KUDOS, KICKS & KARATS

THE UPTOWN GARDENER by Ruth Herring

Greetings to everyone and no doubt you are enjoying this beautiful fall weather. Today I started cleaning out flower beds to give more room for the fall mums that seem to be lost in some of the annuals that were looking very much on the last bloom. I had started some seeds last spring when I was fighting cabin fever. All I had was some dwarf marigold seeds and they flourished very well. I planted them at planting time and I could not believe how large they had gotten, must be thanks to the manure tea I fed them. They became huge bushes with no doubt hundred or more blooms on each plant. Commercial fertilizers never did that well.

Now I need to plan where I can plant 75 tulip bulbs. For my birthday my brother rather than send flowers sent bulbs, guess he thought I needed some exercise by planting them. Bless his little heart he didn't offer to come up from Texas and help. Maybe that was his sneaky way of getting back at me for devilish things I did to him over the years; but I am sure come spring I will certainly enjoy them blooming and forgiving him for the hard work I had to do getting them in the ground.

Last issue of the Uptown Gardener Treva was gracious to help me out with the article and thank you for doing it on such short notice and you can look forward to her article next time which she is going to tell stories that explain why a certain group of mothers in town have this beautiful grey hair. All I can say she just better have a good recipe following it to justify for us ladies turning grey. Here is my favorite recipe for pumpkin pie which takes a bit more time but worth it.

1 1/2 cup cooked pumpkin or canned, 1/4 cup white corn syrup, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup evaporated milk, 2 tablespoon butter, 1/2 cup hot milk, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/4 teaspoon ginger 1/8 teaspoon cloves 1 unbaked pie shell.

Combine pumpkin, corn syrup, eggs and evaporated milk, mixing well.

Heat milk add butter combine brown sugar, salt and spices add all ingredients together and pour into the pie shell, bake in hot over 425 for 15 minutes reduce heat and bake 35 minutes longer or until a knife is inserted in center and comes out clean.

Enjoy and also enjoy the beauty in the coloring of the trees. I certainly plan to.

COUNCIL NOTES

On Wednesday evening, September 17, the Van Buren Town Council met at 7 p.m. in the council room at Town Hall. The meeting was conducted by president Marvin Surber. All in attendance repeated the Pledge to the American Flag.

Two gentlemen from the Central Christian Church were in attendance. They said that when it rains water gets in the basement of the church. They asked if Council could do anything about the situation. Council said they would check it out in an effort to find the cause.

Two Ordinances were submitted to Council. Ordinance 3-2014 for new water rates and Ordinance 4-2014 for sewer rates. The new rates are scheduled to go into effect on February 1, 2015.

On October 15 a public meeting will be held concerning the rates. Citizens are urged to attend this meeting.

Officer Pat Collins said one person is still not in compliance for junk and abandoned vehicles.

The Department has received new radar units. It is suggested everyone watch their speed.

Donnie Plummer reported there is a need to make improvements to water filters at the water plant. He submitted two quotes, one for $42,000 and one for $38,000.

Because of a couple of places flooding near the school, storm drains are being cleaned.

The next Council meeting will be October 1 at 7 p.m. At 6 p.m. there will be a budget hearing.

There is a meeting scheduled for October 15 on water rates.

BB News

Monday morning the Bargain Basement got a message that someone had left a large donation outside the BB. We got there and found about 15 cardboard boxes (they do not stand up well in heavy dew and rain). When we glanced through the boxes we saw lots of old faded and worn magazines dating back as far as the '80s and old movies taped over with TV shows, etc.

One of the volunteers filled her truck and took them home to sort through - there was very little we could sell at the BB.

We have two messages to the people who don't seem to worry about their donations being helpful. We do not come in during the week since we finally have a great crew who can handle the donations over Friday and Saturday. Second, Warren has their own recycling dumpsters right here in Warren. Please don't add more to our volunteer job description - we cannot keep taking care of your recyclables.

When something like this happens, again and again, I think of some organizations that have a sign that says, "We will not accept donations left outside - make your donation count!" We would never go that far, but I can see why they thought of it.

Remember we volunteers are not Spring Chickens.

Thank you for your support!

CONVENTION

Alpha Zeta Chapter members attend Delta Kappa Gamma Society International Convention that celebrated a strong past and vibrant future.

Members from Huntington, Wabash and Whitley Counties joined with woman educators from around the world in Indianapolis, July 28 - August 1, 2014. Delta Kappa Gamma Society is a professional honor society for women educators with more than 81,000 members. Established in 17 member countries around the world, the Society defines its mission as promoting professional and personal growth of women educators and excellence in education.

The five-day event included keynote speaker Sarah Sladek, founder and CEO of XYZ University, and author of The End of Membership as We Know It and her newly released book, Knowing Y: Engage the Next Generation Now. Sladek offered DKG members effective steps in attracting and retaining multigenerational members. This session was live streamed for members not in attendance to view.

Other DKG convention speakers included award-winning Ron Rosenberg, who helped attendees double their memory, and Dr. Ellen Kennedy, executive director of World Without Genocide, who graphically increased the participant's understanding of devastating effects of human trafficking.

More than 100 workshops provided participants with cutting edge knowledge on Common Core Standards, classroom strategies, legislative advocacy, technology, strengthening chapters, secrets of survival, culturally responsive pedagogy, portals of change and much more.

Numerous scholarships were awarded, recent doctoral graduates were recognized.

Three DKG Excellence in Media Awards were presented to: Lloyd Wright CEO of WFYI, public broadcasting system station in Indianapolis; Dr. Vic Smith, founder of the Indiana Coalition for Public Education for his ICPE Notes and Vic's Statehouse Notes distributed by social media; and Krystal Shetler, for the Bedford Times-Mail for its commitment to educational coverage both locally and statewide.

Indiana State Superintendent of Public Instruction Glenda Ritz was recognized as a Friend of Education.

The honor organization of key women educators, DKG, was formed in Austin, Texas, on May 11, 1929 by Dr. Annie Webb Blanton from a nucleus of 12 founders representing all levels of education, kindergarten through university.

Those Alpha Zeta members attending from Huntington County were Carol Winterholter, Carol Herzog, Karen Kinney and Barb Buroker.

CAREGIVER SUPPORT

Paula Marquardt sees the positive change in caregivers after they attend just a few of the support group meetings she facilitates. The most important change she sees is after caregivers realize they are not alone, she said. They have hope.

Many go to their first meeting after becoming overwhelmed with caring for a loved one with Alzheimer's disease or another form of dementia, she said. The changes that occur with the progression of the disease range from a loss of intellectual function, including the ability to remember, to the loss of control over bodily functions.

"You don't sleep. You're not eating right. You have anxiety all of the time," she said. "I remember one man who, when he finally came to a meeting, would go outdoors and sit in his car and cry," said Marquardt, who is the Auguste's Cottage memory care facilitator at Markle Health and Rehabilitation. "Then he found out that someone else in the support group was doing the same thing. That made him understand he was not alone."

Support groups should not be the last resort. Caregiver support group can be beneficial in numerous ways from the onset of the disease. A support group:

- Provides a safe and confidential place to express your feelings.
- Provides educational materials, resources and advice about the illness and its progression.
- Helps you learn coping skills.
- Helps you know you are not alone in going through this journey.

Marquardt said discussion includes advice about elder lawyers, Silver Alerts, feelings of sorrow or resentment, respite and residential care suggestions, handling the affairs of the person with the illness and much more.

"During support group meetings, everyone kind of chimes in and offers suggestions for handling a situation the person is going through. There's never a quiet moment. We're like a big family," said Marquardt.

She emphasized that every session is confidential. This allows the caregivers the freedom to express their feelings. "They know that whatever they say will be left in the room."

Marquardt said caring for a loved one with Alzheimer's disease is extremely exhausting. "They are my biggest heroes," she said of caregivers. "Not only are they dealing with a loved one who is changing, they're wearing many other hats. They're going through a lot and I look up to them."

Marquardt operates two support groups. One is held at 10 a.m. the third Wednesday of each month at Bluffton Regional Hospital, 303 S. Main St., Bluffton, and the other is held at 10:30 a.m. every second Wednesday of each month at Parkview Huntington Hospital, 2001 Stults Road, Huntington.

SLEEP, PERHAPS TO DREAM

You are apt to suffer restless sleep as you grow older and that's not a good thing, according to the Association of Mature American Citizens. The 50-plus set can usually fall asleep with few problems, but many of them have a hard time staying asleep.

But, before you resort to over-the-counter sleep aids or seek stronger, prescription medications, discuss your problem with your physician. Your condition could be more complicated than you think.

There are a few things you can do in the meantime. For example, stay away from caffeine and alcohol before you retire for the night. Keep active during the day; it'll help relieve stress. Get as much sun as you can. Sunlight helps regulate melatonin levels, the hormone that helps control your sleep cycles. And, make sure your bedroom is quiet, is not lit up and is cool. Noises, bright lights and heat interfere with sleep.

YOU CAN TEACH AN OLD

DOG NEW TRICKS

Some older adults go back to school to train for a new post-retirement job. Others do it to improve their social lives. Whatever the reason, it's a way to keep active and learn new skills. And, says the Association of Mature American Citizens, you can do it on a shoestring since many community colleges and colleges offer low-cost or no-cost programs for senior citizens.

Don't be off-put by your age. You will have the advantage over your younger classmates. After all, you've been there and done that and they are new to the game.

The main benefit of returning to the classroom for seniors is the sense of accomplishment that they achieve. In addition, it will keep your brain active in your later years.

OBESITY IS A PROBLEM FOR OLDER AMERICANS

The "obesity epidemic" has become one of the foremost issues of the 21st Century but the focus has been on overweight children. In fact, obesity is growing more prevalent among older Americans, according to the Centers for Disease Control. The CDC reports that more than 35% of the 60-plus population is obese.

But, says the Association of Mature American Citizens, the older we get the harder it is to stick to a diet. But there are a few simple measures we can take to avoid gaining weight and to start losing pounds. It's a slow process, warns AMAC, but with a little patience and some determination, it can be done.

Eat more fruits and vegetables. Drink more water. Limit alcohol intake. Minimize snacking. Forget the habit of three square meals a day and adopt the routine of eating four or five smaller meals. But don't skip breakfast; it'll only increase your sense of hunger as the day goes on.

YOUR PASSWORD IS

INCORRECT

The guy kept forgetting his online passwords and so he changed them all to "incorrect" so when he tried and failed to sign on, the computer would prompt him with the message: your password is incorrect. But, password protection in the age of electronic transactions is no laughing matter, according to the Association of Mature American Citizens.

The easier a password is to guess, the greater the risk that a hacker will be able to steal personal information, including credit card numbers, Social Security Numbers, bank account numbers and much more, warns AMAC. So don't resort to "lazy" passwords such as the commonly used "password," "00000000" and, of course, "12345678."

Many computer users store their passwords on post it notes within sight of their computers, according to the FBI. That's a really bad idea. For example, store them in an obscure location that is not anywhere near your computer. And, when creating a password, use random letters and numbers, not birthdays, maiden names or favorite foods.

ELDERLY ENTREPRENEURS

Some say that retirement can be a form of job creation because an idle husband often becomes his wife's full-time job. But the fact is that retirees create so many new real jobs that it has an exceptionally positive impact on the economy.

More than half of new home grown businesses are owned by Americans over 50 years of age, an important statistic considering the fact that these companies create more than 60% of net new jobs each and every year.

So, it is only appropriate that one of the nation's leading senior citizen groups, the Association of Mature American Citizens, has started up a new business of its own, AMAC Small Business Solutions. Its aim is to help elderly entrepreneurs from start-up to success and to offer advice, counsel and taxation and regulatory issues.

THOSE AUTUMN LEAVES OF

RED AND GOLD

The annual show that Mother Nature puts on in the hills and dales across the nation each fall debuts in a few weeks. The leaves are already starting to turn and soon they will burst into brilliant red and orange hues that beckon just as surely as any painting by Van Gogh or Monet.

So, suggests the Association of Mature American Citizens, check out the Farmers' Almanac for peak viewing dates at <http://> farmersalmanac.com/peak-fall-foliage-dates/.

WHEN 'WATER' ISN'T WET

If you are a farmer, homeowner, developer, business owner or local elected official, now is the time to submit comments to the EPA and Army Corps of Engineers challenging their expanded definition of "waters of the U.S." You can learn more and take action by visiting www.ifbtakeaction.org.

After years of expanding interpretations, costly enforcement actions and U.S. Supreme Court decisions defining EPA's authority as Congress intended it, in April the two agencies issued a proposed rule. The proposed rule is supposed to provide clarity and reduce agency authority consistent with U.S. Supreme Court decisions, but the agencies are proposing a rule that is anything but clear and considerably broadens their regulatory reach.

Farm Bureau and other groups representing citizens from all walks of life have attempted to get EPA to more clearly explain its intent and what the rule means. Instead of a clear explanation we've been given agency doublespeak that sharply conflicts with the expansive authority of the rule. In fact, the rule is so bad that the House of Representatives passed bipartisan legislation to restrict the ability of EPA and the Corps to regulate "waters" which are generally dry land. That's right — they are trying to regulate dry land such as areas that have water present only when it rains. It's hardly the "navigable waters" that Congress intended when they wrote the Clean Water Act.

We all want clean water. Clean water is achieved by working with people to find real solutions to real problems. This proposed rule simply creates government bureaucracy that keeps everyone from focusing on positive things that can be done.

For more information, please visit www.infarmbureau.org/waterrule, and be sure to submit your comments by Oct. 20.

If adopted, this rule will affect your livelihood forever.

HALLOWEEN ZOO

Kids and families are invited to experience the Fort Wayne Children's Zoo's Wild Zoo Halloween Presented by Edy's event October 17-19, 23-26, & 30-31 from 12-5 PM daily.

Now in its 36th year, the Wild Zoo Halloween Presented by Edy's offers adventure, family fun, and tasty treats that are just right for pint-sized guests.

Guests can get candy at the Treat Trails, join the Monster Mash dance party, meet Broomhilda the friendly witch, visit the Beauty Shop of Horrors, and more. Children can choose their own mini-pumpkin from the Pumpkin Patch. Kids are encouraged to wear costumes. Animal sculptures made out of pumpkins are always a favorite. Train riders will hear "Tale of the Twisted Tree" as they venture into the Franke Park woods.

New this year is Hero Day on October 25, honoring those who serve our community and country. Members of the Fort Wayne Fire Department, Fort Wayne Police Department, 122nd Fighter Wing, 384th Military Police Battalion and others will greet guests and pose for photos from 2-4 PM. Specialty vehicles from these organizations will also be available for close-up viewing.

Theme days at the Wild Zoo Halloween Presented by Edy's include:

October 17: Guessing Games
October 18: Princess Day
October 19: Mascot Day
October 23: Free Train Rides
October 24: Pumpkin Stomp & Chomp
October 25: Hero Day
October 26: Magic Day
October 30: Free Train Rides
October 31: Pumpkin Decorating Workshop

Details on all Wild Zoo Halloween Presented by Edy's events are at <http://kidszoo.org/programs-and-events/wild-zoo-halloween/>

The Central Zoo, portions of the Australian Adventure, and portions of the African Journey will be open during the event.

All treats offered at the Wild Zoo Halloween Presented by Edy's are palm-oil free or are manufactured by companies that are members of the Roundtable on Sustainable Palm Oil (RSPO). The sustainable production of palm oil is crucial to the survival of orangutans, because their rain forest habitat is often destroyed to create poorly managed and unsustainable palm oil plantations.

Admission to the Wild Zoo Halloween Presented by Edy's is $5 for all ages; admission + treats is $9 for all ages. Zoo Members receive $2 off admission. Babies age 1 and under are admitted free but are charged $4 if they receive treats. Additional fees are charged for the train ride, pony ride, carnival-style games, bracelet-making, and face painting. Food is available for purchase.

Thanks to these generous sponsors for their support of the Wild Zoo Halloween Presented by Edy's: Edy's, BAE Systems, Bob Evans, Carson's, Ellison Bakery, Lee's Famous Recipe, Lutheran Health Network, MainStay Solutions, NIPSCO, Roller Dome, and Three Rivers Federal Credit Union.

The zoo remains open for the regular season through October 12.

HOW TO HELP A LOVED ONE GET THROUGH A TOUGH TIME

(StatePoint) Whether self-induced or unavoidable, there are a host of pitfalls that life can throw one's way, and everyone faces a crisis at some point in his or her life. When it happens to a friend or family member, knowing how to be supportive can be difficult.

"One of the grandest gifts we can extend to friends and family who are in trouble is the gift of our time," says Beth Wiseman, author of the new novel "The Promise," based on a friend's experience being held captive in Pakistan.

Wiseman, who worked with government agencies to help extract her friend from a dangerous situation and then supported her upon her return to the States, is offering tips to anyone looking for ways of being helpful to someone going through a tough time.

- Be present: When one is at the center of a crisis, it's often hard to see the light for all of the darkness. Friends and family can help that person see past the "now" of a situation toward what the future can bring.

You can be a source of positive encouragement and a reminder that things won't always be this way. Your troubled friend may simply need a sounding board. Identify in what capacity you can be helpful and then fulfill that role.

- Give your time: So often, our time is limited and precious, which makes it worth more than monetary offerings. Perhaps that is cooking a meal, running errands on his or her behalf, or babysitting. These favors can give someone a chance to just "be."

- Don't say "I told you so:" No one needs to hear advice on how he could have avoided a bad situation after the fact, particularly when he is suffering. You don't need to agree with someone's decisions or actions to find ways of being supportive. So skip the "I told you so."

- Be patient: Often times, when people are going through a rough patch, they may need space more than help. Approach the situation delicately and thoughtfully so you are not adding to his or her stress.

- Have perspective: In the thick of it, don't forget that trauma can be life changing and often has a silver lining. We are stronger than we think.

"It's how we react, endure, and survive that will mold our future, not the actual event itself," says Wiseman.

Being more than just a fair weather friend is not always easy, but it's important. The next time a loved one is in need, tread lightly to discover the best way you can help him or her through it.

TRICKS AND TREATS TO STAY ON BUDGET THIS HALLOWEEN

(StatePoint) Halloween comes but once a year. So make it extra spooky with ghosts, goblins and ghouls galore -- and don't forget all the great treats. While all this fall fun does come at a price, you don't have to spend a pirate's booty if you plan carefully.

For more treats than tricks this year, make a budget and stick to it. The shopping experts at Dollar General are sharing great ways to celebrate Halloween affordably.

Clean Up

Before the trick-or-treaters are at your door, spruce up your house with a few household cleaning supplies. Stock up on paper towels to use for clean-up after pumpkin carving, or pick up a new broom for all those fall leaves that are bound to make their way into your house. These fall months lead right into the holiday party season, so make sure you have all the tools you need to be party ready for your guests!

Decorations

Give your home a fresh fall update. Evoke the harvest season in the entryway with an autumn wreath. Buy one or DIY the project with supplies like glue guns, ribbons, faux leaves and flowers. Use seasonal placemats, runners and pumpkin pie scented candles to accent your home with fall flair.

Stock up on spooky supplies, too. Skeletons, cobwebs, ghosts and other festive supplies will make your home a favorite in the neighborhood.

Treats

Whether you're hosting a Halloween bash or just preparing for a crowd of trick-or-treaters, think frugally when stocking up on treats. Buy candy, chocolates and treats at a discount store such as Dollar General. If you're ordering online, consider buying in bulk to save further, as many retailers offer free shipping on large purchases.

Make Halloween party snacks for less by buying peanuts, pumpkin seeds and candy corn, and creating your own seasonal trail mix. For dessert, bake a cake and decorate it creatively with gummy worms and colored icing to scare your guests!

With more holidays on the horizon, be sure to stay within your budget this Halloween season. Take steps to celebrate affordably.
