Thought for the Week: The trouble with jogging is that, by the time you realize you're not in shape for it, it's too far to walk back. Franklin P. Jones

NOTES FROM THE BASEMENT

Doesn't it seem to be about time to welcome spring back into our lives? We thought so too, so join us at the bargain basement this weekend to check out the gently used spring/summer collection. Our crew of volunteers have been busy this week putting away winter and bringing in spring! There is something bright and cheery for everyone in the family and perhaps if we dress like spring we can convince ol' man winter to pack it up and move on out of here!

The $5 bag sale is ongoing and we have a $3 size as well. Come early and come often to fill your bags and find your best deal. Our hours are Friday and Saturday, 9am to 4pm. We also take donations during these hours and if needed you can call Nancy Surfus or Jan Weight to schedule a drop off time during the week. We have an ongoing need for paper bags for our sale so please remember to say "paper" when asked at the grocery store and bring them to us when you are finished with them.

Just a reminder to those who haven't been down to the Basement and might be wondering who we are and what we do. The Bargain Basement is part of the Knight Bergman Center and is located in the basement where the old Warren High cafeteria used to be. We are on the south side of the building, down the alley and down the stairs! As part of the KBCC we are a nonprofit thrift store whose proceeds go to the center to help defray the costs associated with the daily maintenance and upkeep of the building and its programs. We are an all-volunteer staff and even though we have expanded from just Nancy and me (and my husband and kids.) to a great group of 7, we can always use more help.

Especially during the spring and summer months with vacations, gardening, kids out of school, kids graduating...all the things that can make scheduling a nightmare! If you have a couple of hours on Friday or Saturday or even midweek, give us a call or stop in and introduce yourselves and find yourself in service! We would love to have you.

I made a few bloopers in my last post...I thanked the wrong Highley brother for clearing out the ice after the last storm. It was Larry who came to our rescue. Thanks Larry! And I made a typo when thanking the guys who keep our roads and parking lots safe for us.

It should have read "And a big thanks (to) the town of Warren and their crew for keeping the driveway and alley plowed for us. It seems to be a full time job these last few

We really appreciate all you guys do to keep us safe on the roads."

Thanks guvs!

We would also like to thank our "basement angels"! We were humbled and blessed by the very kind donations given to us for the bargain basement from the women of the Solid Rock Methodist Church and a previous volunteer of the basement. We are using those donations to purchase shelving to help with organizing floor space. Thanks, ladies for your confidence in us and our mission. God Bless!

> Jan, Nancy and the Bargain Basement staff.

DAFFODILS FOR ACS

Just a reminder, daffodils for the American Cancer Society will be on sale at Heritage Pointe Fri., 18 March from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.(or until they are sold out) The location is the same as in former years, in our post office area, under the church steeple. To those who have already ordered, don't forget to pick them up. Again, heartfelt thanks for your outstanding support, year after year, the cause is such a worthy one. So thankful Heritage Pointe is such a faithful supporter of this effort. The Daffodil Lady, Lilly Nutter...375-2095.

PARK CONCERNS

In opening I would like to say that what is being said here in this letter is my opinion and my opinion only.

It was brought to my attention that the Chamber of Commerce is contemplating putting in a new park. The area in reference to this park is definitely an eye sore when coming into town. And I commend them for taking the area on as a project. My understanding is that this property has not been acquired yet, but the plans have been drawn up and from what I have heard several people say that this is a beautiful plan for a park.

I personally have not seen the plans for this park, but I trust the informants that when they say it's nice they mean it. Webster defines a park as a tract of land used for recreation, we know it as a public place where children can play. My question is "Does Warren need another park?"

The parks we have now are hardly used. With the exception of the baseball and softball diamonds and that's the only time you see children playing on any of the play equipment at either park, when there is a ball game going on.

The Town of Warren is in charge of the upkeep of Tower Park along with the park board. Will they be responsible for this park too?

My other concern is the area in which they are wanting to put this park. The area in question is on the main highway, a block from where two major highways intersect and a half a block off the Salamonie River.

We have been very fortunate to have never had any casualities with a river running through our town and I am afraid that with the park right there kids will become more curious. Also with the two highways intersecting in the area, both leading to the interstate in such a short distance either way, we have been very fortunate to have not had any children abducted from the area. "Will this new park open the door to this?

Ample parking will be available for this park, with the town parking lot across the street (a highway). Even if this is not a "playground" type park, it still has potential for these problems.

The funding for parks are very easy to acquire and is a great asset for towns that have eye sores just like Warren does and can turn something ugly into a very nice place, but I think three parks in Warren is too much.

Warren is a town with all sorts of possibilities to improve, but with the economy in the shape it is, Warren could very easily become a town in the past and I, for one, do not want to see this happen. Warren can rebuild and as a community we can do it. It's not just up to the Town Council or the Chamber of Commerce, but maybe if new idea was brought forward, and as a group working together among all of us we can achieve putting Warren back on the map.

Maybe start with the eye sores that are in the downtown area.

BY DENNIS STROUD

The headlines in the September 23, 1910 of the Warren Tribune read; "WARREN MOURNS for seven of its people killed in wreck." Two traction cars collided at Kingsland. It was the most terrible railway crash in history of Northern Indiana. The deaths from the traction wreck totaled thirty-nine.

The most appalling catastrophe in the history of this section of Indiana was that which occurred a half mile north of Kingsland in Wells county at noon Wednesday, September 21st, when two cars on the Wabash Valley traction line collided, head-on, and thirty-nine people, eight of whom are residents of Warren, were killed. The disaster was so terrible that the people of this vicinity were stunned. Crepe was hung on the doors of five Warren businesses while the rest of them were practically at a standstill. The victims were all prominent and were so related that fully half of the families of the town were mourning for their kin.

The people were going to Fort Wayne to attend the fair. The traffic between Bluffton and Fort Wayne had been unusually heavy that day and several extra cars were in service. One of these, a large heavy coach, was coming south from Fort Wayne. Just north of Kingsland, the tracks made a wide sweep to the north-west, around a woods, in which there was a heavy under-growth. It was at the north end of this curve that the cars met. The south bound car had no passengers and was running at a speed of forty or fifty miles an hour.

They came together with a crash that was heard by people a half mile away. The heavy south bound car struck the smaller north bound car with a force that sent the big mass of steel and iron nearly three fourths of the way from front to rear of the lighter car, full of men and women. The big car's floor was above the floor of the other car that the people were riding. It sped forward like the sickle bar of a mowing machine, mangling and crushing the limbs and bodies of the people. Word was sent to Bluffton and a car was dispatched to Kingsland, carrying doctors, cots and whatever surgical supplies that could be hastily gathered.

At the scene of the wreck, the condition was beyond description. The victims were piled in a mass of crushed bones and bleeding bodies. Many were mashed so badly that even their closest associates could not recognize them. It was only from marks upon laundry or from letters and checks found in the pockets that the identity of even the best known residents. of the county, could be certain. Warren's dead were; George Smethurst. hardware merchant, age 39, Fred Tam, liveryman, age 39, Frank King, manager of packing house, age 24, Lola King, wife of Frank King, Fred Jones, assistant cashier, Exchange Bank, age 24, Silas Thompson, law student, age 24, Perry Daugherty, restaurant proprietor, age 45 and Clyde Brown, drayman age 24.

WCTU RALLY

The WCTU (Woman's Christian Temperance Union) will hold their Mid-Year Rally on Saturday, March 26 at the Marion Memorial Tabernacle located at 1527 37th St in Marion.

Special guest speaker for the afternoon session will be Cheryl Roland who lives in Marion. She works closely with her husband, Dr David G Roland, Superintendent of the Northeastern Indiana District Church of the Nazarene. Cheryl is an event planner and serves on a number of committees designed to promote, equip and encourage women in ministry. She was written numerous articles and is a contributing writer to three books. Mrs Roland is presently serving as contributing writer/editor for the Mor2Life Bible Study series launched in February.

Her theme is "Jesus is my Rock and my name is on the roll!"

The day begins with brunch and fellowship from 9-9:40 a.m. and the morning session to start at 9:45 am WCTUState President Sarah F Ward will preside over the day's activities.

All members are encouraged to attend the Mid-Year WCTU Rally on March 26.

Mossburg

H. Alfreda Dennis Mossburg, 100, of Markle passed from this life at 11:35 a.m. on Wednesday, March 9, 2011 at Heritage Pointe in Warren.

She was the first born of Alfred Francis Dennis and Margaret May (Burley) Dennis on July 27, 1910. On September 20, 1930 she married Daniel Elmer Mossburg who passed away on February 3, 1987.

Alfreda is survived by four children: Jerry and Jean Mossburg of Markle, Linda Carl of Clark Lake, Michigan, Kirby and Shirley Mossburg of Markle and James and Sandra Mossburg Markle, eleven grandchildren, twenty-nine great grandchildren and one great great grandchild. She is survived by her three sisters, Dorothy Curtis of Bryan, Ohio, Mary Murphy of Bahalia, Mississippi and Marjorie Grover Liberty Center, Indiana.

She was preceded in death by a son-in-law: C. Donavon Carl.

Mrs. Mossburg was a member of the Markle United Methodist Church, a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and served as Worthy Matron. Her life's interest was her family, her flowers, gardens and her yard. She wrote poetry and short stories all her life and kept a family diary during her married years. These were put in book form with the help of her granddaughter, Joni, and published in 2002 – A Journey into Yesterday. One of her most popular poems was about her beloved hometown - Markle, Indiana...

...Life is great in my hometown, but there will come a day when I shall have to leave it because I cannot stay. If I could have my "druthers" then it is my will to sleep beside the river with my town folks on the hill.

Mrs. Mossburg will occupy that place beside her husband with her town folks on the hill. Visitation was held Sunday, March 13, 2011 at the Myers Funeral Home Markle Chapel, 415 N. Lee Street, Markle, Indiana. Services were held Monday, March 14, 2011 at the Markle United Methodist Church with Rev. Steve McPeek officiating.

FARMERS' CONTRIBUTIONS

by Lt. Governor Becky Skillman

There are images, scents and sights that are close to the hearts and minds of Hoosiers whose lives are linked to agriculture. The smell of spring. The miraculous moment a newborn calf makes its first attempt to stand. The

would like to invite the community to join us for Irish Sundaes on Sunday. March 27th from 11AM - 1PM.

This Potato Bar will feature create-your-own baked potatoes with 10 toppings to choose from, ham sandwiches, hot dogs, assorted desserts, ice cream and drinks. Donations collected will be used to support missions. Dillman Church is located 3 miles west of St. Rd. 3 in Wells County and 4 miles east of the Van Buren Cemetery. vision of a farmer fighting dusk and dodging raindrops to unload that last wagon of hay. All are powerful scenes of the sometimes quiet force that is Indiana agriculture. Its contributions are countless, and though we celebrate them (often subtly) everyday, we have a unique opportunity to truly relish them.

March is "Agriculture Appreciation Month." And while it may compete with another Hoosier pastime, a good game of basketball, Indiana's farmers have certainly proven they can handle a full court press during tough times.

Our standings reflect the score and tell the story. For example, do you know that when your children's faces are spackled with spaghetti sauce, the tomatoes used in it likely come from Indiana? We're second in the nation in tomatoes for processing. The next time you savor a scoop of rocky ripple or butter pecan, consider that we are also second in the nation in ice cream production. When you prepare pork chops, hamburgers, and chicken for the grill, are you aware of the efforts made by our Indiana family of farmers to ensure those backyard barbecue favorites are safe, affordable and nutritious?

Agriculture contributes $25 billion each year to Indiana's economy, and it is critical to the future of our state and our ongoing efforts to achieve a complete economic rejuvenation.

At a time when it seems as if everyone is asked to do more with less, our Indiana farmers serve to remind us what can happen when we look at obstacles as opportunities. Their efforts and attitudes are gaining global attention. When we visit other countries, we know just how fortunate we are to have a strong agricultural industry and abundant, affordable food. America and the world are quite literally depending on the agricultural industry to thrive and grow. We've never lived in a time when so many depend on so few for their quality of life.

missions have resulted in a number of success stories for Indiana agriculture, including potential corn and sovbean export deals, jobs, and investment ventures in our state. These kinds of relationships are a direct reflection of the values and commitment of our Hoosier Ag community.

In this economic climate, we cannot afford to ignore any opportunity that would breathe new life into our communities and put Hoosiers back to work. And agriculture continues to be one of our strongest assets.

Indiana farmers are innovative, inspiring, giving of their hands, and humble of heart. Each time I present our Hoosier Homestead awards, I gain a deeper understanding of those families who've cultivated their properties for more than a century.

As we face new challenges and work together to overcome them, may we all be grateful for the rich heritage and high standards Indiana agriculture brings to that collaborative quest, not only this month, but always. To Indiana's family of farmers, and all that you represent, we salute you.

POVERTY SIMULATION

Purdue Extension, Huntington County, will present a Community Action Poverty (CAPS) Simulation Wednesday, April 27th from 6pm-8pm at Victory Noll Center. This learning tool has been created as a way to help people understand the realities of poverty. During a simulation, participants roleplay the lives of low-income families. Some are TANF recipients, some are disabled, and some are senior citizens on Social Security. They have the stressful task of providing for basic necessities and shelter on a limited budget during the course of four 15minute "weeks". They interact with human service agencies, grocers, pawnbrokers, bill collectors, job interviewers, police officers and others.

Although play money will be used, CAPS is not a game. It is

Our international trade a simulation that enables participants to look at poverty from a variety of angles and then to recognize and discuss the potential for change within their local communities. The simulation was designed to sensitize those who frequently deal with low-income families ,as well as to create a broader awareness of the realities of poverty among policy makers, community leaders and others.

> We invite you to participate in the poverty simulation. We think you will find it provides an intriguing opportunity to describe a very real challenge to our community. Please contact the Purdue Extension Huntington County Office to register by calling 260-358-4826. This event is generously sponsored by Victory Noll, Beacon Credit Union and Teachers Credit Union.

DNR APP

People who enjoy any of the DNR's wide variety of properties across Indiana and own an iPhone can benefit from a new phone application.

The application can be downloaded at no cost to the at http:// itunes.apple.com/us/app/ indiana-dnr/ id395591679?mt=8.

The DNR iPhone app provides virtually all the information needed when planning an outdoor activity at one of these sites. DNR properties include fish and wildlife areas, forests, historic sites, state park inns, and nature preserves, as well as 24 state parks and eight reservoirs.

"Indiana has a great wealth of natural and cultural resources, and we are always looking for new ways to connect Hoosiers to those resources," said Dan Bortner, director of the DNR Division of State Parks and Reservoirs. "We're glad to be a part of DNR's efforts to use today's technology."

The Indiana DNR iPhone application features:

- Location mapping for state parks, where to hunt or fish, and additional properties of interest

Many of the buildings are in dire need, some, in my opinion, need to have the building inspector take a closer look and cite the building owners for violations if any. As residents of this town, we are to keep our properties in shipshape which means yards mowed, the plumbing and sewer in working order and all trash and debris at a minimum. If not, our properties are ruled condemned or charged a fine. Can't the building owners follow the same rules? Take a stroll thru the streets and alleys of the downtown area, you'll see what I mean.

Some of the buildings in the downtown area are too far gone to renovate at a decent cost and the ones that are now housing business, I commend the store owners for keeping their building in shape, but it will take thousands of dollars for these other unoccupied building to be refurbished, many needing new roofs, wiring, floors, walls, even foundations, and to top it off anyone wanting to put a business in would have to pay an outrageous insurance premium taking on an older building, not to mention the electric and heating and cooling cost.

The cost of tearing down these building that are in shambles and building new ones is right up there in cost, but if we replace these building with smaller more economical building it would make it easier for a business to succeed. The types of smaller building I am referring to is like in the court yard beside DeWeeses. These building have been seen in many areas around the country with very nice business in them and are very attractive and can be made in larger sizes and still be very economical. This would give potential store owners a chance to get a good start in their business which also would turn around and bring more people into Warren for local buying, and in turn make the store owner more profit and also be able to keep their prices down, than trying to clear all of the other obstacles that the older buildings are burdening the owners with

In a recent publication I received it stated, "in today's world of the big superstores, it still takes the little stores to keep the economy up and running"

Other towns like Warren have done the removal of the older buildings to make way for more economical buildings and are still thriving even in hard economic times. Why can't Warren. If they can do it, can't we??

Don't get me wrong, the Chambers idea of a park would be very nice, but I think using that area for another purpose other than for another park would be much better and a lot safer for not only the children but adults as well. In my opinion it would look a whole lot nicer in our downtown area and maybe have the music played in that area in more softer tones for when shoppers are needing to relax. It would make it very inviting and quite classy for our little town.

Let's face it our downtown area needs help, far more than paint, curtains and music. Those are facial features that we can keep doing, but down under, our foundations are crumbling quickly.

I am willing to push up my sleeves and get dirty, are you?? Treva Flemming Warren DNR director of communications Phil Bloom said this is one more example of the many options of staying informed about DNR activities.

"We live in an increasingly mobile society in which people have a variety of ways to gather the information they need," he said. "This continues DNR's effort to stay connected with our customers and for our customers to stay connected to us."

WEB RESOURCE

Producers of small ruminants have a new information resource in the Purdue Extension sheep and goat blog.

The site, http://sheepngoats.wordpress.com, is updated every Wednesday with posts pertaining to goat and sheep operation management. Unlike many blogs, the sheep and goat blog offers research-based information, rather than resembling a personal journal. Readers can leave comments or questions on each post.

Goat and sheep producers will tell you that raising healthy goats and sheep requires a watchful eye. Folks raising multiple livestock species often report that their goats and sheep are the most challenging to monitor for disease issues.

Producers can stay informed about industry trends and pick up management advice through the Web resource produced by Mike Neary, Purdue Extension small ruminant specialist.

"Goat and sheep producers want to know what other operations are doing," Neary said. "The blog gives them information about education, Extension and items of interest — whether those are animal or human-related."

Recent posts have included information about breed selection, animal health, training livestock guard dogs, lambing problems and nutrition. In Indiana. producers raise goats and sheep for meat, milk and wool, and current high market prices make it a good time to be involved in the industry, Neary said. The blog offers timely small-ruminant information and advice for both new and veteran producers.

"We hope to reach a larger amount of people interested in goats and sheep and teach producers something they may not have thought to research themselves," he said.

In addition to viewing blog posts on the website, readers also can subscribe for e-mail reminders for updates each week. To subscribe, go to https://lists.purdue.edu/mailman/listinfo/pusheepngoats.

Additional publications related to goat and sheep production can be found online at the Purdue Extension Web site (http:// www.ces.purdue.edu/ extmedia/ansci.htm#10). Neary and other specialists from the University of Kentucky often combine efforts with these publications.

Some examples of common health issues that are addressed in publications include internal parasites and footrot. Last fall Neary and other specialists from Indiana and Kentucky held a webinar for producers (Huntington Co. was a host site). Neary and the specialists from Kentucky are involved with goat research studies at the Southeast Purdue Agricultural Center.
