.
- * Don't be afraid to say, "I love you."
- * Don't give up your principles.

THANK YOU

Thank you to SAM, John, Lilly, Suzette, Daddy and all the girls at the Post Office for your recent help.

Nicki

PLANS EXPANSION

MarkleBank, an independently-owned community bank headquartered in Markle, Indiana, will open its sixth full-service community banking center, expanding into Southwest Allen County with a facility on West Jefferson Boulevard, during the summer of 2004.

MarBanc Financial Corporation, parent company of the $200 Million privatelyheld MarkleBank, has purchased land within the West Jefferson Market Square retail development, just west of the Covington Plaza area on the south side of Jefferson Boulevard and plans to break ground and start construction in April 2004.

"We believe there is great potential for community banking in Southwest Allen County and the West Jefferson neighborhood," said MarkleBank President & CEO

Travis Holdman. "We think that values such as service, integrity, teamwork, community, innovation and independence are still very desirable when it comes to a banking relationship and that's exactly what we will bring to Southwest Allen County."

In January, the bank will open a Loan Production Office in the vicinity of Covington Plaza, to begin business development in the area. Holdman has also announced that Michael Linder has joined the bank as Vice President and Relationship Banker to serve at the West Jefferson facility. Linder has previously worked for Bank One, as a Vice President and Commercial Relationship Manager, and for Grabill Bank in the Fort Wayne area.

In addition to its main office in Markle, MarkleBank operates two full-service banking centers in Bluffton, one in Warren and one in Huntington. MarkleBank also operates Markle Insurance Services, a full-service insurance agency and partners with MarkleFinancial and Investment Centers of America, to offer brokerage and investment services.

MarkleBank, Markle Insurance Services and MarkleFinancial can be reached by calling MarkleBank's Customer Service Center toll-free at (888) 758-3111.

VAN BUREN COUNCIL

The Van Buren Town Council met on Wednesday evening, Dec. 17, in the Council Room at Town Hall. President Tony Manry conducted the meeting which opened at 7 p.m. with the Pledge to the American Flag.

Minutes of the previous meeting were approved as submitted.

A representative of the Fire Department asked about plans for the Old Town Hall. He was informed the building probably will not be updated until next year.

Weaver popcorn had asked about using the conference room for classes. There will be a decision later.

Superintendent Jim Webb was still concerned with many problems at the new water plant.

There was also concern because Weavers had placed a fence over a water main.

There was a discussion about moving phones around.

Officer Pat Collins reported he has safety guard locks available free for Van Buren residents owning guns.

Senator David Ford is scheduled to be at Town Hall Jan. 17 and Feb. 14 at 1:30 p.m.

The next Council meeting will be Jan. 7, 2004.

USPS FRAUD TIPS

Though the holidays bring out the best in people, they sometimes bring out the worst. All year long, and especially during the holidays, the United States Postal Service reminds customers to be on the lookout for those who prey on unsuspecting and trusting folks.

Every year, illegal telemarketing and mail fraud schemes rob consumers, often elderly citizens, of their hard-earned life-savings.

If someone contacts you or a loved one with an unsolicited offer:

- * Don't give your financial information to callers you don't know.
- * Don't be pressured into making an immediate decision.
- * Get all information in writing before you agree to a purchase.

Additionally, if you are contacted by a person or persons presenting themselves as postal employees, they should be in a postal uniform and/or be able to present a Postal ID with their photograph on it. If you are uncomfortable for any reason, do not open your door. Ask them to leave the item on your porch for later retrieval. You could also call your local post office and speak to a supervisor to confirm the individual's identity.

Always remember, If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is. An unbelievable sounding deal probably is not true. Protect yourself from becoming the victim of such fraud by remembering the following tip-offs:

* High-pressure sales tactics. A swindler often refuses to take no for an answer; he has a sensible-sounding answer for your every hesitation, inquiry, or objection.

* Insistence on an immediate decision. Swindlers often say you must make a decision "right now," and they usually give a reason, like, "The offer will expire soon."

* You are one of just a few people eligible for the offer. Don't believe it. Swindlers often send out hundreds of thousands—and sometimes millions—of solicitations to consumers across the nation.

* Your credit card number is requested for verification. Do not provide your credit card number if you are not making a purchase, even if asked for it for "identification" or "verification" purposes, or to prove "eligibility" for the offer. If you give your card number, the swindler may make unauthorized charges to your account, even if you decide not to buy anything.

* You are urged to provide money quickly. A crook may try to impress upon you the urgency of making an immediate decision by offering to send a delivery service to your home or office to pick up your check. This may be to get your money before you have a chance to think carefully about the offer and change your mind, or to avoid the possibility of mail fraud charges in the future.

* You are given no detailed written information. If you must send money or provide a credit card number before the telemarketer gives you the details in writing, be skeptical. Do not accept excuses such as, "It's such a new offer we don't have any written materials yet," or "You'll get written information after you pay."

* You are asked to trust the telemarketer. A swindler, unable to get you to take the bait with all of his other gimmicks, may ask you to "trust" him. Be careful about trusting a stranger you talk to on the phone.

* You are told you have won a prize, but you must pay for something before you can receive it. This payment can either be a requirement to purchase a minimum order of cleaning supplies or vitamins, or it can be a shipping/handling charge or a processing fee. Do not deal with a promoter who uses this tactic.

* If you have been bilked in a telemarketing scheme in which the U.S. Mail was used or by someone presenting themselves as a postal employee, inform your local postmaster or nearest Postal Inspector at 317/328-2500.

RELIVE YOUR YOUTH, PLAY CLASSIC BOARD GAMES

(NUI) - Remember the days when you were a kid? You'd sit down to a nice board game with friends, and the next thing you knew a blood-thirsty grudge match would ensue?

Games brought out the ruthless competitor in all of us, but perhaps no game more so than the dreaded and beloved Battleship.

Trolling the waters of the seven seas, you strategically searched for your enemy's U-boats and mine-sweepers, hoping to score a direct and lethal hit on your nemesis' coveted battleship.

Each ship sunk escalated the game's stakes. Every casualty you suffered drowned your game plan and sent you dog-paddling to answer the volley of attacks.

The shrill cry of victory dripped like honey from your tongue as you cried out sounds of explosions and ships sinking, crews at your mercy as their vessels plummeted to watery graves.

Of course now that we're adults, we couldn't possibly still enjoy the games of our youth with the same exuberance, could we? How long has it been since you called your buddies over for an afternoon of cartoons, sodas and Battleship?

Well, prepare your crew for war, mate, because Battleship is back and so is your desire to send your enemy's fleet to the depths of Davy Jones' locker.

The popular version of this classic board game is now available online free at Subjex.com. It's Battleship just as you remember it, only this time you're playing the computer and not a snot-nosed friend from down the street.

Anyone can play it. Just click on "Battleship" in the Subjex.com toolbox and get ready to wage a little war. You'll be hooked after the first time you sink an enemy vessel and feel the same rage when your computer foe scoffs at the demise of one of your ships with a hearty "Muh ha ha ha ha!"

Of course after the first few times you get "blown out of the water" by your foe, you'll have the "sinking" suspicion that the computer somehow has an unfair advantage, that it's its game and the blasted machine can beat you any time it wants by cheating.

Nevertheless, once you taste the sweet flavor of victory and earn the computer's ire - "You win! The Subjex fleet will remember this!" - you'll be hooked and ready to load up for another game.

So be sure to surf to www.subjex.com and see for yourself just how much fun rekindling your bloodthirsty youth can be.
