KUDOS, KICKS & KARATS

THE UPTOWN GARDENER by Ruth Herring

Someone told me spring was here but today I can't seem to find it. I think it is buried under all this white stuff. By the time you read this lets hope we are on the melt down and the moisture will soak into the ground to help the lack of the water levels in the soil which the farm people will appreciate. The birds are really flocking to the feeders and have been enjoying watching them.

This would be good snowman weather and would give anything to be able to be out there building one. In the past it seemed Grandma was the one who organized the grandkids at that art while their mommas stayed in and watched.

I can remember at home when we had a big snow and drifting there was always across the road a spot that seemed to form a cave. How we loved to play there and imagined all sorts of things the cave was to be. Of course it was my brother who claimed it to be a hide out from the Indians, I hardly ever got to claim it for a house for my dolls. There was never any danger of traffic on the road because we were the only ones living on that road who had an automobile. A family farther on down at Loon Creek had a horse and wagon. What fun we had even though I had to often be the Indian attacking.

I have transplanted some of the cuttings I had rooted and are doing well. Soon I will move them to the big pots I plan to put on the deck. I am anxious to be able to enjoy the nice patio on the back of the house.

A week ago all the kids who might be able to be home were together and decided to have our Easter gathering so we have that all taken care of by eating out.

Something I always fixed for Easter morning was a quick and easy coffee cake served warm. This is a nice think to have any time of the year.

1/2 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup oil, 1/2 cup milk, 2 cups flour, 2 1/4 teaspoon baking powder. Mix eggs, oil and milk together, add sugar then flour and baking powder mixing only till blended. Make a topping of 1/3 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoon butter at room temp, 1/2 cup nuts or coconut. Pour half of the batter on a greased 9 inch pan sprinkle half the topping over the batter then add the rest of the batter topping with remaining topping. Bake at 400 degrees 25-30 minutes. Enjoy and have a wonderful and blessed Easter.

Huntington County Ag Day will be held at Hier's Park on Tuesday April 16. Third grade students from public, private, and home schools in Huntington County will participate in this event.

The Huntington County Extension Office has coordinated an Ag Day event each spring for many years to educate third grade students about agriculture. Individuals who work in agriculture-related fields have volunteered their time and talents to make this program a success.

There are a total of thirteen learning stations at this event. These stations include topics involving animal agriculture, crops, machinery and food safety. Teachers are provided a question for each topic in advance to help prepare the students. Every child attending the program receives an activity book and other educational items donated by area businesses.

The material presented incorporates academic standards to allow this educational program to be taught outside the traditional classroom. Approximately 40 volunteers will be assisting Purdue Extension Staff with teaching the students.

Many people in Huntington County are employed in farm or farm-related jobs, including production agriculture, farm inputs, processing and marketing and wholesale and retail sales.

Opportunities exist for young people to pursue agricultural college degrees. There are many possible majors. Food Science, Agricultural and Biological Engineering and Agricultural Economics are just a few options.

One recent study involves the shortage of college graduates to fill need. The USDA "Employment Opportunities for College Graduates in Food, Renewable Energy, and the Environment, 2010-2015" report projected 53,500 qualified graduates will be available for about 54,400 jobs annually the agricultural and food systems, renewable energy and the environment.

Note that there are many different ways in which communities celebrate Ag Day across the U.S. However, the intent of every county Ag Day is to recognize and celebrate the abundance provided by agriculture. The National Ag Day Web site provides more details (<http://www.agday.org>).

For more information, contact Ed Farris, Agriculture and Natural Resource Educator, Purdue Extension - Huntington County Office, 354 N Jefferson - Suite 202, Huntington by calling 260-358-4826.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

The 2013 Membership Drive has a goal of 10% growth of our membership. We are hoping that all the current members of the society will join us in our efforts to increase the base membership. If each member signs up one new member we can shatter the goal we set.

A strong historical society and museum is a positive part of the quality of life in our community. A strong historical society and museum helps create and sustain the identity of a community. The historical items passed down through the years and the stories of our ancestors are vital to the education of our children and citizenry.

By belonging to the Huntington County Historical Society and supporting the museum you are remembering and honoring those who have gone before.

Our history - even a small Indiana county's history - is not to be thrown on the trash heap and forgotten. Who we were and who we are is just as important as anywhere else. A large, strong, supportive membership enables our organization to do more in a more effective way than in the past.

If you cared enough to become a member of the Huntington County Historical Society there is someone else you know who cares enough too. They are just waiting to be asked. The annual dues are only $10.00. or 83 cents a month. That's a better deal than the Indiana lottery.

Please join us in making the 2013 Membership Drive a success.

Membership forms are available at the museum or from the Membership Committee members - Patti Souers, Sarah Schmidt, and Gib Young.

SUMMER THEATRE CAMP

The Huntington University Theatre Department is thrilled to host the 2013 Summer Theatre Youth Camp. This year's summer show will be "Disney's Alice in Wonderland Jr."

Join Alice's madcap adventures in Wonderland as she chases the White Rabbit, races the Dodo Bird, gets tied up with the Tweedles, raps with a bubble-blowing Caterpillar and beats the Queen of Hearts at her own game. Roles are plentiful, both for boys and girls, including three Cheshire Cats and dozens of other wonderfully wacky characters. "Disney's Alice in Wonderland Jr." is a fast-paced stage adaptation, featuring updated dialogue and new arrangements of such classic Disney songs as "I'm Late," "The Un-birthday Song" and "Zip-A-Dee-Dee-Doo-Dah."

Children and youth entering grades 1-12 next fall are eligible to register for the camp. The camp will begin June 24 and run through July 12. Campers will meet 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Camp will not meet on July 4. At the end of the session, campers will present two performances of the musical at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. on July 13.

Camp tuition is $195 ($220 if paid after June 7). Checks can be made payable to Huntington University Summer Theatre Camp. To register, simply complete the application in the brochure and mail it to Jay Duffer at 2303 College Ave. Huntington, IN 46750 or drop the application off at the Merillat Centre for the Arts Box Office.

During their time at camp, campers will learn acting, singing and dancing skills. Children also are learning valuable skills, developing language and communication abilities, creativity, social awareness, a positive self-concept and empathy as well as gaining an understanding of the art of theater.

Joni Killian and Courtney Swenson will be stepping in as camp directors for the 2013 summer session. Prior to 2012, Killian directed the concert choir of the Children's Choirs of Huntington County for many years. She currently coaches soloists for Huntington North High School's choral program, and teaches voice in the HU Music Department. Swenson is a 2011 HU theater alum. She has served twice as a camp mentor and is currently living and working in Chicago as an actress.

"I am thrilled to have both Joni and Courtney take the lead this year," said Jay Duffer, assistant professor of theatre and former camp director. "Their combined

FEAR OF DECORATING

by The FlyLady,
Marla Cilley

Did you ever glance at those well lit pictures in a magazine and wish for a room that looked as inviting as the images in their pages. We want the feel of those pictures but we have no clue where to start to accomplish it. Don't feel bad because I can help you get started on your dream home and it can be done in baby steps.

Our biggest problem is that we don't know where to start! We see the beautifully put together rooms and we get overwhelmed. Then we put the magazine down and give up before we ever get started.

I was scared to death to remodel our home. When Robert and I married in 1996; I had a houseful of clutter and so did he. We put our clutter together and then went to estate auctions to buy more. We called ourselves upgrading the furniture that we already had. Oh we got some great deals but it is so hard to see what you have when your home is filled with clutter.

It was only when we started to get rid of our clutter that we could selectively know what we needed to purchase. It took us about nine months to slowly eliminate our clutter. I like to think of it as giving birth to a new me. As the clutter disappeared I could see in my mind's eye what I wanted for our home and not the piles of stuff that clouded my vision. I began to feel the peace that I had always searched for and it was hiding underneath my hot spots.

Slowly our home became clutter free and peaceful. It still was not decorated as those pictures in the magazines, but it hugged us when we walked in the door. Even with the green shag carpet from the seventies our home was inviting and my routines were helping me to keep our home company ready just for us. This was a blessing but it also created another level of fear in me.

With the clutter gone we could see that our home needed updating. Every room in our home needed help. We could actually see the forest for the first time. We looked closely at each room. I took a note pad and put on a different set of eyes to examine our home. Just imagine that you are a real estate agent and you are going to help your client get their home ready to sell. Grab a clipboard and your pen. I am going to walk you through your home.

We started with our one butt kitchen and our copper tone appliances. I began to jot down everything that I felt made our home outdated. Then we looked at the outside of our home, our bathrooms, living room, bedrooms and back deck. We examined our heating unit and our side porch.

Then we went to dinner to discuss what to do first. This was so frightening to me. I was afraid of allowing the clutter and CHAOS to invade our home again. Once I realized that I could do this by taking baby steps and by taking care of me during this process; I was willing to take the next step. I found if my bed was made every day and our room clean then I could function through a remodel.

You can do this too with your routines in place to guide you and by flinging your clutter so that you have a clean palette to start with. You will be surprised at how much better your home will feel when you love yourself enough to take baby steps. I will be telling you more about this in the future. Many people have this same problem and we want to help you all have the confidence to make your home feel comfortable.

The best compliment I have ever received is that our home looks just like us. This is because we only have things in our home that make us smile.

Are you ready to FLY into building your dream home one baby step at a time? Each week we are in a different zone. This helps us to focus. Get rid of your clutter and find your home.

For more help getting rid of your clutter and CHAOS, check out her website and join her free mentoring group at www.FlyLady.net or read her book, Sink Reflections published by Random House.

PET SAFETY

(StatePoint) Household pets are adorably curious, but they can't read labels or plant their own gardens.

One of the biggest mistakes pet owners can make is to underestimate a pet's curiosity and overlook dangers of common household items, both indoors and outdoors. It's up to us to read labels for them, make sure cleaning chemicals and other toxins are out of reach and maintain gardens that stimulate our pets' curiosity with safety in mind.

"Responsible pet ownership is about more than feeding your pet nutritious meals and going on walks. It's more holistic—it's a lot like caring for a child," says Dr. Tiffany Bierer, health and nutritional sciences manager at Mars Petcare US. "You need to anticipate certain dangers and remove them from the realm of possibility. That's what we did in our office and it only takes a little effort to do the same at home."

Mars Petcare US, knows all about designing spaces with pet safety as a top priority, particularly when it comes to common toxins. Safety measures are fundamental since the company's employees are encouraged to bring their dogs to work each day. But the type of thoughtful and preventative planning they've deployed throughout their office isn't reserved only for pet food companies—it's within reach for every pet owner in their own homes.

As such, pet owners could borrow a few tips from the makers of Pedigree, Cesar and Sheba pet foods:

- Be mindful of toxic plants. Many common plants, such as Azaleas, Oleander, Daffodils, Lilies, Tulips and Hyacinth, are toxic to pets and should be avoided in indoor and outdoor areas where pets are free to roam. Many mushrooms also present dangers, including death. It's important to do your research since mushrooms can be difficult to identify.

- Use caution when applying garden poisons, insecticides and fertilizers. Many gardeners use traps for small rodents, snails and slugs. These are extremely toxic if consumed, requiring immediate veterinary attention.

• Most over-the-counter insecticides and fertilizers can upset a pet's stomach, but some contain more dangerous chemicals that can cause death if consumed. It's important to follow directions when applying a chemical to your yard and keep pets away from the area. Inform neighbors when applying insecticides and fertilizers since these products can drift in light winds, and always store them in controlled areas.

• Always store household cleaning supplies in controlled spaces. Like insecticides and fertilizers, household cleaners should be stored in controlled spaces since they can cause death very quickly. Batteries, fire logs and glue should also be kept out of reach of pets.

• Keep toxic foods and medicines out of reach. Chocolate, raisins, sugar-free gum, star fruit and grapes are toxic to pets and should be kept out of reach, just like ibuprofen and amphetamine medications. "Following these tips is the next best thing to having pets to read labels," says Dr. Bierer. "It not only makes your home a safer place for your pets, it makes it safer overall."

If you suspect your pet has consumed a toxic substance, immediately contact your veterinarian or the Pet Poison Hotline at 800-231-6680. To learn more about preparing your home for pets, visit www.banfield.com or www.petpoisonhelpline.com.

A little preparation can help ensure your pet's safety.

HELPING YOUR TEEN

Signs Your Teen is in Trouble and What to Do About It

(StatePoint) Being a teenager is never easy, but for some kids, it is excruciating. For parents, being able to tell the difference between normal growing pains and real trouble is crucial.

From drug abuse to depression to more serious physical or mental abuse, it's important to recognize when your teen is in trouble.

"Young people don't always have the tools or perspective to process everything that's happening to them. Many teens will turn inward, keeping feelings to themselves," says Bulbul Bahuguna, a psychiatrist and author of the new novel, "The Ghosts That Come Between Us," a coming-of-age story about a victim of childhood sex abuse.

But Bahuguna, whose novel is informed by her work treating adults coping with childhood abuse issues, says parents can break the silence. "What can hurt teens even more than the troubles and issues they face, is the silence of those around them. Parents should never play the role of silent bystanders," she says.

Here are some steps you can take to help your child survive the teen years emotionally unscathed:

• Recognize that it can take courage to talk about certain issues, such as depression, or being the victim of bullying or abuse. Just because your child isn't vocalizing an issue, doesn't mean everything is okay.

If your child is acting withdrawn, secretive, angry or sad, set aside time for a discussion. By engaging regularly, you can encourage teens to speak honestly with you before problems start. Don't force or pry, however.

• While you're no longer changing diapers or spoon feeding your teenager, older children need parents too. "Being there" for teenagers means reviewing report cards, communicating with teachers, facilitating extracurricular activities and being a great listener and emotional support system.

• While you may be able to talk your child through some of life's bumps in the road, some situations call for professional help. Not only is a therapist or psychiatrist professionally qualified to help develop coping skills, your child might feel more comfortable talking to someone objective.

Such aid can be crucial to helping your teen move on and grow into a healthy adulthood, stresses Bahuguna, whose new novel "The Ghosts That Come Between Us" traces the life of an abused girl as she grows of age into a triumphant but tormented adult. The novel implies that the protagonist's adult life would have been less tormented had she had access to help growing up.

• Ensure your school offers easy access to mental health services and encourage your child to use those services.

• Boost self-esteem by fostering your teen's talents and regularly letting them know you love them. It is normal for a child to seek specialness. Unfortunately, this pursuit of specialness sometimes is exploited by abusive adults. It is important to fill teenagers' specialness void by nurturing their innate talents, say experts.

"Society needs to believe the victim and the victim needs to believe that healing is possible with courage, honesty and patience," says Bahuguna, emphasizing the need for trust and patience.

KNOW YOUR RISK OF DEVELOPING PROSTATE CANCER

(StatePoint) Prostate cancer, the most common non-skin cancer in America, affects one in six men.

Knowing your risk can help you get diagnosed more quickly:

• Age: Although only one in 10,000 men under 40 will be diagnosed, the rate shoots up to one in 38 for ages 40 to 59, and one in 15 for ages 60 to 69.

• Race: African-American men are the most likely to develop prostate cancer. Asian men living in Asia are the least likely.

• Genetics: Men with a family history of prostate cancer are more likely to develop the disease.
