Treva's
Recipe Box
 by Treva Flemming

This week I'm getting all my ducks in a row and making plans on what I'm taking to the county fair and the state fair. Last year Tara, Kendra and I didn't participate with all the Covid mess. So this year we're gonna do it. I'm so excited about this being my first time showing in the state fair. Ya just gotta try it once and I'm sure we will be hooked.

I remember when I was a girl, 4-H projects was a thing for my summer time and of course I was just like my daughter and granddaughter, I procrastinated a lot. So if I learned anything in my few years of 4-H that was the main thing. I must say I am a pro at it to this day!!

So several years ago I started a kick with baking with alcohol. Now I will tell you I very seldom have a drink, it's really just not my thing. Not saying I won't throw a shot down, but truth be known, it don't interest me. But if you seen my liquor cabinet you would swear I'm a drinker. Lol. You name it I have it. But I also got the many recipes to follow it up. So this week I will share with you one of the all time favorites that has got me a few awards. This is a great summer time flavor cake that I pretty much put together myself, when I had a little of this and a little of that left in alcohol. You can garnish this with a little cool whip and a fresh peach slice if you like. Enjoy.

Peach flip

1 pkg yellow cake mix ½ c. orange juice
 1 pkg lemon instant pudding (4 serving) 4 large eggs
 ¾ c. peach schnapps ½ tsp orange extract, opt
 1/2 c. oil

Preheat oven to 3350 degrees. Grease and flour a bundt cake pan. Mix together all ingredients in mixing bowl for 1 minute on low speed scrape down sides and increase speed to medium speed for 2 minutes. Batter should be thick and smooth. Pour into bundt pan and even out the batter. Bake 40 to 50 minutes or till toothpick inserted comes out clean.

Cool and then invert on to a plate after loosening the sides. Prepare a glaze out of 4 tbsp. orange juice, 2 tbsp peach Schnapps and 1 c. powdered sugar more or less to make a good consistency. Poke holes all over the cake with a toothpick or fork and spoon glaze all over the cake, let seep into the holes. Slice in to 12 to 16 slices

You can mix it up and make a fuzzy navel by subbing the vanilla pudding for the lemon and vodka for the peach Schnapps.

SCHOOLS

There is nothing that shows more clearly the character of the first settlers of the valley of the Salamonie than does their attitude towards schools and education. They came here to better their life. They were determined to build for themselves and their children a new community and expected to make their permanent homes here. They wanted to produce, in the Hoosier woods, the best things they had left behind in their old homes of Ohio and North Carolina, the states which furnished the first of the pioneers.

As soon as the cabins were built to shelter the family and a little patch of ground cleared to grow food, the next thought was for the boys and girls. Being practical folks, they made use of the material that lay nearest at hand. They looked about them for someone of their own number who had enough knowledge of reading, writing and arithmetic to start the youngsters on their way to an education. More next week.

We passed through the villages of Taft, Malakwa, Sicamous, and Canoe, B. C. The highway between the latter two communities bordered Shuswap Lake. Sicamous is a popular boating and picturesque area. From Canoe, B. C., our next overnight reservation was established at Kamloops, B. C. which was 75 miles ahead on Highway # 1. It was not even lunch time yet. A search of the map identified a southern navigational loop that would absorb time and ultimately lead us into our next overnight destination. So, we followed Provincial Highway # 97 B south which quickly merged into road # 97 A that was going in the same direction. That roadway traversed through Armstrong, Vernon, Okanagan Center, and Kelowna. A pleasant surprise that accompanied us by taking this route was the adjacent, 84 mile long Okanagan Lake that extended

A TRIP TO ALBERTA & BRITISH COLUMBIA DAY 3

by Larry Ryan
After a nourishing breakfast, we headed northwest on Highway # 1 and immediately crossed the Columbia River. Yes, it is the same river that flows southward and meanders through Washington state and borders Oregon before emptying into the Pacific Ocean.

We traveled through the Gold Range of the Monashee Mountains and escaped via Eagle Pass at an elevation of from Vernon to Kelowna. This lake is called a fjord lake since it was carved out by repeated glacier activity.

Beyond the somewhat narrow lake was the far-stretching, westward Okanagan Valley. The water from this lake eventually becomes a tributary to the Columbia River.

After lunch in Kelowna, we crossed the Okanagan River and headed west on Highway # 97 C. Our vehicle traveled past Bear Creek Provincial Park, Crystal Mountain Ski Area, and the villages of Westbank and Peachland. Again, to the north was the ever expansive, Okanagan Valley.

Fifty miles later we turned onto Highway # 5, near Aspen Grove and headed north to Merritt, B. C. After a rest stop, the Coquihalla Highway shuttled us northward towards the metropolis of Kamloops, B. C.

The name, Kamloops was deciphered from the Secwepemc word, T'kemlups: "Meeting of the Rivers." The North and South Thompson Rivers join into one waterway in Kamloops. The First Nation People had lived here for 10,000 years. In 1811, fur traders arrived here and made the first contact with the indigenous residents.

In 1871, the territory of British Columbia became a province of Canada after receiving the promise of a railroad. The Canadian Pacific Railroad arrived in 1885. By 1925 a competing rail company, the Canadian National Railways built a train station in Kamloops. It remains a landmark and museum today. The population of the community is 90,000.

Now back to our travelogue. As it was becoming late in the afternoon and we had not yet arrived at our evening destination because of the extra touring, my wife was getting fretful that our overnight reservation might not be upheld. However, the motel desk clerk had our room key ready. The sight of this hardware banished the worst scenario from my wife's mind. Happy wife, happy life!

More traveling tomorrow.

FATHER'S DAY GIFTS

If you're a dad, you may be in line to get some nice gifts on Father's Day. But your greatest gift may be your ability to help your children. One way of doing that is to get them started in the world of investing – and making a few investments on their behalf.

Here are three possibilities:
 *529 plan – If you invest in a 529 education savings plan, your earnings can grow federally tax-free, provided the money is used for qualified educational expenses. (Withdrawals not used for these expenses will generally incur taxes and penalties on investment earnings.) If you invest in your own state's 529 plan, you might receive some state tax benefits, too, depending on how your state's tax laws apply to 529 plans. State-by-state tax treatment may vary, so you'll need to consult with your tax professional about your situation.

Provided you stay within certain limits, you can also use a 529 plan to pay for qualified K-12 expenses and registered apprenticeship programs. And you can even use it to repay certain qualified student loans, within limits.

A 529 plan can affect financial aid, but its effect is generally lower than that of other assets. And as the account owner, you have control of your 529, so, if one child decides not to go to college or pursue further education, you can switch beneficiaries.

*UGMA/UTMA account – When you establish a special type of custodial account known as either UGMA (Uniform Gift to Minors Act) or UTMA (Uniform Transfers to Minors Act), you are providing financial resources that can be used for education or another purpose that benefits your child, such as summer programs.

One potential benefit of an UGMA or UTMA is that some of the earnings will be taxed at the child's rate, which is likely lower than your own. Plus, UGMA/UTMA accounts typically allow a wide range of investment choices. However, once children reach the age of majority (typically 18 or 21) they gain complete access to the money and can do whatever they want with it.

IRA – A child with any taxable compensation, such as money from an after-school job, is eligible to fund an IRA. You may want to open one on your child's behalf – and you can "sweeten" the offer by matching some of their contributions. You can't directly invest in the IRA, but you can give your child money for that purpose. Keep in mind, though, that the total amount contributed can't exceed your child's taxable compensation for the year.

An IRA is a great introduction to the world of investing. For one thing, your child can make small contributions throughout the year, so investing in an IRA doesn't seem burdensome. Also, since an IRA can be invested in different types of securities, your child can learn about various investment vehicles – stocks, bonds, mutual funds and so on. Plus, you can point out that, with a traditional IRA, taxes won't be due on the earnings until your child starts taking withdrawals decades from now. (And with a Roth IRA, withdrawals are tax-free, provided certain conditions are met.)

On Father's Day, you can show your appreciation for whatever gifts you receive from your children. But by investing in their future, you can gain some longer-term contentment.

PLAYTIME: IT'S NOT JUST FOR KIDS, SAY EXPERTS

(StatePoint) While most of us associate playtime with childhood, adults are increasingly acknowledging the importance of play and leisure time for themselves.

A new survey commissioned by The Genius of Play and conducted by OnePoll finds that 89% of adults have learned to appreciate the importance of play and leisure time over the past year. What's more, 84% say taking time to play helps them be more productive at work.

"You're never too young or too old to play," says Anna Yudina, senior director of marketing initiatives at The Toy Association, which spearheads The Genius of Play. "In fact, research links play with a number of wellness benefits in adults, such as reducing stress, boosting life satisfaction, and empowering people to be creative, flexible thinkers."

To incorporate play into your life, consider these tips from The Genius of Play:

* Take on a Hobby: Seventy percent of adults picked up a new hobby or leisure activity over the past year -- and with good reason. Hobbies can be a source of positive emotions, get you outdoors, encourage physical activity and social interactions, and spark creativity. From roller skating to dancing to crafting to playing an instrument, consider taking on a new, playful hobby or revisiting one you enjoyed during childhood.

* Plan a Game Night: While play often occurs spur-of-the-moment, life is hectic and schedules are jam-packed. Consider scheduling time for fun to ensure it happens. For example, make one evening each week a totally screen-free, stress-free experience. Order pizza (or your household's cuisine of choice) and break out games and puzzles. You might even consider planning themed trivia nights delving into your favorite subjects.

* Hop in the Car: Whether you choose a destination that allows you to simply relax, or you take on a more active adventure, a trip can broaden your horizons and rejuvenate you when you're feeling down or just trapped in the daily routine. Consider taking a just-for-fun trip on your own, with a friend or partner, or pack up the car and bring the kids.

* Bring out Your Inner Child: Parents, grandparents and other adults with a kid in their life can spend more time playing with the little ones. Not only is play the perfect way to bond, research highlights a number of associated health benefits. Those who play with children burn 20% more calories per week, and researchers link playfulness to creativity, spontaneity and positive attitudes. Intergenerational play can help adults maintain cognitive skills as they age and even extend their life. A study published in the journal "Evolution and Human Behavior" found that grandparents who help out with grandchildren live longer.

If you're looking for some inspiration, visit thegeniusofplay.org for tons of fun, free games and downloadable activities.

"While our primary mission is educating parents and caregivers about play's vital role in child development, adults need time to play too," says Yudina. "We hope to motivate people of all ages to play more -- whether it's by embracing personal hobbies or by spending more time playing with their kids."

"OPEN" SIGNS TAKE ON NEW MEANING FOR SMALL BUSINESS OWNERS

(StatePoint) More than a year into the pandemic, the "open" sign in countless online and retail storefronts has evolved into a universal symbol of the grit of small businesses. Tenacious entrepreneurs nationwide made a way to stay open in spite of all the obstacles.

As part of an effort to amplify these inspiring stories, Wells Fargo has commissioned three artists to design custom "open" signs for businesses that persevered and is also pointing entrepreneurs to resources that can help.

Dedicated to showcasing women and diverse voices, illustrator and graphic designer Sophia Yeschi, is paired with Roxtopography, a woman-owned business based near the Colville Reservation, outside of Seattle. Owner Roxanne Best shifted from in-person yoga and photography classes to outdoor stand-up paddleboarding classes and photography that embodies her love of nature.

Precision Productions, a new rental music studio, was just about to open its doors when the pandemic hit. Optimistic owner Kasey Phillips, who hails from Trinidad and Tobago, pivoted to a hybrid in-person and virtual studio model, never wavering from his plan to expand the music scene and own his first studio. Taking cues from music while paying homage to Phillips's Caribbean roots, Korean-born illustrator Deborah Lee, known for her use of bold, vivid colors, is interpreting how Precision Productions made a way to stay open.

"As an artist, it was rewarding to support not just a small business that stayed open in tough economic conditions, but one that's a platform for creativity," says Lee.

Writer, illustrator, visual artist and community organizer Gabriela Alemán has a passion for helping combat food insecurity. With her comics and pop art aesthetic, she's working to bring the mission of PREP Atlanta to life, which focuses on offering diverse food truck owners and caterers access to a commercial kitchen. During the pandemic, PREP Atlanta was a venue for keeping the city's restaurant and food industry afloat, including for many Black-owned businesses. Aleman will combine her art with a shared dedication to feeding the community as she depicts PREP Atlanta's grit.

This project comes on the heels of the July 2020 announcement of the Wells Fargo Open for Business Fund, a roughly $420 million small business recovery effort providing grants to nonprofits that serve small business owners. The fund was created by donating all gross processing fees from Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) loans made in 2020. The company has also committed not to take a profit from the second round of PPP. Overall, the Open for Business Fund is expected to translate into roughly $1 billion in available financing and 7.5 million hours of technical assistance for small business owners, helping them close the gap on rent, utilities and employee pay, while accessing expertise to adapt for the future.

To learn more about available support or to download an artistic "Open" sign, entrepreneurs can visit wellsfargo.com/together.

"Today 'open' signs represent much more than they used to, embodying the ingenuity required to pivot in this ever-evolving economy," says Jenny Flores, head of Small Business Growth Philanthropy at Wells

Fargo. "We are inspired every day by small business owners pushing through these tough times, particularly those who have been hard hit. This effort aims to shine a light on stories of resilience so entrepreneurs can learn from each other and seek the resources needed to keep their dreams alive."

HOW TO TREAT ON-THE-GO STAINS

(StatePoint) Whether it's spilling a to-go coffee on your stark white shirt or dropping your blush brush in your lap, stains can happen anywhere at any time, even to the most poised among us. But how -- and when -- you deal with the stain can impact whether your garment survives the snafu.

While spills that occur at home can instantly and easily be treated by flushing the garment under cold water (don't use hot water as it can cause the stain to set), when you're on-the-go, you'll need a fast solution that doesn't require a wardrobe change.

One convenient way to ensure your clothes stay good as new, come what may, is by keeping a stain remover pen with you. For an effective option that's safe for all colorfast, washable fabrics and doesn't leave a residue, try the OxiClean On the Go Stain Remover pen. Recommended by 91% of reviewers, according to PowerReviews, it works great on common food, drink and makeup stains, tackling anything from spaghetti to soy sauce in two steps:

1. Remove excess residue from the stain and place a napkin behind the fabric.
2. Squeeze the pen, and use its scrubber tip like an eraser to eliminate the stain.

For more on-the-go stain removal information, visit oxicleanpen.com.
