SW RECEIVES GRANT

Governor Eric Holcomb announced on Wednesday, August 19, school districts and institutions of higher education that would share in grant awards of $61 million for education connectivity, devices, and support for students and teachers through the Governor's Emergency Education Relief (GEER) fund. Southern Wells Community Schools was awarded one of the largest grant awards of the 184 individual school districts throughout the State of Indiana for a total of nearly three quarters of a million dollars: $714,653.00.

Funds awarded by the Governor's office will be used by Southern Wells Community Schools to support remote learning for students and their parents who lack internet availability and connectivity throughout the COVID-19 pandemic. No longer will lack of internet in student homes be a limited factor for student learning at Southern Wells Community Schools. Funds awarded will be used to solve a four-part solution: provide connectivity to students and teachers who need it in their homes, provide broader availability of WIFI throughout our greater community (WIFI locations stationed in city halls, community park pavilions, town libraries, and other community-based centers lacking service), provide a method to track student use of technology along with completion of tasks electronically, and provide training opportunities for Southern Wells parents so they become true partners in education with teachers in delivery and understanding of instruction if it shifts to home versus the brick and mortar school setting. All hotspots packaged with unlimited data and WIFI connectivity access points with antenna kits will filter through the school's existing filtering services of Sonic wall and Lightspeed content filters to help assure safe internet use for students in their homes.

Anticipated locations for WIFI connectivity access points include locations in communities served by the school district including Poneto, Liberty Center, Petroleum, Warren, Montpelier, and Pennville. School officials will be in contact with identified locations to assure an access point may be installed at their location to serve students for future needs.

Classroom teachers will design, record, and publish 20 short videos via YouTube for parent use and understanding of Google Classroom, Zoom, and other software used by students with their teachers. These videos, no longer than three minutes each, will be crafted to introduce the software from a parent's perspective, explain the operations of the software, work through use of the software as a student and teacher, and improve how teachers collect and receive information, feedback, or assignments from students.

Superintendent Sloan is excited to make the technology available to students and their parents soon. He notes that the award of these GEER funds to Southern Wells Community Schools will be a huge impact on instruction and student learning and achievement should schools need to move to a remote learning environment. For more information, contact Dr. Sloan's office at 765/728-5537.

Kudos, Kicks & Karats

The Indy 500 ran on Sunday. It was sad to see the stands all empty, but we know that it was for a reason. Over the years I really haven't watched the race, for one it made me mad when they told Al Unser Jr. he couldn't race in Indy no more along with other greats. But I'm sure like all other things it was the best for the Indy Racing Circuit.

Lots of fun things happened this past weekend with the Salamonie Summer Festival. We had a great car, truck and bike show below the Civic Center. John brought the Jeep down all shined up and looking pretty. Once I got the tar off the side of it, she looked a lot better. But that's hot Indiana summers for you. Thank you Ron Bell and family for the work in making the show a great success.

Along with the show there was some neat inflatables for the kids and the bicycles and putting greens for your entertainment. Thanks to Cindy Fleeger for heading up the Family Fun Freeway. Then the big trucks showed up for the Touch A Truck event. Lots of neat trucks showed up from a grain hauler to emergency vehicles to trucks and National Guard. Thanks Donna Beavans for the great work. Then the Nick Harless Band finished off the evening for the entertainment. They sounded great from my house.

The girls and I put on a few rounds of Family Feud in the auditorium. Four teams duked it out with the Yoder family taking home the prizes. Thank you to all that participated and a big thank you to our sponsors. Golfo di Napoli, Dollar General, Sonlight Bakery and the Wagon Wheel for your donations for us to pull this off. Another organization that has worked with us for the past couple of years is Historic Warren. They have been our sponsor for the Our Caps Your Cause by Prairie Farms as a fundraiser for all of our events.

We thank you for allowing us to use your 401(c) 3 for our efforts. Heritage Pointe of Warren has been our source for the Caps for Causes and we appreciate them for allowing us to take the stickers on top of the gallons of milk they use.

We have collected several thousands of stickers to earn money to bring you events at the festival. We have earned over $400.00 in pretty much free money. You just cant pass up free money and with very little work. So again thank you all for supporting our events, you'll never know how much it means to us.

NEW THERAPY PROGRAM EMPOWERS BREAST CANCER SURVIVORS.

When a person is diagnosed with breast cancer, it's the beginning of a journey. And while each individual's journey is unique to them, exercise can provide significant benefits in recovery and wellness regardless of the type of breast cancer involved.

In a collaborative effort with the Parkview Cancer Institute's Breast Care Team, Parkview Huntington Hospital's (PHH) Holly D. Sale Rehab and Wellness Center is now offering breast cancer survivors an exercise program specifically designed to alleviate some side effects of cancer treatment. Strength After Breast Cancer, or Strength ABC, is a targeted effort to counteract or prevent lymphedema, an uncomfortable and debilitating condition experienced by many survivors.

"Breast cancer-related lymphedema after surgery and radiation can be devastating for our patients," said Linda Han, MD, Parkview Cancer Institute. "This Strength ABC program not only addresses early treatment that can reverse lymphedema, but more importantly, provides simple and effective interventions to prevent this potential complication from ever occurring. We are fortunate to have a great prevention program led by our certified lymphedema specialists that can significantly improve the lives of our cancer patients."

Dr. Han has worked with Lynn Merrill, certified lymphedema specialist at PHH, and Carol Molitor, certified lymphedema specialist at Parkview Regional Medical Center, to help implement the program, and will refer her patients for participation. Both experienced physical therapists are already very familiar with the frustrations of lymphedema patients, and have received additional certification to provide this program.

"It's very exciting to be able to offer Strength ABC here in Huntington," said Merrill, who's been providing expert guidance for physical therapy patients at PHH for nine years, and lymphedema care for four years. "We've designed it to equip patients with a toolkit of exercises they can adapt to their own needs. This is going to help a lot of people take charge of their well-being and feel better about themselves."

According to Merrill, 35 to 58 percent of breast cancer survivors develop arm or shoulder issues as a result of surgery to remove cancerous tissue and lymph nodes, or from radiation treatments. These issues include stiffness of the shoulder, loss of strength, rotator cuff problems, difficulty reaching overhead and behind the back, and lymphedema, which involves swelling, pain and discomfort of the hand, arm, breast or trunk. Strength ABC can help prevent and overcome these frustrating conditions, which affect both women and men.

"Men can get breast cancer, too," Merrill noted. "It's less common, but it can still profoundly affect their lives. We want them to know this program isn't just for women who've had breast cancer."

Strength ABC empowers breast cancer survivors to reduce their risk of developing lymphedema, reduce worsening of lymphedema, and improve function of the arm. The goal is early intervention, because the earlier lymphedema is addressed, the better the outcome.

"Lymphedema patients' lives are complicated by having to apply and reapply compression wraps to keep fluid from accumulating in the affected area," said Merrill. "Daily activities are made so much harder by stiffness, pain, and loss of strength and range of motion. Even for people who are determined not to let these obstacles stop them, their quality of life is impacted. This program can make such a difference for them."

The Strength ABC program is straightforward. In Huntington, the patient makes an appointment for a physical therapy evaluation with Merrill. After the evaluation is completed, Merrill and the patient have an educational session on lymphedema: what it is, signs and symptoms, how it's prevented, and how it's treated. Then the patient begins learning the exercises, working one-on-one with Merrill, typically in four sessions.

The sessions are spaced one to two weeks apart so patients can go home and try the customized exercises. Each week involves learning new exercises and how to advance them until the full progressive weightlifting program is covered. Once patients are comfortable with the home program, they graduate and continue the exercises on their own. If at any time they have difficulty or concerns, they can return to physical therapy for additional assistance.

"Learning proper form and weight progression for each exercise gives patients the flexibility to choose how they'd like to work out," said Merrill. "They can keep exercising at home with hand weights or, if they prefer going to a gym or fitness club, they can use free weights or weight machines in that type of setting."

Patients who have gone through the Strength ABC program experience these benefits: reduced onset or reduced worsening of lymphedema, reduced arm dysfunction, improved strength and energy, reduced body fat, improved body image and general reduction in side effects of cancer treatment.

An added benefit is that exercise is associated with a reduced recurrence of cancer.

"A cancer diagnosis, treatment and side effects can really turn people's lives upside down," said Juli Johnson, president of PHH. "We wanted to offer this follow-up care locally so patients don't have to travel far for the therapy sessions and so they have a resource close by as they work on regaining strength and a sense of well-being. Lynn will take great care of them."

Any breast cancer survivor -- with or without lymphedema -- is eligible for the Strength ABC program, regardless of whether their treatment occurred recently or years ago. Patients can self-refer; no physician referral is needed.

Strength ABC is covered by insurance, depending on the carrier, under the same rules as physical therapy treatment. Patients pay co-pays or deductibles according to their insurance plans.

Due to COVID-19 precautions, patients should remember to wear a mask during their appointments.

To schedule an evaluation, or for more information on the program, call the PHH rehab team at 260-355-3240.

A TRIP TO QUEBEC DAY 2

by Larry Ryan

The bus rolled out of Toronto at 8:30am and headed towards Montreal. Again we entered Highway # 401 east where the bus driver immediately slowed the vehicle to a stop-and-go situation. The slowdown lasted for 1 and 1/2 hours for an accident up ahead. It gave me time to write legibly for a change. Somebody must have been in too much of a hurry to get to work and that mishap caused other motorists to be scorched by their boss's wrath for being late on the job. I am glad that I'm retired!

The bus left the divided highway at Mallorytown, ON for us passengers to attend to lunch. After much effort I finally found that town on the map. We had passed Oshawa, Port Hope, Belleville, Kingston, and Gananoque before putting down anchor. I just tossed that word in there since we were now adjacent to the St. Lawrence River! Our lunch menu included: Yes, you guessed it—peanut butter sandwiches again. I am certainly glad that I don't have a peanut allergy. That jar followed us for two days.

This lunch stop location was very close to 1000 Island National Park. Later, there will be more on that geographic location. We resumed our travel towards Montreal at 2pm. The bus refused to exit at Brockville, Spring Falls, Ottawa, Cornwall, and Dalhousie Mills. During all this afternoon traveling, we could see the state of New York across the St. Lawrence River if you stood up and stretched your neck. We were entertained by the continuous road work today.

Our overnight stay in Montreal was at the LeCentre Sheraton Hotel. We were in the French speaking, Quebec Province now. Again, I do not remember where or what we had for dinner, but it was not peanut butter!

The tour group is scheduled for a tour of Montreal tomorrow morning. So, we need to let our cell phone's camera section get a good night's rest. Our human bodies need some also. Good Night!

100 YEARS OF SUFFRAGE: HOW THE ALA CONTINUES TO EMPOWER FEMALE VOTERS

(BPT) - It came down to one vote. One hundred years ago, on Aug. 18, 1920, the 19th Amendment was ratified with the vote of a young Tennessee senator - breaking a tie to tip the scales. American women had won the long, hard-fought right to vote. After a 70-year movement and a four-year war, their voices were being heard across the country. On the 100th anniversary of this major accomplishment, we take note of how our country's past resembles its present as we mobilize toward a better future.

Just like this year, 1920 was a time of renewal in our nation. The end of World War I ushered in a new chapter of American life and a reinvigoration of the women's suffrage movement. Throughout the war, women had driven ambulances across battlefields, stitched up wounded soldiers, sewn surgical masks and operated munitions factories. Over 9

SATTERTHWAITE

Chase Cooper Satterthwaite, 17, of Huntington, IN, passed away on Saturday, August 22, at 11:40 a.m., surrounded by his family. He fought many hard battles over the past five years and was exceptionally strong and brave.

Chase was born on December 17, 2002, in Fort Wayne, IN, to Rodney E. and Tiffany M. (Stetzel) Satterthwaite.

Chase attended Northwest Elementary, Crestview Middle School and Huntington North High School. He enjoyed playing video games and soccer. He loved nature and would have had a pet penguin or two if allowed. Chase has a natural gift for music and could play the violin, cello, drums and piano. Chase has a kind heart and fantastically wicked sense of humor. He was always thinking outside of the box and was one heck of an intelligent kid. This world is going to be missing one of the greatest there ever was.

Chase loved his family and friends to the moon and back. He was the best brother anyone could ever ask for.

He will be missed by his special sidekick, Willow.

Chase went to heaven, a far better place, before his parents Rod and Tiffany, his brothers, Mason and Parker and his grandparents, Joyce Satterthwaite and Mike Stetzel. His Grandma Mary Stetzel and Grandpa Rex Satterthwaite preceded him in death.

A Celebration of Chase's life will be held on Saturday, August 29, 2020, from 6:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus, 2817 Theater Avenue, Huntington, IN 46750. Please come with up-lifted hearts and happy memories to share. We ask that people be considerate of any Covid regulations that might be in place and of course wear orange (Chase's favorite color).

A private graveside will take place at Mt. Hope Cemetery, Huntington, IN.

Instead of flowers or gifts please consider a donation to the National Leiomyosarcoma Foundation in Chase's honor; Cancer Services of Huntington County; Riley Children's Foundation; or any animal organization of your choice. Thank you for all the love and support. Memorials can be sent in care of McElhaney-Hart Funeral Home, 715 N. Jefferson Street, Huntington, IN 46750.

McElhaney-Hart Funeral Home, 715 N. Jefferson St., Huntington, IN, is in charge of arrangements.

million American women participated in the war effort. This swell of patriotic support showcased the valuable role every American plays in our democracy - regardless of gender. As American life shifted back to its pre-war reality, it became clear that women didn't have enough opportunities to engage in government and express their patriotism.

It was during this same time in the wake of WWI that the American Legion Auxiliary (ALA) was founded, on Nov. 10, 1919, providing women with a forum to support their veteran spouses and promote the patriotism that had been so essential to them during the war. Less than a year later, in August 1920, the 19th amendment was ratified and women were given the right to officially and fully participate in our democracy by voting.

One hundred years later, women play an important role in the American political process, and the ALA continues to help young women learn about the way our government runs and the value of their vote. ALA Girls Nation, hosted annually, teaches young women about the democratic process through a week-long, immersive learning experience in Washington, D.C. Participants learn about the power of being an engaged citizen by representing their own states in a mock government as they campaign for political office, craft and debate the passage of legislation, and meet with their real-life counterparts on Capitol Hill. This invaluable program is where young women get to put their patriotism and political aspirations into action and experience a real-world look at the democracy they contribute to daily. To learn more about ALA Girls Nation, or any other American Legion Auxiliary program, visit www.ALAforVeterans.org.

Every moment that led to a woman's right to vote - from the first woman to step up and join the war effort to that final vote being cast by a 23-year-old senator - is a testament to fighting for our freedoms. We celebrate and honor veterans by utilizing the freedoms they protect and participating in our democracy. As we reach the 100th anniversary of women's suffrage, we reflect on this monumental step toward equality. The best way to show thanks for our country and the people who fought for it is to exercise our right to vote.

HOW TO STAY SAFE DURING HOME DIY PROJECTS

Protect yourself from heat-related illnesses during home DIY projects (BPT) - Quarantine and social distancing means spending more time at home. This has inspired renewed interest in home improvement and DIY projects. While warm-weather months are ideal for many projects, they also can bring high temperatures and dangerous heat.

Heat-related illnesses include heat stroke, heat exhaustion, heat cramps, sunburn and heat rash. In extreme cases, overexposure to heat can cause death. According to the National Weather Service, heat causes the greatest number of weather-related injuries each year. In fact, an average of 138 people have died annually due to heat over the last 30 years.

In addition to making a supply list, gathering tools and researching steps to ensure your project is a success, be sure to take heat safety measures as well. Here are some tips for staying safe and cool while tackling home improvements in hot conditions:

Be sun smart
Being in direct sunlight not only heats your body faster due to solar radiation, but it's a risk for sunburn. When working on projects, choosing a shaded spot is optimal. If starting in the early morning, be sure to account for sun position within your working time. Set up umbrellas and other coverings ahead of getting started so you won't be tempted to work through the hot overhead sun. Additionally, remember to wear sunscreen with SPF 30 or higher and to reapply every few hours. Choosing light, airy cotton clothing that covers the arms and legs is an easy way to protect from the sun and keep you cooler.

Use portable evaporative coolers
Outdoor spaces like patios, decks, garages or sheds can get extremely hot when you're just relaxing, let alone working on projects. To stay cool outdoors, consider a Portacool portable evaporative cooler that generates cooling relief by using water and the ambient air to provide cooling through natural evaporation. This evaporation is akin to the cooling sensation you feel when you get out of a pool. It works where traditional air conditioning cannot, especially outdoors, on patios or in spaces with open doors such as garages, sheds and barns. These energy efficient coolers can cool spaces ranging from 300 to 4,250 square feet. Learn more at portacool.com.

Sometimes you get so focused on a project you don't realize you have not hydrated enough or have pushed yourself too far until it's too late and you feel sick. That's why prioritizing regular breaks is essential. Consider a work/rest schedule. For example, when doing moderate work at 100 degrees, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends you should work for 45 minutes and then take a 15-minute break. Use this time to drink extra water to stay hydrated. Above all, always listen to your body. If you feel dizzy or sick, don't wait to take a break.

Check the forecast Before diving into a project, check the weather forecast first. You want to do more than just avoid rain; you want to plan work to coincide with cooler temperatures. That may mean waiting a few days or more if there's a heat wave, but your health (and likely productivity) will benefit. In addition, check the heat index expected when you work and plan around the hottest times of the day. Try to work earlier in the morning when it's cooler and your energy is fresh. If you can't finish the project before the heat peaks, take a break and finish when the sun goes down or the next morning.

It's smart to jump on the DIY wave and add important home improvements to boost your home's livability and value. While you're working hard to reach your goals, consider these heat safety steps to stay comfortable and healthy.

5 HOME SECURITY TIPS FOR NATIONAL PREPAREDNESS MONTH

(BPT) - As many regions approach peak hurricane season - and others face dangerous wildfire and flooding periods of the year - it's imperative to take proactive steps to ensure loved ones and irreplaceable assets stay protected, even in the most unexpected circumstances.

"Preparedness" has taken on a new meaning this year amid a global pandemic and a recovering economy, making it more important than ever to plan ahead and invest in dependable solutions.

"In our line of work, we have to be prepared for disasters every day," said Brandon Schmidt, chief of Rainbow Volunteer Fire Company, located in White Oak, Pennsylvania. RVFC was one of the 1,000 recipients that received a complimentary Bluetooth® lock box as part of Master Lock's latest donation initiative benefiting healthcare workers, first responders and small business owners in May 2020.

"Part of being prepared is using products you know you can trust in case of an unexpected emergency, which is especially important during these uncertain times."

Recent extreme weather events have already led many experts to forecast more potentially dangerous storms on a more frequent basis. In April alone, 351 tornadoes were recorded throughout the country, many of the worst being in Tennessee. Additionally, a recent NOAA study predicted more tropical storms throughout 2020 as a result of the Atlantic Ocean's warmer-than-normal temps and record-setting heat - something the East Coast has already experienced with the recent Hurricane Isaias.

With National Preparedness Month in September, The Master Lock Company is sharing the following advice to help people prepare for such disasters, while safeguarding everything worth protecting.

1. Plan to plan ahead. Think through what your family and household may need in an emergency, and be proactive in preparing food, water and medical supplies. Importantly, dedicate extra time to the process of gathering supplies, as access to resources is often limited in advance of a storm, as seen with some retailers recently struggling to keep up with product demand during the pandemic. If shopping in-store is your only option, take proper sanitary precautions when running essential errands.

2. Invest in a lock box. A lock box can be a reliable household security option should friends or family need access into the home during an emergency or if wellness checks need to be conducted for a loved one. To help securely manage home access and minimize physical contact with the device, consider battery-powered options like the Master Lock® Portable Bluetooth® Lock Box or the Master Lock® Wall-Mount Bluetooth® Lock Box, which function via smartphone or a personal code.

3. Secure valuable and irreplaceable belongings. Keeping your most important documents, photos, valuables and even PPE in a protected location can become critical during a disaster, especially if you must quickly evacuate during a flood or fire. Consider preparing an emergency "go kit" containing crucial items that can be permanently stored in a portable fire- and water-protected safe like the Sentry®Safe Fire/Water Chest. The Sentry®Safe Combination Fire/Water Safe is also a great option for securing any non-essential items you may not be able to take with you in an emergency, but still have immense monetary or sentimental value.

4. Brace your home. Ensure trees are properly trimmed and that you're maintaining adequate outdoor storage to secure lawn furniture and other loose items. For added security, consider locking sheds using Master Lock's Weather Resistant Padlocks. Homeowners living in vulnerable coastal areas should also consider installing hurricane windows or shutters to protect windows against high winds and storm debris.

5. Consider investing in secure storage. Move expensive artwork, antiques, wine, cars and/or other possessions to a temperature-controlled, generator-protected storage facility built for that purpose. These spaces are best secured with a durable, cut-resistant padlock.

In today's environment, it's become critical to incorporate disaster precautions into your regular preparedness plans. By understanding what kind of disasters are common in your area, and by having emergency plans to ensure the protection of loved ones and belongings, families can gain peace of mind even in times of uncertainty.

No matter the disaster, families can count on The Master Lock Company for durable and reliable solutions for everything worth protecting. For more information about The Master Lock Company's disaster preparedness security products, visit www.masterlock.com/prepared.
