DONKEY BASKETBALL CHAMPIONS

Congrats to the winning team from the Warren Area Ministerial Association, 2016 Historic Warren Donkeyball Champions!

Big thanks to all of the participants from Salamonie school, Lancaster school, Warren Fire Department and Citizens Telephone, along with everyone who came to watch!! All monies raised from the event will be used for Historic Warren Inc's community projects fund.

Area Chamber of Commerce.

The fun continues on Saturday, October 29, Checkout all the Details in the Brochures located at the Local Banks, City Building, Bolinger's Propane, Citizens Phone and Warren Service & Supply and other local businesses! Scarecrow Entry forms are due October 21st and Chili entry forms are due October 26. If you have any questions or to find out your booth location, please call Marcy @ 375-2656. If Monstrous Rains, festivities will be at the Knight Civic Center.

FALL BAZAAR

Get Away From the "FALL" and enjoy shopping this Saturday, October 22, 9am-2pm! Solid Rock's Fall Bazaar is excited to have "Infinity & Beyond Designs" of Snowman Wreaths, Scarves, Nativities, Merry Mail and Wine Bottle Décor brought to you by Tina Cowan. Aletta Heath will be featuring her Crochet afghans, baby goods, and dish/face cloths. Multiple handcrafters will be hosting booths to promote and sell their artwork. Scrumptious Noodles and Baked Goods will be for sale during the bazaar. A delicious free-will lunch of chili, vegetable soup, ham sandwiches, chicken salad sandwiches, hot dogs, pies & apple dumplings will be served from 10 to 2pm. Solid Rock is located at 485 Bennett Drive in Warren.

FALL MARKETPLACE

Warren Unique Creative Creations Fall Marketplace is coming soon! The Warren United Church of Christ is holding their Fall Marketplace on Saturday November 5th. The doors open at 9:00 am and the event will run until 2:00 pm. New this year is direct sale vendors and unique handmade items from several crafters. As always our Bake Shop and Deli will be open with all the delicious treats prepared by our church members. In addition, we will have a luncheon that will be available 11:00 am – 1:00 pm that same day. As always, VETERANS EAT FREE! Mark your calendars now to stop at the WUCC Fellowship Hall located at the corner of 2nd & Nancy Streets, on Saturday November 5th!

KBC LUNCHEON

Knight Bergman Civic Center will hold their annual Sunday luncheon on Sunday, October 30, 2016, serving from 11:00 to 1:00.

The profits collected from this meal will go to help fund a new boiler system for the building. The current system has failed. Records show that it was installed in 1969. Warren Service and Supply's bid was chosen for the new boiler. Work on the project has begun, to be ready for cold weather. The new boiler will help with our large heating bills every winter.

We hope you will attend the luncheon to help defray some of the cost of this project.

Our menu will be herb crusted chicken and roast loin with apricot glaze, mashed potatoes, green beans, slaw, applesauce and jello, rolls & butter, with all kinds of pie and drinks. The meats will be prepared by Kim's Katering.

We sincerely thank all of you for your generous support. Hope to see you for lunch.

TRUNK OR TREAT

Mt Etna United Methodist Church is offering FREE family fun for the whole family, including food, games, crafts and of course trunks with treats. This year we will have a "SUPERHERO" theme. All of this is happening Sunday, October 30th from 4:00 – 6:00 p.m. at the church. COME RAIN OR SHINE!!

Don't miss out on the opportunity!!!

PORK CHOPS & BURGERS

Grilled Pork Chops and Pork Burgers will be on sale at the Southern Wells Football Game on Friday 10/21. Purchase from 5:30 until end of 3rd quarter, or maybe longer.

SCARECROW FESTIVAL

Scarecrow Festival is Next Week!

If it is FUN you wish to SEEK...

Then join us on the streets Downtown

You could dress up and wear a Crown

Or you could be what ere you Choose

If you don't show up then you will Lose

Kudos, Kicks & Karats

THE UPTOWN GARDENER by Ruth Herring

Rainy Sunday afternoon, good time to think about all the beauty of fall with leaves turning and enjoying the beauty of it all.

Want to thank all of you for thinking of me while I was regrouping. Did enjoying spending a lot of time on the patio getting some sun and thinking about what to do with some extra space I have where they cut out some half dead evergreens, it will look much better I hope at least next summer.

This time of year at home it was clean off the vegetable gardens and get ready for next spring.

We also cleaned up the yard and hoped to always have enough leaves limbs and what else we could find to put on the trash pile to burn which nearly always meant a late summer cook out of hot dogs and goodies that came from moms kitchen. It was something that was rather special to us kids, but was also inspiration for dad to get some extra chores from us.

Fall is the time when you get out all those recipes that call for pumpkin and also decide just how many should be tossed in trash can. Give you one I recently came across that is pretty good.

Pumpkin Streusel Cake

This is made in 2 parts and takes a bit of time. 1 1/3 cup sugar, 6 eggs, 1/2 cup butter melted, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 cup canned milk (I have used 4 ounces yogurt and it works well), 2 1/4 cup flour, 1 1/2 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon pumpkin spice, 1/4 teaspoon salt.

For the streusel 1 cup chopped pecans, 2/3 cup brown sugar, 1/2 cup granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon pumpkin spice, 2 teaspoon vanilla.

Grease a 10 inch bundt or fluted pan, lightly flour, Beat eggs, add sugar and butter, vanilla and yogurt or milk, stir with spoon to combine. Add flour, baking powder and salt and stir with whisk to just combine do not over stir, just to blend well. Pour 1/3 in the pan, add 1/3 of the streusel which has been combined, add another 1/3 batter and 1/3 streusel then remaining batter and top with streusel. Bake 1 hour at 350, let cool 10 minutes and turn out on serving plate. If desired make a glaze of powdered sugar and milk and drizzle over.

Have great autumn

TRI KAPPA

The Gamma Upsilon Chapter of Tri Kappa met on October 4th, 2016 at the home of Wendy Laymon. This dinner meeting had special guest, Caroline Herman province officer and our associate chapter. The meeting was called to order by Vice President Erin Small at 7:20 p.m. Roll call was taken by answering, "When was the last time you carved a pumpkin, and who was it with ?" Those in attendance were, Wendy Laymon, Erin Small, Megan Mondragon, Debbie Ledbetter, Karen Pinkerton, Rita Bolinger, Amanda Killen, Niki Mansbarger and Caroline Herman. Sue Ellen Jones and Karen Hunnicutt joined us for dinner, but were unable to stay for the meeting.

The minutes were read by secretary Wendy Laymon from the September meeting. They will stand approved as read. The treasurers report was read by Karen Pinkerton. It will stand until audited.

Rita Bolinger discussed the nut fundraiser and reminded us orders are to be turned in by October 17. We will also be selling nuts at the United Church of Christ during the Fall Market Place. This takes place on November 5th between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

We will be participating in the Festival of Trees this year. Ideas were then presented to the group as to how to decorate the tree.

Some ideas were also brought up for a fundraiser during the Salamonie Summer Festival. This will be tabled at a later date.

Province officer Caroline Herman gave a presentation, with the help of members, what our state officers hope to accomplish this year in Tri Kappa.

The meeting was adjourned at 8:13 p.m. Our next meeting will be held on November 1st at the home of Stacia Perry.

STINK BUGS

The Brown Marmorated Stink Bug (BMSB) first arrived in Huntington County over 2 ½ years ago. The bugs are now searching for a winter home by crawling through cracks and crevices into houses.

County residents have been contacting the Huntington County Extension Office about them. The bugs sometimes congregate in large numbers in places such as window sills or on ceilings. Although they do not feed or breed inside homes, their presence and odor when crushed is unwelcome for many people.

The bug in its adult stage has the shape of a shield common to most stink bugs. It grows to 5/8 of an inch long and 3/8 inch wide. The upper body is mottled brown and gray with alternating light and dark bands on the edges of the abdomen. BMSB can be distinguished from other stink bugs by its antennae, which have two light bands on the last two segments.

Note that BMSB was initially found in Indiana in October 2010 at a location in Elkhart County. The bug is a native of Japan, Korea and China and was first reported in the United States in Pennsylvania in 1998.

It lays barrel-shaped, green eggs in clusters. Nymphs are oval with yellow, brown, black and red colors.

BMSB is also becoming more of an agricultural pest, although damage in Indiana is currently not as great as in other eastern U.S. states. Crops such as sweet corn have been affected by the pest. In some instances the bugs will feed right through the corn husks.

As with the Asian lady beetle, homeowners should take steps that include caulking around windows and repairing screens to prevent invasion. If homeowners use insecticides to keep the bug out, Purdue Extension specialists recommend using them on the exterior of homes, not indoors. The best solution is often to drop them into a bucket of soapy water.

See the Purdue Extension publication, "Brown Marmorated Stink Bugs in Homes" (HN-90-W) to learn more about this pest: <https://extension.entm.purdue.edu/publications/HN-90.pdf>

For more information, contact Ed Farris, Agriculture and Natural Resource Educator, Purdue Extension – Huntington County Office, 1340 South Jefferson, Huntington by calling 260-358-4826.

MAMMALS FOR PRESCHOOLERS

Preschool-age children and their adults are invited to Salamonie Preschool's "Mammals" on Nov. 16.

The class will be offered from 10-11:30 a.m. and again from 12:30-2 p.m. at Salamonie Interpretive Center in Lost Bridge West State Recreation Area, Andrews.

Each program is designed to enhance the preschooler's basic education, including learning letters, crafts, social interaction and time outside, always with a nature-related theme.

The program fee is $2 per child. Advance registration is appreciated. Register by calling Upper Wabash Interpretive Services at (260) 468-2127.

For more information, see dnr.IN.gov/uwis or facebook.com/upperwabash, or call (260) 468-2127.

Upper Wabash Interpretive Services (dnr.IN.gov/uwis) is at 3691 S. New Holland Road, Andrews, 46702.

CALLING ALL CROCHETERS/KNITTERS

The American Heart Association is kicking off this year's Little Hats, Big Hearts campaign by collecting knitted or crocheted red baby hats. The hats will be distributed to babies born in hospitals throughout Indiana during February, American Heart Month. Hats will be collected from now through Dec. 31. Volunteers are encouraged to visit www.heart.org/LittleHatsBigHearts for hat patterns and more information about the initiative.

The Little Hats, Big Hearts program raises awareness of heart disease, the No. 1 killer of Americans, and congenital heart defects, the most common type of birth defect in the country. The American Heart Association is looking for hats in both newborn and preemie sizes, made of yarn that is red, cotton or acrylic, medium to heavy weight, and machine washable and dryable. Donations of yarn are also gratefully accepted.

This is the second year of Indiana's Little Hats, Big Hearts program. Last year, the American Heart Association delivered 5,000 baby hats to more than 40 Indiana hospitals.

RX & HEROIN

In this age of a "pill for every ill," the potential for prescription drug abuse and addiction is ever-present. For medical providers, there is a fine line between ensuring access to needed medications and preventing drug misuse/abuse.

Among teens and young adults, next to marijuana, prescription drugs are abused the most. Many overdoses are due to prescription drugs - Prince, Michael Jackson, Heath Ledger, and Marilyn Monroe are examples.

Prescription drug abuse is: taking a medication that was not prescribed to you; purposefully taking the wrong dosage of a medicine that was prescribed to you; or taking a prescribed medicine for something other than its intended purpose.

Teens turn to prescription drugs for several reasons:

* Many teens do not see a great risk in trying prescription pain relievers since they are prescribed by a doctor.

* They believe prescription drugs are safer than street drugs and not addictive.

* Prescription drugs are much more difficult to detect than street drugs.

* Prescription drugs are much easier to obtain than street drugs. 70% of teens get prescription drugs from family or friends.

Prescription drug abuse can lead to heroin use.

Those addicted to prescription medication may run out of pills, or the pills are expensive, so they look for alternatives. Heroin is a readily available, relatively inexpensive, fast-acting opiate. Heroin is a highly addictive narcotic processed from morphine, a naturally occurring substance extracted from the Asian poppy plant. It is usually a white or brown powder or a black sticky substance. The differences in color are due to impurities left from the manufacturing process or the presence of additives. It is sometimes cut with other substances such as sugar, powdered milk, cornstarch, or even poisons like strychnine.

Users feel the effect of heroin within seconds of taking it. Heroin is converted into morphine when it enters the brain, which disrupts normal brain activity and creates intense feelings of pleasure. Heroin causes severe physical and psychological symptoms 6 to 8 hours after the last dosage. Painful withdrawal gets worse as time passes.

A study by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration says that people who use pain pills non-medically are 19 times more likely to start using heroin.

A story illustrates this point. A 24 year old mother of two children was prescribed pain medication after surgery in 2008. From 2008-2010, she was crushing prescription pills to get high. (<$1/mg per 60 mg pill= $60 per pill) In 2010, she started snorting heroin (1 cap (.05 gm) = $15-20, habit of two caps each day). In 2013, she began injecting heroin and did so for a few years prior to her arrest for heroin possession.

What can you do?

Be a part of the solution. Start by locking up your medications and properly disposing of them when they're no longer needed.

Also, talk with your teen or young adult. By helping prevent prescription drug abuse, you're potentially saving lives.

DOING IT YOURSELF

It's So Selfish to do it All Yourself! Have you ever helped someone clean up their mess and then came home to your own chaos, that's bigger than your friend's mess? In Mathew 7, 3 - 5 he says, "How can you say to your brother, "Let me take the speck out of your eye, when all the time there is a plank in your own eye? You hypocrite." Matthew sure didn't mince words in those days! But you have to remember, Matthew was a man and Mother Nature did NOT endow any man with mother's instinct, so Matthew didn't understand how we are drawn to help those who need us, in spite of our own messes. We're helpocrites.

As a helpocrite, it's very important to understand your motivation behind helping others to the detriment of your own well-being. Is there part of you that thinks, 'I gotta get out of here, my house is a mess and I don't want to be here.' And another part of you thinks, 'I want her to be happy and she needs help and I love to help people.' And yet another part of you thinks, 'I want her to like me and when she sees what I can do to make her feel better, she'll like me better.'

Here's the deal, take care of you first and then take care of others. Here's why. Once

GENEALOGY REPORT

THANK YOU

The Family of Ron Blair would like to thank our family and friends for the love and support we received during the loss of our Dad, Grandpa and Great-Grandpa.

We appreciate all the flowers, memorials, food and words of comfort that everyone gave us in our time of need.

We cannot express how much we appreciate the care Dad received at Heritage Pointe for the last two years and the additional care the last few weeks from Family Life Care (Hospice), Gerald for his comforting words and the support we received from Glancy Funeral Home.

Thank you everyone!

you're in balance by getting enough rest, recreation and work, you'll be healthy mentally and physically and you'll be able to help 10 times more than you did while the plank was in your eye.

Because most of us are caregivers by nature (mother's instinct) we carry that message, to care for others, in our DNA. Because of that, it's not easy for us to ask for help. Have you ever considered that not asking for help is selfish? Because you're reading my column, you're interested in getting and being organized and you're probably in a mess and need help. It is what you need and chances are you can think of a BO (Born Organized friend or relative or even acquaintance) who is dying to help somebody like you. But wait a minute! You're embarrassed. How can you open your home to someone and thereby let them see your dirty little secret?

You have to humble yourself and ask for help from those who are gifted in areas you're not, and that's when you'll see why it's selfish not to ask. When you see the joy the helper takes, you'll see how we all need each other for the skills we've uniquely been given.

Because "Sidetracked Home Executives: from pigpen to paradise" was a best-seller, it exposed my sister and me to hundreds of thousands of people who were struggling to create clean, cozy homes out of their chaos. It was an honor to hear from thousands who said the book was an answer to prayer. (That's because when we wrote the book, we prayed every morning before we picked up our pens (we wrote it in longhand on legal pads.) asking to be guided to write from our hearts to our reader's hearts.

When you pray for help you do get it, then it's up to you to use it.

PRACTICE AND PERFORMANCE

by Daris Howard
I was an offensive guard on our high school football team. We had a good line. We worked hard and practiced hard. Our backs were incredibly talented, but too often, because of their talent, they didn't practice to their full potential. Often their efforts were only half-hearted. Johnson, our leading receiver, was the worst. He would run out, turn, and pick up just about anything that the quarterback threw at him. He would always pull in the passes, but he was often sloppy. He and I were two opposites. What I lacked in talent I made up for in intensity, and many of the other players yelled at me for it.

Our first game was coming up, and our coach wanted us to do some actual practice as if we were in a game situation. The offense huddled, and the quarterback called a pass to Johnson. We lined up, and the ball was quickly snapped. The line defended well, and the pass was completed. Johnson caught it and slipped past the defender. He ran a short distance and then both stopped and walked back to the scrimmage line.

Coach turned to the defender. "Hazelton, why did you stop?"

"Johnson caught the ball," Hazelton said.

"But he was still seventy yards from the goal line!" Coach yelled. "Do you plan to just let the receiver waddle down for a score in a real game?"

"No," Hazelton meekly said.

Coach then turned to Johnson. "And Johnson, what was that little dance you did after you caught the ball? Why didn't you run for the goal?"

"It's just practice, Coach," Johnson said. "No need to wear ourselves out."

Coach was livid. "Well, you better wear yourself out. The linemen are going full force, and you better be, too."

A couple of running plays were called and then another pass. Johnson caught the ball and did his dance again, then he and the defender came walking back. Coach could take no more.

Coach yelled to the quarterback, "I will decide what plays you call from now on." He then turned to me. "Howard, you are defensive tackle."

"But Coach," I said, "I've never played defense before."

"You know what the line does," Coach replied. "And all you have to do is get whoever's got the ball. Just go after them with the same ferocity you use to defend on offense."

I nodded and moved into the defensive tackle position. The ball was snapped, and the fullback came through the line carrying the ball. I tackled him at the line of scrimmage.

"Howard," he yelled, "don't hit so hard. It's just practice."

The next play was a pass, but before the quarterback got it off, I tackled him. "Criminy, Howard," he said. "It's just practice."

The next play was another pass. This time, the quarterback quickly got it off, and Johnson evaded the defender and caught it. I was already headed toward that part of the field. Johnson did his little dance and turned just as I hit him. As I stood and helped him to his feet he started yelling and swearing at me. "It's just practice, you idiot."

I jogged back to the line, and Johnson walked. The whole way there I could hear him swearing at me even while Coach was praising me.

Coach called another pass on the next play. Again, the quarterback got it off quickly and Johnson caught it. But this time he looked and saw me coming. He turned and ran. We ran the whole length of the field, and even though he was slightly faster, he apparently thought I would quit and turn back, so he slowed. I tackled him only a few yards from the goal line. If he had been mad on the previous play, it was nothing compared to this time.

When he approached the line, still swearing at me, Coach told him to shut up. Coach then turned to me. "Howard, tell everyone what you told me when I asked you why you are so intense."

"You perform like you practice," I replied.

Coach nodded and then turned to the rest of the team. "You all remember that. You perform like you practice."

TIPS TO OVERCOME

PERSONAL STRUGGLES AND ACHIEVE GOALS

(StatePoint) When faced with tough challenges, it can be tempting to throw in the towel. But experts say the power of goal-setting is fierce and the discipline behind it can help anyone overcome obstacles.

"Failure has the power to break you or it has the power to push you forward," says Scout Bassett, a U.S. Paralympian in track and field. "Use your experiences as an opportunity to reevaluate your goals and move forward from there."

Having lost a leg early in her life in China, Bassett spent her early childhood in an orphanage before being adopted by an American family. She came to the United States at the age of seven just wanting to fit in. As a child she discovered a love of running and set off on a path to qualify for the Paralympic Games. In her first attempt in 2012, she came in dead last and did not qualify for the team. She briefly considered giving up her dream.

This year, she is relishing the progress she has made. As a member of Team USA who competed in Rio, she's showing off her skills on a global stage and participating in Citi's "#StandForProgress" program to inspire all Americans to think about the progress they want to achieve in their lives.

Bassett offers the following insights into goal-setting.

- "Progress" doesn't always come in the form of a medal or an award. Sometimes progress means you have to take a few steps back, go back to the drawing board, see what worked and what didn't, and find a way forward from there. Most of us experience setbacks, disappointments and even failures sometimes, but ultimately those moments can be the greatest motivators.

- The biggest struggles you face may not be the ones handed to you by fate or outside forces. They may be the battles you fight within. Look past your own inner voice discouraging you from your hopes and dreams. Developing mental fortitude is a continuous process.

- You can't change the past but you can help write the future. Embrace and focus on what you have gained, not what you have lost.

- Don't let naysayers hinder your progress or cause you to lose faith in yourself. The beauty of being underestimated is you have an opportunity to defy the

HU AUTHORS PUBLISHED

Huntington University's Dr. Jeffrey B. Webb, professor of American History and department chair of History & Political Science, has published the three-volume reference work titled American Myths, Legends, and Tall Tales: An Encyclopedia of American Folklore. The project also includes the work of three other Huntington University faculty and three recent graduates.

Drs. Todd Martin, professor of English, John Noble, assistant professor of Bible & Religion, and Linda Urschel, professor of English, contributed articles, while 2016 HU graduates Andrew Wickersham, Jaime Hillegonds and Bronwen Feters served as assistant editors.

"The encyclopedia is the work of more than a 150 scholars from around the world, including several of my faculty colleagues at Huntington University. My role as general editor allowed me to bring several HU students into the project and give them experience in professional editing and publishing. It was a great experience for them and their hard work is reflected in the high quality of the finished books," stated Dr. Webb.

American Myths, Legends, and Tall Tales: An Encyclopedia of American Folklore is a fascinating survey of the entire history of tall tales, folklore and mythology in the United States from earliest times to the present, including stories and myths from the modern era that have become an essential part of contemporary popular culture. In modern times, folklore and tall tales experienced a rejuvenation with the emergence of urban legends and the growing popularity of science fiction and conspiracy theories, with mass media such as comic books, television and films contributing to the retelling of old myths. The encyclopedia's entries provide a fascinating glimpse into the collective American imagination over the past 400 years through the stories that have shaped it.

American Myths, Legends, and Tall Tales: An Encyclopedia of American Folklore can be ordered online through Amazon.com.

COLLEGE MAY BE EXPENSIVE, BUT TEXTBOOK COSTS ARE DOWN

(StatePoint) It's no secret that college is expensive. Students spend 39 percent to 67 percent of their overall yearly budget on tuition and fees alone, according to figures from the College Board. However, studies now show that students are spending less on course materials than previously.

Publishers and education companies are working to decrease college costs. Recent research from the National Association of College Stores found that students spent about $600 on course materials in the most recent school year, nearly $100 less than the average spent in 2007-2008.

Put into perspective, books and supplies are 2-5 percent of the overall budget for college students at four-year public and private schools (College Board). Students spent an average of $67 per textbook (NACS), but $367 per month on discretionary spending, according to independent research firm Student Monitor.

One reason for the trend is that publishers are offering students less expensive and more engaging options than traditional textbooks. Digital course materials use personalized learning technology to help improve student grades and increase retention by including more enhanced content. For more information, visit the Association of American Publishers at aapbacktocampus.org.

Publishers and education companies are now offering new affordable course material options to offset the high cost of college. They can be found at your college bookstore or online marketplaces.
