Alice in Wonderland

Kicks off the 2010 Pulse Opera House Season

The 2010 Pulse Opera House season opens with a rabbit, a chase and a grand adventure. The show, of course, is a family-friendly adaptation of Lewis Carroll's classic story "Alice in Wonderland." In addition to the creative sets, designed by Ron Wartzok, and the fantasy costumes, designed by Cynthia Smyth-Wartzok, this production features an original score by Barry Jamison. Barry will perform the title song (which was developed during the Pulse Playwright's Project) at selected performances.

Ten year old Ana Redner, who has appeared in "Annie, Jr.," "The Wizard of Oz," and "Tom Sawyer" at the Pulse and "Beauty and the Beast" at Huntington University, is playing the title role of Alice. The other 16 company members play multiple roles in this unique production.

On Friday, March 19, the Pulse is offering special daytime performances for local and area school children. The afternoon session is sold out, but there is still limited space in the 9:15 AM performance. Homeschoolers are welcome. This performance is by reservation only.

The production runs March 12, 13, 18, 19, 20, 25, 26 and 27. Tickets for the show are $12 for general admission and $5 for children 12 and under. Those bringing items for the Food Pantry will receive a $2 discount on their ticket. (Limit one item per ticket. Not good with any other promotion. Adult tickets only.) The box office opens at 7:00 p.m. on show nights and is located in the theatre lobby. Doors to the theatre open at 7:30 p.m. All shows start at 8:00 p.m.

Reservations may be made online at www.pulseoperahouse.org or by calling (260) 375-7017. The Pulse Opera House is located at 127 1/2 Wayne Street in Warren, Indiana.

DAFFODILS

Spring is just around the corner and with it come those glorious trumpets of hope and help for the American Cancer Society. I believe I have contacted every business in town; all have been as supportive as usual. The flowers are still 10 blossoms to the bunch, for $10. They will be delivered on Thurs., 25 March. In the event I have missed someone, would you please call me at 375-2095? I have voice mail in the event I am not in, so just leave your order. I will again be selling daffodils on Friday, 26 of March, in the post office area at Heritage Pointe as in past years, from 9 a.m. until I run out of flowers.

I am so proud to be your Daffodil Lady; our "little town" has purchased more than $20,000.00 worth of the blossoms in the years I have served in this capacity.

Thank You!
Lilly Nutter

UPDATE OF WENDELL JACKSON

Wendell continues to be at Heritage Pointe for physical therapy. It was necessary for him to have surgery for the fractured left clavicle and the left elbow lacerations on Friday.

At this time it is very difficult to find a comfortable position due to the left arm splint and stitches at the collar bone.

With continued care at Heritage Pointe, he'll be eager to go when the grass starts growing.

Your prayers, cards and phone call are great – just what a Small Town with a Big Heart does!!

THE UPTOWN GARDENER
by Ruth Herring

Finally March has arrived perhaps we can begin to see some improvement for the weather. Right now anything above 40 degrees will make me happy. This winter both Wayne and I have suffered from a bad case of cabin fever.

This week I hope to get a start on planting some seeds in the greenhouse, maybe that will give me a boost to really think spring.

I have several things to plant besides the cuttings that took root and ready for soil. Also soon as the snow melts enough for me to safely get out to the flower beds I will give them all a sprinkling of epsom salts and fertilizer. I do this while the plants are dormant and let the mix slowly absorb into the ground. It has proven to me it helps.

The winter has been long and hard but when thinking back, it has gone rather quickly. Soon it will be time to think seriously about the farmers market and getting it started. We have talked of starting a couple weeks earlier this year and have the rhubarb, asparagus, hopefully strawberries and early spring items.

Few days ago Wayne and I were talking about the old fire station being up for sale and got my mind rambling to our volunteer department at home. It was housed in a small building front and center uptown. The building was just enough room to put two trucks in one behind the other. If the one in front didn't start it was pushed out into the street often leaving it set where ever it stopped. The person on duty at the phone company sounded the alarm which also brought everyone to town, many of which came to offer help if needed as our fire department had in early years about 4 people, 3 of which were in walking distance of the truck.

One weekend I had chosen to babysit for my best friends little sister so they could attend a special service at their church. They lived in an upstairs apartment nearly above the fire station. So you had a good view of what was going on in town. On Sunday morning

AREA NEWS

BLOOD DRIVE

When asked, many blood donors will say they give blood because of the satisfaction they get from knowing they just helped save a life.

This March, Dunkin' Donuts joins the American Red Cross in confirming that feeling through a special promotion that asks: "Donut feel good to donate?"

Now through March 31, donors coming to give blood at participating American Red Cross blood drives in the Indiana-Ohio Region will receive a coupon for a free Dunkin' Donuts donut.

"The good feeling you get from helping to save a life just got better," said Sharyn Whitman, CEO for the Indiana-Ohio Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross. "We're grateful to Dunkin' Donuts for building good will through their generous gift to blood donors."

Through "Donut feel good to donate?" Dunkin' Donuts joins the Red Cross in celebrating March is Red Cross Month, and in encouraging more people to give blood. Collecting blood during the winter can be challenging since cold and snowy weather can sometimes prevent donors from making and keeping appointments. In early February, for instance, eight American Red Cross blood drives were canceled due to weather, representing nearly 500 blood donations in the Indiana-Ohio Region.

"While weather changes, the need for blood never does," said Whitman. "In lots of ways, it's a great feeling to know you have something to give that's needed year-round."

All donors at the following American Red Cross blood drives will receive a coupon for a free Dunkin' Donuts donut:

Friday, March 26, from 11:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. at Heritage Point, located at 801 Huntington Ave. in Warren.

How to Donate Blood

To schedule an appointment to donate please call 1-800-REDCROSS (1-800-733-2767) or visit redcrossblood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age (16 with parental permission in some states), meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on their height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Please bring your Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive ID when you come to donate.

About the American Red Cross The Indiana-Ohio Blood Services Region serves northern and central Indiana and northwestern Ohio, and needs to collect about 500 units of blood a day to meet patient need in more than 60 hospitals. In addition to providing blood to our community, the American Red Cross also provides relief to victims of disaster, trains millions in lifesaving skills, serves as a communication link between U.S. military members and their families, and assists victims of international disasters or conflicts.

STAY SAFE

Farmers should take extra safety precautions as they manage their stored corn this winter. Dee Jepsen, an Ohio State University Extension state safety leader for the Agricultural Safety and Health program, said that farmers should wear a respirator when dealing with potentially moldy grain to avoid breathing in any toxins.

"They should be wearing a dust mask to block the dust from grain accumulating in their respiratory tract," said Jepsen. "But the mask won't filter out toxins. Wearing a respirator will filter out molds and spores that they might be inhaling."

Jepsen said that a farmer can become ill from mold and grain dust inhalation, experiencing long-term flu-like symptoms commonly referred to as farmer's lung. "Sometimes the combine doesn't do a good job of cleaning out the plant matter from the grain - weeds, stems, hulls - and any favorable environmental conditions will cause that plant material to sprout and become moldy," said Jepsen. "Any time that grain is not at optimum condition, there could be potential for mold development. Farmers need to protect themselves from that."

Grain bin entrapments are also at their highest during the winter months when farmers are moving harvested grain and preparing for spring planting. "Right now that's all they are doing," said Jepsen. "The movement of grain from truck to the bin or from one bin to another should be a fluid motion, but sometimes it requires a farmer's intervention. This is especially true when grain is crusted or lodged in the bin."

There are many potential hazards when it is time to move grain out of a bin. Jepsen offers advice on the proper procedures to follow for grain bin safety:

* Never enter a grain bin alone. A farmer should always be monitored by one other person located at the top of the bin entry. A second person should be on the ground level.

* Shut off and lock out all power to the grain bin before entering. This will prevent incidental engulfment and entanglement with moving equipment.

* When the power is off, the unloading auger is off. The auger should never be turned on when trying to dislodge grain. This will cause someone to be pulled under as the grain unloads.

* Take your time. Handling and moving grain can be a tedious task, especially when the grain is out of condition. Dislodging grain is physically taxing and fatigue can set in quickly, increasing chances of making a mistake.

More information about grain handling and storage is available online at <http://www.grainquality.org>. This site has publications and videos from Purdue University specialists. Matt Roberts from the Purdue Agricultural and Biological Engineering Department can assist with technical questions regarding storing the 2009 crop. He can be reached by emailing him at mroberts@purdue.edu.

SAFE CENSUS

With the U.S. Census process beginning, Susan Johnson of the Better Business Bureau (BBB) advises people to be cooperative, but cautious, so as not to become a victim of fraud or identity theft. The first phase of the 2010 U.S. Census is under way as workers have begun verifying the addresses of households across the country.

The big question is - how do you tell the difference between a U.S. Census worker and a con artist? BBB offers the following advice:

** If a U.S. Census worker knocks on your door, they will have a badge, a handheld device, a Census Bureau canvas bag, and a confidentiality notice.

Ask to see their identification and their badge before answering their questions. Don't invite anyone you don't know into your home.

** Census workers are currently only knocking on doors to verify address information. Do not give your Social Security number, credit card or banking information to anyone, even if they claim they need it for the U.S. Census.

While the Census Bureau might ask for basic financial information, such as a salary range, it will not ask for Social Security, bank account, or credit card numbers nor will employees solicit donations.

Eventually, Census workers may contact you by telephone, mail, or in person at home. However, they will not contact you by Email, so be on the lookout for Email scams impersonating the Census. Never click on a link or open any attachments in an Email that are supposedly from the U.S. Census Bureau.

KID COUNT

National Census Day is just one month away, and new resources are available to help kids help themselves get counted.

As Americans this month fulfill their constitutional duty to participate in the decennial census, too many children will not be counted. In fact, children are the demographic group most often missed by this vital population survey. According to a summary of research published by the Annie E. Casey Foundation, Census 2000 did not count more than 1 million children under the age of 10. African-American and Latino children are two-to-three times more likely than white children to not be counted.

One reason for the undercount is that children are more likely than other residents to live in what the U.S. Census Bureau refers to as "hard-to-count" (HTC) households. The Census Bureau lists 12 factors related to HTC such as poverty, unemployment, vacant housing, low levels of education, households without telephones, non-spousal households and households on public assistance.

In Indiana, 10 percent of youth live in HTC areas.

Another reason cited by the

Casey report is the growing number of children being raised by unmarried parents. "Since these living arrangements are relatively unstable (compared to married-couple families)...it would not be surprising if some children are not being reported in these types of living arrangements."

Other reasons include the census form itself, which is too short to list all of the residents in large households. And the Casey report warns that the undercount of kids could become even worse during the current housing crisis, with an estimated 2 million children losing their homes to foreclosure.

In response to these challenges, the U.S. Census Bureau has created age-appropriate activity kits for teachers and youth workers to use with children and teens. Through the "Census in Schools" Web site (www.census.gov/ schools), the federal government provides free teaching materials and other resources that also can be used in after-school programs.

For example, teachers and youth workers will find maps, worksheets, lesson plans and teaching guides with activities related to the census. Students can learn how to read data tables, create their own maps, use math to manage census data and write about data trends in their state. Importantly, the activities correlate with national education standards for math, social studies, geography and language arts.

The free activity kits also include Family Take Home Pages for kids to give to their parents or guardians. Thus, in addition to teaching students about the census and how data can be utilized, the "Census in Schools" program encourages kids to encourage the head of their household to fill out and submit the census survey.

As the Casey report notes, adults have a direct opportunity to be counted by participating in the census. Children, however, cannot fill out the census forms themselves. Instead, "children are dependent on others to make sure they are included." "Census in Schools" directly helps kids make their case for inclusion.

The Casey report suggests other strategies for increasing the count of children. State and local committees organized to promote the census can collaborate with agencies and programs that serve the poor such as the federal Women, Infants and Children program and Head Start locations.

Census advocates can increase their communication with child care facilities while also partnering with pediatricians, hospitals and other medical professionals to identify children and families at-risk of not being counted.

The consequences are crucial. Data from the census are used to determine political representation, with the 435 seats in the U.S. House of Representatives divvied up based on the population of each state. Indiana, for example, lost a U.S. House seat after the results of Census 2000.

Census data also are used to distribute more than $400 billion through more than 140 programs aimed at providing funding, food, health care and other support for low-income residents, including children. In addition, census results are used to plan for school capacity and to develop other community youth programs.

The official "count day" for the U.S. Census is April 1, 2010. We fool ourselves and harm vulnerable children if we do not make a full effort to ensure full participation in the census.

Kids count, so let's count all of our kids.

SAVING MADE SIMPLE

The good news is that it appears the economy is on the rebound. Even so, now is a good time to review your expenses to find ways to save money.

We are well into the New Year, and that membership you purchased at the local gym to get back in shape isn't all that exciting anymore. Would you like to save money while getting into shape? Try this. Put on your running or walking shoes, get up out of the chair, walk out the door, and keep running or walking for the next hour or so. It will not cost you a dime, and you will save between $350-$1,500 during the next year.

What about this tip? A new coffee shop has just opened on your route to work, so you swing in to grab a cappuccino. You're probably going to pay around $4 per cup. If you stop by the coffee house three times a week, you will spend about $625 per year. Instead, you could brew your own cup of coffee at home or at the office. Also, drink filtered tap water instead of bottled water. If you drink one bottled water per day at $1.50 per bottle, you will spend $547 annually. The same amount of tap water would cost you just 73 cents per year.

Have you ever gone grocery shopping to pick up a couple of items and returned home with three bags of groceries? First, make a list and stick to it. Consider going to the grocery store right after you have eaten to avoid impulse buying while hungry. Otherwise you may end up buying more snack food than healthy food. You might also consider buying generic brands instead of the highly advertised popular brands. Clip coupons by using websites like www.grocerygame.com.

If you enjoy going out to dinner, ask your server to bring you a "doggie bag" as soon as your meal is served. Restaurants typically overserve and, by taking half of your dinner home, you can enjoy two meals for the price of one.

Instead of going out to dinner with a group of friends on Friday night, invite them over to your house for a potluck dinner. Everyone can bring a favorite dish, and you can rent a movie for entertainment.

Take your lunch to work at least two or three times each week. You can network with your colleagues while eating on premise, or take a lunchtime power walk.

What about all of those magazines stacked up on your desk? If you don't have a lot of reading time in your schedule, consider canceling a few subscriptions. For those subscriptions that you keep, beware of renewal subscription notices. Some periodicals send renewal notices months before the subscription actually expires. Look on your mailing label for the date your subscription expires. If you wait until closer to the expiration date, you may find that the magazine will offer you a subscription renewal at a lower annual rate.

To save money by saving energy, try the following:

- Turn off the lights in rooms that are not being used.
- Replace light bulbs with the new, energy-savings bulbs.
- Change air filters in your air conditioning unit every 30 days.
- Turn off your computer when you are finished using it. Computers use a lot of electricity.

- Invest in a programmable thermostat to control your home's heating and air conditioning usage.

When it comes to credit cards, remember that they are a luxury, not a necessity. You do not need more than two credit cards—one for daily living expenses, which you should pay in full at the end of each month, and one for emergencies. Do not carry your emergency card with you. Keep it tucked away safely at home, where you or a family member can access it in case an emergency arises.

Keep a nest egg account. Every time you save money on a purchase, put the extra savings into the account at your local bank. Likewise, whenever you receive money you were not expecting, you can put it into the same account.

These tips come to you courtesy of your Indiana banking community. Try them, and see how much money you can save.

STRESS FREE START TO YOUR DAY

by The FlyLady, Marla Cilley
Do you ever look at the clock and find yourself in a panic because you are not dressed yet? It doesn't matter if you are headed off to work in the morning, work from home or you are retired; that same panic tells you that once again that time has gotten away from you!

There is no worse feeling than to walk into the bathroom and be startled by what you see staring back at you. Well there is something that is worse; running to hide when your UPS man comes to the door with a package. Why do we wait to the last minute to get dressed?

I have heard every excuse in the world for not getting dressed, but the truth is we don't take the time. One minute we are having our coffee watching our favorite morning program and the next minute we need to be walking out the door. It slips up on us!

Even though getting dressed is something we do every day, most of us don't know how long it takes us to actually put our clothes on. This is because we get sidetracked; with ironing, getting kids ready, watching tv and everything else that gets thrown our way.

The ease of getting dressed in the morning starts before you ever go to bed. By picking out your clothes and getting them ready; you don't have to think! It is all laid out for you. That will help you put an end to your procrastination.

Unless you keep hitting the snooze button! This tells me that you are not going to bed and getting enough sleep! If getting up and getting moving is hard, then it is time to set your bedtime just a little earlier.

Our habit this month is to practice getting up and getting dressed to lace up shoes first thing in the morning! As soon as your feet hit the floor start getting ready. There are no more excuses! You can do this and you are going to be less stressed in the morning.

Stress free mornings make for a peaceful day! What have you got to lose; your nasty attitude and hateful words. Get up, get dressed and feel on top of the world. Then when you walk into your bathroom you will not scare yourself! You can get more done before you leave. You won't be hiding from a knock on your door! This one act of getting dressed to shoes has you ready for anything that comes your way!

Here are the tools to help you establish this empowering habit!

* Pick out your clothes before you go to bed.

* Go to bed and get plenty of sleep.

* Get up 15 minutes before the rest of the family.

* Start getting dressed as soon as your feet hit the floor!

* Then lace up your shoes!

Your day is off to a peaceful start! That stress free morning sets the tone for the rest of your day!

the fire alarm sounded and I made the usual rush to the front window to see the action. They turned the corner and I knew it was close by so I went to the back of the apartment and low and behold my church was on fire, flames shooting out the back side and people scurrying out the front. It was then I was glad I had given up going to church that Sunday. Thankfully everyone got out safely, the truck had started promptly and soon had the fire out. Those few men were truly dedicated men just the same as the men who serve today. We must never forget the dedication and loyalty of our firemen we have in our community here and back home and remember the ones who in the past gave countless hours of their time. They certainly are a great group of people.

For my recipe I should have a firehouse chili recipe which I don't have, so maybe a pork stew will do.

Cut up into cubes about a pound of pork roast brown well and add 1 can of chicken broth cook slow till meat is tender. Add about a pound of cubed potatoes, 1 onion diced, 3 carrots cut in bite size pieces, 2 stalks celery cut up, 1 small green or red pepper, 1 teaspoon celery seed, 1 bay leaf, 1 small can mushrooms, salt and pepper to your taste. I put this on low and cook slow. 10 minutes before serving add a can of cream of mushroom soup undiluted. Serve it up with fresh made biscuits or cornbread. If you want it firehouse hot add some hot dried peppers with the vegetables.

Only about 3 short weeks till spring (according to the calendar.)
