THANKS CLINT

On September 25th 2004 the Warren community lost an energetic community leader and so much more. Besides Clint Glessner's active involvement with the Warren Chamber, Salamonie Summer Festival, Hunter Education Instructor, business owner, avid sportsman, HUGE Purdue fan and graduate, we found out that Clint held a position on the Board of Directors for the Scottish Rite Learning center for Dyslexia in Ft Wayne.

Two years ago our youngest son was put on the waiting list for the Learning Center; he was number 88 on a list of children that had an official diagnosis by a neurophysiologist as having dyslexia. In July of this year a position became available for our son at the age of 15.

We are very grateful to Clint for all of his involvement and to his family for knowing how important these interests were to him. We found out from Julia, Clint's wife, that one of Clint's pet projects on the Learning Center board was the upcoming dinner & concert at the Scottish Rite on Oct 15, 2004 with the Purdue Glee Club (Clint was a member of the Glee Club while he attended Purdue). The proceeds from the dinner & concert will go to support the Scottish Rite Learning Center for Dyslexia. Anyone interested in tickets can call the Scottish Rite ticket office at 877- 480-8020

Two years ago we were struggling to find help for both our youngest and our oldest son. Our oldest quit College after 4 1/2 years because he could not complete the foreign language requirement to get his bachelors degree in Computer Science at Purdue. Even though he was diagnosed as being dyslexic he was denied accommodations twice by Adaptive Services (Warning: colleges do not have to follow the same rules as K-12 schools do regarding learning disability accommodations!). All he needed to graduate was 2 semesters of foreign language. He chose not to go back after Christmas 2002 knowing he would not be able to pass the required courses. 3 weeks into the January term the professors on the board for the School of Science meet and granted him a waiver to take alternate classes and he started back to Purdue 3 weeks late and Graduated in August of 2003. He is now employed as a software engineer in California and working on cell phone image-recognition software and recently spent a week in Japan working on that project. He is still dyslexic and always will be. He can not read or speak German but he knows more about computer languages than most people could learn in a lifetime. I wish the Learning Center had been there for him but I'm glad it is there now!

Thanks Clint!

DEAR EDITOR,

October is usually filled with haunted houses and hay rides, scary masks and trick-or-treating. But Halloween and autumn aren't the only things to be aware of during the month of October. It is also National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. This is a time to show your support for finding a cure for this deadly disease and also to increase your awareness of the dangers of breast cancer. In addition to the costumes that you usually see during this time of year, I'm sure you will see an increasing number of people donning pink clothing or sporting pink breast cancer ribbon pins.

WEB SITE FOR NICU

Do you know someone who has had a premature baby? The March of Dimes has a new way to help those who have been through it and those who are in the middle of the battle right now.

The March of Dimes is thrilled to announce a new Web site developed for parents of babies who experience the NICU. Our new online community is a "safe-harbor" for families to gather online, share their stories and help each other cope with the challenges of having a premature child and experiencing the NICU.

The March of Dimes announces the launch of: www.marchofdimes.com/share - an interactive section of our Web site featuring message boards, story sharing, polls, and interactive downloads. This site is a fantastic resource as it connects those affected by our mission directly to each other!

The more that people talk about Prematurity and the NICU experience, the more likely we'll be able to achieve our mission goals—helping babies and families and fighting prematurity. With permission of site users, it is our intention to communicate with them on a fairly regular basis. We will provide them with important March of Dimes campaign and Foundation updates, including volunteer opportunities. We expect that many of the site users are directly affected by prematurity, and that they will be excited and willing to help us achieve our campaign goals—finding the causes and effective treatments for prematurity so that no baby is born fighting for its life and no family has to endure their battle. Visit www.marchofdimes.com/share today and spread the word!

LAUNCHES NEW TECHNOLOGY

When emergency health care is needed, speed is of top importance. No patient or family member wants to wait while a nurse struggles with paperwork or while a doctor waits for a patient's chart to arrive.

On September 29, Bluffton Regional Medical Center became the first hospital in Indiana to implement the new T-System EV, a computer-based charting system. During Emergency Department visits, this system automatically brings up the appropriate chart templates for a nurse to complete based on a patient's disease or condition. The data is networked to other computers so that an old chart (if already on the T-System) can be accessed instantly. With the full implementation of the T-System EV, patients who come to Bluffton Regional's Emergency Department can anticipate a shorter Emergency Department visit.

Another feature of the T-System is the ability to electronically print items that have traditionally been handwritten in the Emergency Department. Prescriptions and discharge instructions may be printed directly from the system and specifically for the individual patient. The printouts will reduce confusion that can be caused by illegible handwriting.

"The system will allow us to chart more efficiently, accurately and thoroughly," said Derrick Williams, RN, Emergency Department Manager. "It is designed to expedite the recording of information, thereby freeing the nurse to provide more hands-on care."

Bluffton Regional has also purchased 10 new computers to be placed in each room in the Emergency Department. These new computers allow the nurse to do bedside assessment and documentation, as well as order initial testing according to the attending physician's.

WOMEN'S SEMINAR

Sometimes women and hormones can seem like enemies. But the hormones can be controlled. To help area women learn to manage hormones using good nutrition, Bluffton Regional Medical Center is presenting a free seminar, "Good Nutrition for Happy Hormones." The seminar will be Thursday, October 21 at 6:30 p.m.

Wanda Cullison, and registered and certified dietician, will be the featured speaker for the event. Cullison became a dietitian after observing her mother's successful battle with cancer using prayer, nutrition and complementary medicine approaches. She completed her undergraduate work at Purdue University in Clinical Dietetics. In her current position at a community hospital, she speaks extensively to the public on the importance of nutrition in the prevention and treatment of disease.

Bluffton Regional's Women's Seminars are held annually for all area women at no cost. To reserve a seat for the event, call the dedicated reservation line at (260) 824-2001, ext. 7004, or toll free (888) 919-3557.

HOPE TO "CUTTERS"

A 16-year-old girl huddles in the quiet of her bedroom late at night. The door to her room is securely shut, closing her off from the chaotic world outside: her parents' separation, her mom's constant nagging about her eating habits, the comment best-friend Samantha made after school. The pressure inside her has been building all day.

Fingering fresh scars on her upper left arm, she lifts a single razor blade to her skin, sinking the blade carefully to the right depth. With the flow of blood and rush of pain, she finally feels relief.

Self-injury (i.e. mutilation), or "cutting" as it is commonly called, is a growing phenomenon in which teens attempt to cope with intense emotional feelings by inflicting injury on their bodies as a way to express and release the emotions they are experiencing. Self-injury can include cutting, carving, burning, hair-pulling, and other forms of damage to the body.

Mary Adams, a Licensed Mental Health Counselor from Indianapolis, will be presenting a workshop about self-injury titled "Cutting Pain" at the Day of Healing: A Personal Growth Conference, October 30, at the Honeywell Center, Wabash. During the workshop she will address the issue from both the point of view of the self-mutilator and those who are in relationship with individuals caught in this oppressive cycle.

Current statistics estimate that approximately 1 percent of the U.S. population—adolescent and adult—practices self-injury in its various forms.

There are two main triggers that cause self-injurers to engage in this type of behavior, according to Adams. "Cutting is driven by internal emotions that kids have no release for," Adams states. "When they cut, they feel like emotion is flowing out. As the blood flows, feelings flow."

"The other reason they cut," she adds, "is that they feel numbed out. When they cut themselves, they still feel alive. When they feel pain, at least they still feel alive."

Adams, whose practice is based out of Central Christian Church, Indianapolis, finds that self-injury is an appealing coping behavior for teenagers who would not consider turning to other forms of unhealthy behavior patterns. "One of the reasons Christian kids turn to cutting is because they have elected not to get involved in drugs, alcohol, or sex, so they are looking for a way to vent what is inside them," she says.

However, like other forms of unhealthy coping behaviors, cutting is addictive. And as time goes by the person involved in the behavior may need greater and greater amounts of pain to receive the same chemical "rush" to the brain, which means increasing the danger of causing serious, permanent damage to their bodies, or possibly even death. Fortunately, there is hope for those who seek intervention, and with the help of a licensed counselor and a support system, self-injurers can break their cutting addiction by finding alternative ways to express the emotions they are feeling.

Adams offers the following signs as possible indications that a teen may be involved in self-injury behavior:

1. Wearing long-sleeve shirts and long pants all the time, even in hot weather. Serious cutters will do anything to cover up their scars, and they usually start to cut on body parts that can be covered up with clothing.

2. Withdrawing and spending excessive amounts of time in their rooms by themselves. An hour or two by themselves in their rooms is not unusual, but not coming out for meals is a sign that they are withdrawing.

3. Talking a lot about death.

4. Statements like "Nobody listens to me." Or "Nobody knows I'm alive." These statements are often said by a lot of teenagers who aren't self-mutilators, but it's always better to check it out and keep communicating than to find out too late that a child is involved in this behavior.

Adams's workshop is part of the Smart Parenting Track at the one-day conference, which also includes the following workshops for parents: "ADHD: Now and Then," Dr. Gregory Sowles, Licensed Neuropsychologist, Family Care Center, Fort Wayne; "Helping Children Cope with Divorce," Laura Kirchhofer, Child and Adolescent Outpatient Therapist, Howard Regional Health Systems, Kokomo; "Too Much, Too Soon...Over-Indulged Children: Dealing with At-Risk Youth and Their Enabling Parents," Ann Presnall, Licensed Clinical Social Worker, Bowen Center, Wabash; "Adolescence and Sexual Addiction: Moving Boys to Men," Dr. Gregory Sowles; "Helping Parents Cope When Their Child Has Been Sexually Abused," Laura Michmerhuizen, Licensed Mental Health Counselor, Family Care Center, Fort Wayne.

The registration fee for the Day of Healing is $25, which includes keynote speaker Dr. Dan Allender (author, licensed psychologist) and workshops by more than 20 professional counselors and educators. Breast cancer is the most common cancer found among women. According to the World Health Organization, more than 1.2 million people will be diagnosed with breast cancer this year worldwide. It is estimated that 40,110 women will die from breast cancer in the United States this year. It is for this reason two people joined forces in 1985 and decided to promote early detection and mammograms. Thus, National Breast Cancer Awareness Month was born.

Throughout the month of October, many events will be taking place to promote breast cancer awareness starting with Fri., Oct. 8, which is National Wear Denim Day. Your work or organization can participate in this fundraising event by donating $5 per person to wear jeans on this day. For more information about Denim Day, please visit the website at www.denimday.com. In addition, Fri., Oct. 15 is National Mammography Day. This is a day where radiologists provide discounted or free screening mammograms. To find a participating clinic or radiologists in your county, please call the American Cancer Society at 1-800-227-2345.

I strongly urge the citizens of Senate District 43 to participate in National Breast Cancer Awareness Month. An estimated 4,800 new breast cancer cases were diagnosed in Indiana during 2004. This year also saw almost 1,000 resulting deaths throughout our state. Knowing the symptoms and early detection are the best way to defeat this cancer. If you have any questions about this sometimes deadly disease, please contact your doctor.

Sincerely,
State Senator Gary Dillon
