KUDOS, KICKS & KARATS

THE UPTOWN GARDENER

by Ruth Herring

This week my daughter Treva will be penning the article on her trip to eastern Pennsylvania.

After a long weekend of work and all the activities with the Salamonie Summer Festival, I was ready for a much needed vacation and could hardly wait to get on the road. Finally July 5th at 6:30 a.m. we were heading down the road for a great summer adventure. Just me and the hubby, no kids, no grandkids and to all my family and close friends, yes I had my top on. Now to explain myself, we just recently purchased a jeep that has a soft cover on it, so we can take the top off and let a little sunshine in. So I have been known to drive around town "topless". I even went through the parade "nude", which means no top and no doors. We considered driving "topless" on our trip, but decided that it was best to run the air conditioning.

Traveling across southern Ohio, we seen much of the landscape and the fields of corn were about as good as they were here, knee high by the fourth of July. The farther east we went the hills and hollars started getting bigger and longer. The Appalachian mountain range is really beautiful.

Our first stop was in Wheeling West Virginia, which the state of West Virginia goes a very short distance between Ohio and Pennsylvania, actually big enough for the town of Wheeling and that's about it. We stopped and got some lunch and walked to Walmart for a few snacks and then we headed off to Gettysburg Pennsylvania. What a remarkable area in tribute to the civil war. The monuments were placed at particular spots where the brigades were stationed. The monuments were very fine crafted and told who they were, where they were from and who led them. A brigade from Indiana was even there fighting. Having just made the trip ourselves and was quite tired, I told John, you know how long it took us to get here, they walked the whole way, no wonder they had holes in their shoes. Unfortunately, we didn't spend a whole lot of time there, because we wanted to get to our destination of Lancaster County before night fall.

Home of the Pennsylvania Dutch settlement, Lancaster is a very large city probably the size of Fort Wayne, but all the good stuff is on the outskirts of Lancaster in towns called Bird-In-Hand and Intercourse Pennsylvania. So the next day we were off to Amish country and wouldn't you know it, we get lost. The navigator thought she knew where she was going, but apparently not. Finally after an hour of cruising around Lancaster we finally made it to our destination. The town of Intercourse is really neat and kinda similar to Shipshewana. Houses are made

DONORS NEEDED

Most everyone at some point in their lives will meet someone who has received blood products.

"Blood is needed more than you think," Sharyn Whitman, CEO for the Indiana-Ohio

Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross. "In fact, in the next two seconds, someone in America will need blood."

Blood needs are constant, Red Cross officials say. Every day, hospital patients across the U.S. need an average of 40,000 units of blood. When calculated to 365 days a year, that number tops 16 million donations—or nearly 30 million blood products—that are transfused to 5 million patients a year.

Patients need blood for treatments related to cancer and other diseases, for organ transplants, and for emergency care related to accidents or trauma. A person with cancer and leukemia may need from two to six units of red cells to endure chemotherapy, as well as six to eight units of platelets daily for two to four weeks. Surgeries related to heart conditions and organ transplants can also be blood intensive, requiring anywhere from two to 20 units each of red cells, platelets or plasma. And depending on the severity of car accident, a person may need from four to 100 units of red blood cells to survive.

"Not a day goes by that we don't hear someone's story about how blood helped save their life," said Whitman. "And those stories are made possible by blood donors who give without any thought of reward other than to help someone in need."

Today, baby boomers and the WWII generation make up about half of all blood donors through the Red Cross. But with time, many people who once gave may require blood for their own medical care.

"America simply needs more blood donors from younger generations to commit to maintaining America's blood supply," said Whitman. "You can be among them, and help change a life."

UPCOMING AMERICAN RED CROSS BLOOD DRIVES IN YOUR AREA:

Monday, Aug. 8, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. at Walmart, located at 2800 Walmart Drive in Huntington. All presenting donors at this drive will receive a coupon for a 6-piece box of chocolate covered fruit from Edible Arrangements; also, be entered into a drawing for two Cedar Point tickets valid for the 2011 season.

Monday, Aug. 15, from 2 p.m. until 7 p.m. at the Evangelical United Methodist Church in the Main Hall, located at 1000 Flaxmill Road in Huntington. All presenting donors at this drive will receive a coupon for a 6-piece box of chocolate covered fruit from Edible Arrangements.

How to Donate Blood

To schedule an appointment to donate please call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or visit redcrossblood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age (16 with parental permission in some states), meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on their height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Please bring your Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive ID when you come to donate.

The need is constant. The gratification is instant. Give blood.™

SUPPER CLUB

For one night only on July 31st, the New Huntington Theater will be welcoming Broadway theater star Euan Morton to the Supper Club stage for an evening of song and humor. The New York Times has called him "sensational", the USA Today called him and The New York Associated Press proclaimed him "a revelation". Of his solo concerts Broadway World noted that Morton "always has his audience in stitches". Co-owner Joel Frommkin says "Euan is truly a major star of Broadway musical theater. Everywhere he performs he receives rave reviews and has the audience laughing and crying. He has never performed before in Indiana, and it's an incredibly exciting event for us here in Huntington". Morton said he is "honored to be the Supper Club's first guest artist and excited to see first hand everything that Joel and Rich have created in Huntington."

Morton was nominated for a Tony award for his role in the Broadway musical "Taboo", produced by Rosie O'Donnell and co-starring Boy George. He received a Whatsonstage and a Laurence Olivier Award nomination for his work and received Tony Award, Drama Desk Award, Outer Critics Circle and Drama League Award nominations, as well as the Theatre World Award (for Outstanding Broadway Debut). In 2007 he co-starred with Kevin Kline on Broadway in "Cyrano". Morton recently performed in the new Broadway musical Sondheim on Sondheim in which he co-starred with Vanessa Williams and Tom Wopat. He won the 2006 Obie Award for his work at New York's acclaimed Public Theater and appeared opposite Alfred Molina (Spider Man's Doctor Octopus) in "Howard Katz". At Washington's famous Ford Theater he recently starred in the musical "Parade".

Morton has two acclaimed solo albums, "New Clear" and "Caledonia" and he has sold out one-man shows at the Kennedy Center and performed at New York's famous Birdland jazz club. On the Supper Club stage, Morton will be sharing career anecdotes and singing many popular standards, pop hits, and classic songs like "True Colors", "Both Sides Now", "Danny Boy" and "Hallelujah". Reviewing his latest cabaret in New York, the New York Times reviewer said "Sweetness and good humor waft like a fresh breeze from the Scottish singer and actor Euan Morton in his show".

Tickets for the July 31st performance are $40 plus sales tax and include dinner and the full-length performance and can be booked by visiting www.huntingtonsupperclub.com or calling 260-454-0603.

KOOKY COOKERY

Bryan Ballinger, associate professor of digital media arts at Huntington University, has published a collection of vintage recipes and recipe booklets that is more than 10 years in the making.

"Kooky Cookery: An archive of irregular recipes from yester-year" features recipes such as Bologna Cups with Peas, Sausage-Eyed Apple Winkers and Cheese-Burger Pancakes.

"I collect vintage recipes and recipe booklets and have been for years, in particular, ones that were put out by food companies trying to come up with more and more ways to use their products, and that is a 'recipe' for some really absurd food creations," Ballinger said. "When I was getting my Master in Fine Arts in creative writing, I decided to write a humorous book about these recipes as part of my final thesis. Since then, I've been working on the design and layout of the book."

Ballinger teaches in the digital media arts department at HU. His specialty is in the design and illustration work of digital media including 3D CGI skills in modeling, texturing, lighting and animation.

Before coming to HU, he was a freelance illustrator with clients such as Microsoft, Nintendo, Disney and Harley Davidson. He was also the lead 3D designer for five years at Big Idea Productions, the creators of VeggieTales. He also spent six years as a senior designer and illustrator at the Microsoft Corporation where he was awarded a patent for development of multimedia buttons.

Ballinger earned his bachelor's in illustration from Columbus College of Art and Design and finished his master's at Lesley University in June 2006.

"Kooky Cookery" is available in print, Kindle, Nook and PDF formats at www.kookycookery.com.

The JOY Class of the United Church of Christ met on June 25 for a cook-out. It was held at the home of Richard & Janice Brubaker with Jerry & Peggy Wilson as co-host.

After a delicious meal, President Larry Poulson called the meeting to order. Janice Brubaker gave devotions by Billy Graham "Why didn't Jesus stay on earth longer?" Then a reading by Max Lacado and closed with prayer.

Suellen Jones gave the Potato Bake report. It was held July 3 at the Knight Bergman Center. There was a motion made that the money from the dinner be used for the Casa De Nios Home in Mexico run by Dave and Sherry DeBolt.

Those present for food and fellowship were: Max and Marge Tyner, Tim and Cindy Fitch, Larry and Roselyn Poulson, Bob and Nancy Smyth, Scott and Kim Nedberg, Suzette Gephart, Gordon and Ellen Laymon, Wilma and Bud Lee, Butch Arbuckle, Sandy Eichhorn, Dean and Janet Schmidt, Janet Klefeker, Mona Scott, Gary and Suellen Jones, Marvin and Rosemary Zeller, Guy Jackson, Jo Spade, Richard and Janice Brubaker and Peggy Wilson.

needed replenishing, father went to the mill for it.

In those days, farmers butchered their own meat, picked a winter supply of raspberries and blackberries from bushes that grew wild in fence rows and thickets. They gathered several bushes of hickory nuts from the woods, made their own butter, buried a big hill of potatoes and cabbage besides putting up a barrel of kraut.

It was a lot of work to provide all of this, but very little had to be bought at the grocery. Who would want to go back to those days, especially if you happen to be a woman on whose shoulders fell most of the backing toil that went with the old way of life. The only reason people seemed to enjoy life was that nobody knew anything better.

STOP THE MERRY-GO-ROUND OF STRESS!

By the FlyLady, Marla Cilley Slow down you move too fast. We are all in such a hurry these days that we don't take time to stop and smell the roses. We hear ourselves say "I don't have time" yet we waste more time searching for things. If we could recoup those hours we spend each day looking for keys, shoes, socks and purses; then we would relieve most of the stress in our lives.

From the time we get up in the morning till our heads collapse on our pillows; our bodies are in a constant state of chaos. We keep doing the same things and we can't see a way out of our stressed filled merry-go-round. Most of the time, we don't even feel the stress because our bodies have become immune to the adrenaline.

Eventually it is our bodies the fall victim to the over-flow of adrenaline. Our immune systems go haywire. We no longer can fight off colds and our heads hurt; then we find that our muscles and joints hurt. What can we do to stop our bodies from rebelling.

Most of us have two speeds: Ninety miles per hour or dead stop. We feel invincible when we are at full throttle. We even pride ourselves at being so good at multi-tasking! The truth is that we only think we are good at doing more than one thing at a time. The reality is most things are half done and really never finished. I have a set of simple little rules that will help you get off of this horrendous carnival ride.

FlyLady's 11 Commandments

1. Keep your sink clean and shiny!
2. Do your Before Bedtime Routine EVERY NIGHT
3. Do your Morning routine EVERY DAY, RIGHT WHEN YOU GET UP.
4. Don't allow yourself to be sidetracked by the computer
5. Pick up after yourself. IF YOU GET IT OUT, PUT IT AWAY WHEN FINISHED
6. Don't try to do two projects at once. ONE JOB AT A TIME.
7. Do something for yourself every day, maybe even every morning and night.
8. Work as fast as you can to get one job done. This will give you more time to play later.
9. Smile even when you don't feel like it. It is contagious.
10. Make your mind up to be happy and you will be.
11. Pamper yourself, you deserve it.

These few simple rules will help you get rid of the stress that you feel. Post them on your refrigerator where you will see them. You deserve to have a little peace in your life. Peace begins with you!

For more help getting rid of your CHAOS, check out her website and join her free mentoring group at www.FlyLady.net or her book, Sink Reflections published by Random House and her New York Times Best Selling book, Body Clutter published by Simon and Schuster. The Japanese forced their Scottish prisoners to labor night and day building a jungle railroad bridge. As the bridge grew, the bodies of the Scottish soldiers shrank until they were nothing but skin and bones.

One day the Japanese Commandant began to scream at them that a shovel was missing and that if it wasn't immediately returned he would kill them all on the spot. No one budged and the Japanese commandant pulled out his gun. It was obvious he was going to carry out his threat.

At that moment one man stepped forward and confessed. The Commandant promptly beat him too death with a shovel. When it was over, the survivors picked up the bloody corpse of their fellow prisoner and carried him with them to the second tool check.

This time, no shovel was missing. When the victorious Allies swept in, the Scottish survivors lined up in front of their former captors and instead of attacking them insisted that there would be, "No more hatred. No more killing. Now what we ALL need is forgiveness."

Indeed, no shovel had ever been missing. There had been a miscount at the first check point. The word spread like wildfire. An innocent man had willingly given his life to save the others. The incident had a profound effect. The prisoners began to treat each other like brothers.

We cannot change the whole world...but we can change our little piece of it. Anger is everywhere. Differences are exaggerated because hate has always been easy to sell. We're talking survival really. For we are getting better and better at destruction.

That word master Martin Luther King summed up so very well when he said, "I refuse to accept the view that mankind is so tragically bound to the starless midnight of racism and war that the bright daybreak of peace and brotherhood can never become a reality... I believe that unarmed truth and unconditional love will have the final word."

EAT SUMMER HEALTHY

Between picnics, barbecues and trips to the ice cream store, it can be easy to get sidetracked from a healthy diet in the summer months. But because there is an abundance of fresh, local produce available, summer is actually a great time to focus on choosing healthier foods. Use these tips from the Federal Citizen Information Center to stay on track with your healthy eating this summer.

Fill your plate with the proper portions: ChooseMyPlate.gov illustrates the most recent dietary guidelines for Americans. Fill half of your plate with fruits and vegetables and then divide the rest of the space between whole grains and lean protein. You can even take a picture of your plate and share it on Twitter with the hashtag #MyPlate for a chance to be featured on the USDA blog.

Find a farmer's market near you: You know it's important to fill half your plate with fruits and vegetables and a farmer's market will let you select fresh produce that's grown locally. Get to know some of the farmers and they can help you pick out the juiciest fruits and the ripest vegetables so everything on your plate tastes great. Find a farmer's market near you.

Choose a delicious recipe: Healthy food doesn't have to taste bland. With a wide variety of healthy recipes from the government to choose from, you'll find something everyone in the family will like, even the pickiest eaters. Look for recipes that take into consideration special dietary needs, like heart-healthy recipes and recipes for people with diabetes.

Pick Healthy Foods on the Go: When you're out and about, it's sometimes hard to know which foods offer the most nutritional bang for your buck. Use the My Food-a-pedia app on your mobile phone to find the nutrition information for more than 1,000 different kinds of foods. You'll find out the number of calories, the amount of added sugar and lots of other information about each of the foods you look up. With these tips, you can take advantage of the seasonal flavors of summer and stick to your healthy eating habits.

into shops and they have a nice boardwalk mall, in which I did a lot of Christmas shopping considering we only have 5 months till then. The whole town is a must for the utmost shopper. This town was made famous in the movies when the show "Witness" starring Harrison Ford (my favorite) starred in the lead role. It was based on a beautiful farm in Amish country. We didn't find it and I am sure it was a very expensive tour so we decided we would do without.

We elected to only stop at one bakery, which was kinda a farmer's market setting and bought some cookie sandwiches, peanut butter of course. I don't think there is a peanut butter cookie that I haven't tried, they are my favorite. The most popular item is the sticky buns and shoo fly pie. I have never tried shoo fly pie and was going to buy one but forgot to pick it up on the way out. So I have a postcard with the recipe on it that I will share with you later. I hope it's good, I haven't tried the recipe yet.

The next day brought us to Thursday and off to the most famous place on earth, Hershey Pennsylvania home of chocolate. Most of you that know me well, know I am a chocoholic and being this close to it was a must to stop and take it all in. The street lights in this town are made like Hershey kisses. They are really cute and the smell of chocolate just lingers. It was pure heaven!! Going to the park you drive along the side of the roller coaster that is in the amusement park and you just hope and pray that nobody ate too much chocolate before getting on the coaster! We elected to just take in the stores and guided tour. So our first tour was a guided tour into the land of chocolate, where they provided you a cart and you sat and enjoyed the ride while they told you how they harvested the cacao beans clear through how they made the delicious candy bars.

Having made a lot of candy in my time, I decided I needed to go to school and get a degree. So we attended class and earned a masters degree in chocolate tasting. I even have the diploma to prove it. I was worried that I would have to eat too much chocolate and be sick myself, but I wasn't.

John and I are not much for crowded places and that was no place for us, but we did do a little shopping and site seeing and then left. We didn't buy any chocolate to bring home because of the last leg of our trip and really the main reason why we went to Pennsylvania. Friday, Saturday and Sunday was spent in Bloomsburg PA for the 24th annual 4 wheel drive jamboree nationals. The jamboree is like one big truck show with approximately 3,000 trucks showing up for the 3 day event. All kinds of trucks from show truck, daily drivers to some trucks that you wonder how they ever made it there.

The show has a lot of vendors selling the latest truck parts to make your ride the coolest on the block. There is also monster truck rides for the kids, a tuff truck competition, and of course Big Foot the king of monster trucks makes an appearance along with several others and puts on a show for young and old alike. There is even a burn out contest, where these big four wheel drive trucks compete against each other to see who can make the most smoke come off their tires, and they can really make the smoke. We were up for the longest haul award, which was a participant who traveled the longest to get there. Which we had figured from Warren to Bloomsburg we traveled 577 miles. We ended up coming in 2nd place. The winner was from Florida at over a 1,000 miles to participate in the show.

Monday morning it was time to head back to Warren

Indiana and I thought I would never say this, knowing my husband works long hours during harvest, but I missed the soy beans. Even for that matter the corn too. There was not to many crops out there. If anything it was corn but not much. It was a very long drive back and the stormy weather didn't help much, but we arrived home that night safe and sound.

As I promised a little taste of Pennsylvania Dutch until next time.
