INTERNET APOLOGIES

Citizens Telephone (citiznet.com) would like to extend their apologies to all Internet users for the problem of not being able to connect this past week. We have experienced some "growing pains" and our updating of the internet equipment did not go as planned. The "non-interrupted service" sounded good in theory, but the reality was, it created some problems. It is our wish that once these updates are up and running, it will improve our Internet service to you. Again, we are sorry for the inconvenience this may have caused you.

BEREAVEMENT SUPPORT

The Bereavement Support Group will meet the following Tuesdays for the remainder of 2000: November 28, December 5, 12 and 19. The meetings are held in room 348 at Wells Community Hospital from 6:30 to 8 p.m. To help members deal with the stress of the holiday season, extra sessions have been added. "Many memories and traditions associated with the holidays tend to become very painful for those who have lost loved ones," states Ann Platt, director of social services at Wells Community Hospital. The bereavement support group provides an outlet for expressing feelings of grief in a supportive atmosphere. The public is welcome to attend. For questions or more information, please contact Ann Platt at 824-3210, Ext. 174.

JOURNEY TO BETHLEHEM

Come celebrate the joy of the Christmas season by stepping back in time to the scenes surrounding the birth of Christ. The Warren Church of Christ along with other area churches will be sponsoring The Journey to Bethlehem. This event will begin in the sanctuary of the Church of Christ at 302 North Wayne St in Warren. Groups will travel through six separate stations, each representing the actual events surrounding the Christmas narrative: King Herod's palace, the shepherd's encounter with the angels, the village of Bethlehem, the Wise men, the inn that had no room for Mary and Joseph, and finally the living Nativity. This journey will be offered to anyone and everyone, free of charge on Sunday, December 3 from 5:00 - 8:00 p.m. and Monday, December 4 from 6:00 - 8:00 p.m. Sever weather dates will be December 10 and 11 at the same times. Refreshments will be served following the event. For additional information please contact Stephen Leininger at 219/375-3022. Please come and join us in the celebration of the true miracle of Christmas.

MEMORIAL BOWS

Memorial Bows, courtesy of P.J.'s Flower & Gift Shop, may be purchased for $2.00 at P.J.'s or the Clerk-Treasurer's office for placement on the Community Christmas Tree at Town Hall.

KUDOS, KICKS & KARATS

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

November has been designated as National Family Caregivers Month, a time to honor our nation's caregivers. Aging and In-Home Services of Northeast Indiana, Inc. works with many of these caregiving families to assist them in caring for their loved ones. Many elderly persons and younger persons with disabilities are able to remain in their own homes, due to these caregivers. We ask you, members of their communities, to not only join in honoring their commitment, but in offering a helping hand, a special meal, or even a respite to allow them a little free time to get away.

According to the most recent National Long Term Care Survey, more than seven million persons are informal caregivers. Paid caregivers are the exception, not the rule, for the majority of older persons with disabilities. The role they play is critical. Caregivers dedicate an average of 20 hours per week to the provision of care. Caring for a person with a disability can be physically demanding, particularly for older caregivers. One-third of all caregivers describes their own health as fair to poor.

The Older Americans Act, which has just been re-authorized by Congress, calls for a new caregiver support initiative which includes respite care, adult day care, in-home assistance and other services. Once this is signed by the President, it will become the law.

At this time of year when we are all counting our blessings, we ask that you remember the caregivers of the elderly and disabled who help hold their families together.

Sincerely,
 Diann Shappell President

DEAR EDITOR,

Many of you may have heard that my family is moving back to our home state of Virginia. We are doing this in order to be closer to our extended families. It is with mixed emotions that we make this move. I have truly enjoyed serving the Warren community at my office. I have enjoyed meeting and getting to know all of my clients and their 4-legged companions. Warren is a very nice, friendly town, and we have enjoyed living here and made many friends here.

The office will continue to be served by the same staff and Dr. Holt and Dr. Jenkins from Marion. Goodbye, and I wish you the best.

Sincerely,
 Dr. Kevin Carter and family

HOW TO GIVE A GREAT HOLIDAY PARTY!

It's your party, but can you have as much fun as your guests will? You can if you plan well. Here's how to do it:

When you will have more than six or eight at your Thanksgiving, Christmas, or New Year's dinner, consider serving buffet style. Buffets are much easier than seated dinner parties, so they make more sense during the holiday season.

Party planning
 Lists come first, including guests, menu, wine, and beverages. Be somewhat flexible, and be sure at least half of the foods are easy to prepare.

- Order the turkey, meat, or fish a week in advance, and have the butcher do any special cleaning required. Pick them up the day before the party.

- Buy fruit and vegetables two days before the dinner or party. Then prepare any dishes that can be made ahead of time and frozen.

- When decorating, use simple, natural, seasonal items to decorate the buffet table. A cornucopia or basket of miniature squash, baby pumpkins, fruit candles, or pine branches works very well.

If you have a harvest theme, consider coordinating recipes. Serve pumpkin soup at Thanksgiving.

- A day before, organize pots and pans for recipes, and the serving dishes. Coordinate cooking times, and if you have a sit-down dinner,

OVER THE HILL

Smiles - I Wish we could use them for World Peace

Sidney, Australia was the location. Athletes from all over the world competed in the games. Men, women, even children competed. Some of those participating won and some lost. Some placed, others did not finish. That did not dampen the spirit of those attending. That did not lessen the enthusiasm of demeanor in the Olympic Village. Things went in harmony. Many persons from all walks of life came together and got along for those many days.

The thing that was awesome to me was the "miles of smiles!" When an event was over the winner was wearing a mile wide smile. The same participants of that event would also smile, even in defeat. They got along. They cared about each other, they had the bond of competition. They respected the ability of their fellow man or woman. The spirit of the Olympics was there, in the area of the events, in the entire country.

Oh, how I would like to put this to work in our everyday world. Crises here and there, fighting in the Middle East, embargoes on many countries, war and talk of war on many fronts. How I would like to see a picture of World Leaders with a glorified SMILE across their faces. Castro could take the cigar out of his mouth long enough to crack that face of his and lessen the blow of the embargo. Have you ever seen a smile on Slobodan Milosevic? Perhaps he could meet with his challenger and work things out. Arafat and his counterpart of Israel might try the smiling and stop the killing. At least it might be a first step, who knows.

Guess my whole point is this. If persons that compete in athletics, from every part of this world, can get along for 15 days in a structured environment such as these games, why won't it work in the world arena for peace and world stability. Many religions were represented at the games. They seemed to get along without fighting. Vacations were many, that did not cause any problems. The closing ceremony told the real story. Elbow to elbow they poured out to the field. Their faces were ablaze with smiles. Greeks, Russians, Americans, Cubans, Nigerians, Spaniards, those smile told it all. Many symbols were shown by those in the stands. I am most sure that all there would like to see world peace. They want the same things that everyone, in every corner of this world wants.

I am hereby promoting "Smile Negotiations." Those smiles from the 27th Olympiad. Can we put them to good use on the world scene? Hey, sports fans, I sure wish we could. Anyway, I said what I set out to do. Just wish I had the power to activate. See you next time.

ALMONDS HELP WIN THE BATTLE AGAINST

America's Number One Health Threat

(NAPSA)-Most people know that heart disease is the primary killer of men. But few are aware that this disease also claims the lives of nearly a quarter million American women every year-more than breast cancer, stroke and lung cancer combined. In fact, research shows that only one in five women knows that heart disease is her foremost health threat.

Fortunately, there are simple dietary changes that can dramatically lower cholesterol, one of the leading risk factors associated with heart disease.

New research conducted by Dr. Gene Spiller at the Health Studies Center in Los Altos, California found that men and women who consumed a handful of almonds each day reduced their total cholesterol by 20 to 30 points in four weeks.

"We are thrilled that the results are proving what we have known for many years: almonds are a powerhouse of nutrition and when added to the diet yield an impressive drop in cholesterol," says Dr. Spiller.

Three epidemiological studies have also found an association between coronary heart disease rates and nut consumption.

The recent evidence of the cardioprotective effect of nuts from Harvard University's Nurses' Health Study, involving 86,000 women, researchers found that women who eat more than five ounces of nuts, such as almonds, a week, have a 35 percent reduction in risk of coronary heart disease.

To support these findings, the Almond Board of California recently launched the Almond Cholesterol Challenge, a program aimed at encouraging Americans to dramatically lower their cholesterol and reduce their risk of heart disease.

The Challenge advocates a simple regimen: add approximately three ounces of almonds to a diet low in saturated fat for one month, and monitor cholesterol levels before and after.

Of those who participated in their Challenge, many experienced significant drops in their total LDL cholesterol levels, known as the "bad" cholesterol, and raised their HDL cholesterol, known as the "good" cholesterol. A number of participants wrote letters to share their positive experience and express their gratitude for helping women win the battle against heart disease. Danielle Pierce from Ripon, California, took the Challenge and was thrilled with her 58-point drop. "I took a proactive approach toward maintaining my own heart health by adding almonds to my daily diet. The four-week Challenge was easy, delicious and life changing!"

For more information on the Almond Cholesterol Challenge, log on to www.AlmondsAreIn.com. The site provides dietary guidelines, heart-healthy recipes, facts on cholesterol and heart disease, research studies and more.

ONE SIZE FITS ALL

(NAPSA)-Imagine an era of personalized medicine where treatments for diseases are tailored specifically to patients' genetic profiles. Despite all of our great technological advances, millions of people still suffer from common chronic diseases and conditions that have strong hereditary elements, and people suffering from these diseases are given "one-size-fits-all" therapies.

Because of our limited understanding of the role genetics plays in disease, most therapies treat the symptoms of the disease rather than its cause. In other words, modern medicine is still playing "catch up" to the diseases that it's trying to treat. DNA Sciences, Inc., the first organization bringing together geneticists, physicians and consumers to study and provide the crucial link between genetics and diseases, is working to take some of the guessing out of medicine and disease prevention.

Founded in 1998, DNA Sciences, Inc., is building on recent genetic discoveries to shine a light on new ways of diagnosing, treating and, possibly, preventing diseases. Using the findings of the Human Genome Project, The DNA Sciences Gene Trust ProjectSM will attempt to identify genetic variations of clinical significance among individuals.

The Gene Trust begins by building a database of information about thousands of different people who have chosen to volunteer their genetic profile, including family health histories, physical characteristics, information on the disease of study and how they respond to different treatments. The information in the database will then be analyzed by scientists for relevance to ongoing genetic research projects. As a result of the initial screening, some participants will be offered the chance to take part in more detailed studies. Consumers who meet screening criteria and are interested in becoming involved in the project can participate in confidential clinical trials.

The Gene Trust will study dozens of common diseases that are known to have significant genetic elements, including coronary heart disease, which is the largest killer of American men and women; asthma, which kills 14 Americans each day; diabetes, the seventh-leading cause of death; breast cancer, which will kill 40,800 women this year; multiple sclerosis, which affects 350,000 people in the United States; and Parkinson's disease, which strikes more than 1 million Americans.

The Gene Trust hopes to bring about personalized medicine, where "one-size-fits-all" therapies will be replaced by precise, customized therapies.

For example, out of the four major available treatments for breast cancer, only one or two may be effective for you based on your specific profile. Personalized therapies will eliminate the possibility of patients receiving treatments that are ineffective based on their genetic makeup.

Individuals who would like to volunteer for the Gene Trust can log onto www.dna.com or call 1-866-GENE TRUST. The information provided for the project will be confidential and anonymous. Your genetic profile will be assigned an anonymous number to insure maximum confidentiality.

Consumers also can receive comprehensive information about the role genetics plays in health and disease on the company's website. DNA.com provides up-to-date information regarding ways genetics can impact health, and hosts online events, during which consumers will have the chance to chat with world-renowned doctors and geneticists.

For more information or to volunteer, visit www.dna.com or call toll-free 1-866-GENE TRUST (866-436-3878).
