FARM BUSINESS PLANNING

Family farmers can get tips from Purdue University specialists on business communication and dealing with accounting and legal issues during a succession planning program.

"Cultivating Strong Indiana Farm Family Relationships for Today and Tomorrow" will be offered in March. The program is presented by Purdue's Women in Agriculture and Farm Succession Planning teams in partnership with the North Central Risk Management Education Center.

The program will be held on March 21 and 28, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Purdue Extension Allen County office, 4001 Crescent Ave., Fort Wayne.

Kelly Heckaman, Purdue Extension educator in Kosciusko County, said Indiana farmers and farm wives have asked educators for advice on handling their family businesses.

"In order to get estate planning started in families, they need to be able to communicate about it. And it's an emotional topic, so it can be hard to get those conversations started," Heckaman said. "The workshops will give families ideas on improving their conversations and skills to help them work through their problems and keep their families intact."

Purdue Extension presenters include Janet Ayres, agricultural economist; Angela Gloy, farm business planning specialist; and members of Purdue's Farm Family Succession Planning Team.

Heckaman said the program is a collaboration between Extension and local communities, as organizers will invite local accountants and attorneys to speak on financial strategies. It is being offered at nine other locations in Indiana.

The first-session agenda topics are: "A Great Year to Farm: New Farmer Financial Skills," "The Team Approach: Working Together Through Transition" and "Communicating for Success."

The second session's lineup is "Business Structure and Taxes," "The Truth about Pre- and Post-Nuptial Agreements" and "Strategies for Managing Conflict."

Registration is $50 for individuals or $100 for families up to four members.

For more information, contact Ed Farris, Agriculture and Natural Resource Educator, Purdue Extension - Huntington County Office, 354 N Jefferson - Suite 202, Huntington by calling 260-358-4826.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL

Salamonie Elementary School will host four 5th grade boys/girls intramural basketball games at Salamonie School. Those dates are: Jan. 31, Feb. 5, Feb. 14 and Feb. 28. Games begin at 4:00 p.m. with boys playing first. Come and show your support for our 5th grade Boys and Girls Basketball Team and cheer them on to victory! GO REBELS!

JR LEADER MEETING

The Huntington County 4-H Junior Leaders will meet Thursday, February, 7, 7:00-8:00 p.m. at the Family Living Building, Hier's Park, Huntington. VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

There is a need for volunteers at Van Buren's SwitchUp. The SwitchUp is an after school place for 6th through 12th graders, from 2:30-6p.m., opened every day that Eastbrook school is in session. It is a place where kids can come, have fun, and be safe.

The SU needs people 18 years old or older to volunteer for a variety of activities. You may limit your time from a few hours to a few days per month to fit your schedule. Volunteers interact with the kids - playing games, serving snacks, or just talking with them. Our kids are a lot of fun and enjoy volunteers. Come have fun with us!

Snacks are happy times at the SU! Therefore, signing up to prepare a snack such as sliced apples and dip or hotdogs or sandwiches - just to name a few examples - would be welcome treats for the kids. Celebrating Birthdays is something we also do. The kids are always thrilled when someone bakes a cake on their special day. If you are able to bake a cake, that would be a great way to volunteer as well.

Tutoring with homework is another way to volunteer and to help our kids be successful in school. Should you have skills to assist junior high or high school level, please consider contacting us.

If you would rather just stop by and see what we are all about before volunteering, that is fine

KUDOS, KICKS & KARATS

THE UPTOWN GARDENER

by Ruth Herring

January has really flown by and really wondered where it went, but it makes it that much closer to spring time. I was surfing the net one day when I was trying to entertain myself and came across a web site that had lots of interesting things to check out. I wrote it down and now have misplaced it but I think it was called all about. There was a good garden site there and kept me entertained for quite a while. One that got my attention was a video about starting plants. This person would start cuttings in seed starter or well balanced soil he used a mix of potting soil and added extra peat moss. Instead of dipping the cuttings in rooting compound he dipped them in honey. Naturally I had to get right at it and try it. I took some geranium cuttings and tried it and seems they are doing very well. I used only seed started for the soil. I also started some begonias and they are also doing well. Now I am trying to find room for all of them this when I miss my little greenhouse I had at the other house, but I'm sure I will manage fine.

I had Wayne's mothers cookbook out and was thinking about finding something unique for the cooking part. She had a Farmers Guide book as my mom did, they are almost like a museum piece in itself with the add ins and personal memos. It covered every thing from beverages to making yeast, beauty and health secrets how to set a proper table. She had cut many things from newspapers and magazines which are now yellowing with age but are priceless to me. Someday I will give my girls each of the books and hope they might pass it on to their daughters. The book was published in 1927 so it is getting some age to it.

One recipe that was hand written and pasted in was Jean's Neighbor's Cake. I have wondered for a long time who Jeans neighbor was. I figured since the recipe was pasted in and very secure it must be a good one. I will try it the next time I have company. Here is the recipe for you to try.

Jeans Neighbor's Cake

1 cup Spry (for us old timers it was like Crisco), 1 2/3 cup sifted sugar, blend it together, 2 cups cake flour sifted 3 times (here my mom said to sift flour once measure out the amount needed and sift 2 more times) add in the flour and 5 eggs one at a time mixing well, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Bake in a greased tube pan 1 hour 30 minutes at 325° Then it said wax paper in the bottom greased on both sides. Good luck if you try it, it sounds like it may be similar to a pound cake. I will try it and make a lemon pudding and when cool add in whipped cream to put over it. Enjoy!

COUNCIL NOTES

The Warren Town Council met Thursday, January 17 in the Council Room in Assembly Hall. President Julia Glessner opened meeting at 5:30 p.m.

Local Scouting Coordinator Christy McCarver was in attendance. She gave a report on Scouting programs and continued upgrades to the Scout Cabin. There was concern about the lack of parking area around the Scout Cabin. Council requested Day to get quotes for gravel and measure the area. Volunteers were to be available for spreading the stone and gravel. Town equipment and personnel were expected to be available to rebuild a hill behind the cabin. In order to meet Scouting requirements, community service projects are to be made available to the Scouts.

AT&T had submitted an agreement for placement of additional infrastructure and upgrading to existing infrastructure to the Eleventh Street Tower. After a discussion of the situation Council agreed to notify AT&T that placement of additional equipment would result in amendment to the current $990 per month. Morrison is to contact the company requesting an offer.

Council accepted an offer of $5000 for the purchase of property at 126 East First Street.

Julia Glessner was appointed to the Huntington County Emergency Management Advisory Council. Marilyn Morrison has been appointed to Region III-A Board of Directors.

Council agreed to renew the employee benefit insurance. The renewal will show a 6.1 percent reduction in medical premium cost. A $1500 HAS to each employee to cover the deductible costs.

Ethan Stivers reported the second Chamber of Commerce Expo is scheduled to be held at Salamonie School. The Chamber and Salamonie PROS will work together to schedule a fund raiser during the Expo.

Marilyn Morrison reported that work has been done in the record room on the second floor in preparation for the disposal of non-permanent records. Application must be made to the County committee. A County committee as well has notification to the State Archives before such record may be removed. The process is expected to be completed during 2013. After discussion, Day was asked to get quotes for new doors on these rooms. He is also to get quotes for the exterior door in the second floor council room which is used by auditors and replacement is to be done by a contractor.

Council approved a quote from Funk in the amount of $2000 for Fire Station upgrades. This includes drywall and new lighting. Also approved was the payment of $2000 for replacement of hose and maintenance for some tools on the Rescue Truck. Salamonie Township will share in the cost.

Day reported that Arrow Fence has started work on the replacement and upgrade of the diamond fencing at Tower Park.

According to reports approximately $5000 damage had been done to a pole at Eighth and Wayne Streets, caused by a semi truck. Because of equipment on the pole, T&B was asked to replace the pole without interruption of power to one third of users.

Marshal Spitler gave the December activity report.

A WHARM meeting was to be held January 22 in Andrews.

The next Council meeting is scheduled for February 11. An executive meeting was set for 1:15 on Monday, January 21.

WHAT A SHOT!

On January 14, 2013 at Heritage Pointe retirement center in Warren Indiana, Richard Hinton sank 5 pool balls on the break shot, which was set up by Kay Mounsey. This consisted of 2 solid color and 3 striped balls as noted by Melvin Dooley. This is unusual as normally only 1 to 3 balls (if any) are sunk on a break shot. The feat was witnessed by Ralph Taylor, Kay Mounsey, Clarence Myers, and Jim Jones. Also on January 24, Jim Jones sank 4 balls on the break shot which were all solid colors, and all went in the pockets on the right side of the table, 1 at each end and 2 in the side pocket. His break shot was from the left side of the pool table.

FLU SEASON

Winter is the season for influenza, and as the flu season continues, State health officials want to remind Hoosiers this is also norovirus or "stomach flu" season. Norovirus is not actually influenza, however, both may be prevented by taking measures to protect yourself.

This season, health officials are reporting that a new strain of norovirus has appeared. This new strain, called GII.4 Sydney, originated in Australia and has been detected throughout Europe and the United States. This strain is overtaking others to become the dominant strain in areas where it has been found. Most people will be susceptible to this new strain; however, it does not carry worse symptoms than others.

Health officials confirm the new GII.4 Sydney strain of norovirus has reached Indiana and say they will continue to investigate outbreaks and monitor disease activity.

"With so much discussion regarding this flu season, it is important for Hoosiers to understand there is a difference between influenza and what is commonly called the stomach flu," said State Health Commissioner William Van Ness II, M.D. "Knowing the difference can help prevent both illnesses."

Norovirus infection, also known as viral gastroenteritis, is not the flu at all but a viral infection of the intestinal tract. It is spread through eating or drinking contaminated food or drink or by close contact with an infected person.

Norovirus is more common in the late fall through winter, but infections and outbreaks can occur anytime of year. This virus is very contagious and easily spread by infected people, contaminated food or drinks or touching contaminated surfaces. Norovirus can survive on surfaces for up to 72 hours. Symptoms occur about 24 to 48 hours after exposure and include sudden onset of nausea, vomiting and diarrhea. Other symptoms may include fever, headache and body aches. Most people recover fully within one to two days without complications.

"Flu shots do not protect against norovirus," said Dr. Van Ness. "However norovirus prevention is similar to flu prevention in the need to frequently wash hands, disinfect contaminated surfaces, wash soiled clothing and avoid preparing food if you're not feeling well."

Influenza, by contrast, is a viral infection of the respiratory tract. It is spread by respiratory droplets from close contact with infected persons or contact with contaminated surfaces or objects. Infection can occur when influenza viruses contact the eyes, mouth or nose, and possibly through inhaling droplets from a sneeze or cough. Sometimes people may become infected by touching surfaces or objects contaminated with influenza viruses and then touching their eyes, mouth or nose.

Signs and symptoms of norovirus ("Stomach Flu") versus Influenza (Flu):

- Norovirus ("Stomach Flu")
 - abdominal cramps
 - vomiting
 - nausea
 - watery diarrhea
 - fever (usually slight)
 - headache
 - fatigue
- Influenza (Flu)
 - fever 101 degrees Fahrenheit or greater
 - headache
 - fatigue
 - cough
 - muscle aches
 - sore throat

For more information about norovirus or influenza, visit the Indiana State Department of Health at www.StateHealth.in.gov.

TUITION FREEZE

Huntington University today announced a tuition freeze for the 2013-14 academic year. For the second time in a decade, the university's Board of Trustees approved a zero percent tuition increase. The tuition freeze will apply to all incoming and returning students, including traditional undergraduates, adults enrolled in professional programs, and graduate students.

"In these uncertain economic times, students and parents will have one less worry," said President G. Blair Dowden. "While the cost of higher education has escalated across the nation, Huntington University is holding the line on tuition. That's one reason Huntington was listed as a regional best value for five of the past six years. We have worked hard to keep costs competitive while delivering outstanding value and excellent educational results."

Huntington University will also continue to safeguard its students' financial success through its innovative Loan Repayment Program (www.huntington.edu/loans). The program reimburses all or part of a graduate's loan payments if their employment income falls within certain thresholds. Loan repayment assistance was first piloted by Huntington in 2009 and has continued each year for all incoming undergraduate students, regardless of academic major.

"First through its innovative loan repayment plan, and now by freezing tuition, Huntington is making a strong statement on its commitment to affordability and educational value," said David L. Warren, president of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities. "In recent years, a growing number of private colleges have taken innovative steps to keep students' out-of-pocket costs as low as possible and remain a great value for the dollar. Huntington has been at the vanguard of that movement."

Huntington was one of the first universities in the region to respond to concerns over the cost of higher education by adopting a tuition freeze for the 2004-2005 school year. Since that time, Huntington's tuition increases have been low. Now, Huntington will continue to hold the line on cost by having no tuition increase at all for 2013-2014.

Across the United States, the average tuition at four-year private institutions this year is $29,056 and the total cost of attendance averages $43,289, according to The College Board. Currently, Huntington's tuition ranks 23rd out of the 31 independent colleges and universities in Indiana and 56th out of the 109 members of the Council for Christian Colleges and Universities.

Huntington University's undergraduate tuition will remain locked at $23,300 next year. Room, board and fees will rise slightly to bring the total sticker price to $32,200, or an overall increase of 1.6 percent. This figure includes a new technology fee which will underwrite a campus wireless and cloud printing initiative (Learn more at www.huntington.edu/2013-wireless-network).

"Due to generous institutional aid through scholarships and grants, the average student only pays about 60 percent of the full tuition amount before other sources of financial aid, such as state and federal grants and loans, are factored in," said Jeff Berggren, senior vice president for enrollment management and marketing. He also noted that more than 90 percent of undergraduates receive financial aid in the form of scholarships, grants, loans or work-study assistance. He added that all students should file the FAFSA and use tools such as online net tuition calculators to look beyond the sticker price.

Tuition for HU's professional and graduate degree programs will remain at current levels for next year, between $348 and $466 per credit hour, depending on the program.

Huntington University is a comprehensive Christian college of the liberal arts offering graduate and undergraduate programs in more than 70 academic concentrations. U.S. News & World Report ranks Huntington among the best colleges in the Midwest, and Forbes.com has listed the university as one of America's Best Colleges. Additionally, Princeton Review has named the institution to its "Best in the Midwest" list. Founded in 1897 by the Church of the United Brethren in Christ, Huntington University is located on a contemporary, lakeside campus in northeast Indiana. The university is a member of the Council for Christian Colleges and Universities (CCCU).

DON'T POKE THE BEAR

by The Fly Lady, Marla Cilley
What is it about sleep! We hate to go to bed at night but then in the morning we can't pour ourselves out of bed! I can tell you all about this. In our perfectionism we want to do one more thing before we go to bed and it gets later and later. When we finally do crawl underneath the covers our bodies are starving for the sleep we have been deprived of. No wonder we don't want to wake up when the alarm clock goes off at dawn. I can hear you now; just a few more minutes.

Our children had bedtimes. We can't wait to put them down to bed so we can have our alone time. Why don't you have a bedtime too! Going to bed is not difficult if you plan for it! This is what our Before Bed Routine is all about; gearing down your body so you can sleep when you finally do get to bed.

Sleep is a nutrient to your body just like food and water. When you sleep your body repairs itself. When you don't get enough rest your body feels like you are being tortured. Why do we torture ourselves every day by not getting enough rest? I know your excuses. There are not enough hours in a day to get everything done. This does not give you the right to rob your sleep account to pay for your too busy schedule.

Let's look at what happens when you don't go to bed at a decent hour and get your rest.

The first thing that happens is we don't want to get up in the morning so we hit the snooze button several times. By the time we finally do get up we are running late already. Our bodies are stressed enough since we didn't get enough sleep and then we add to that pressure cooker by being late and rushing. Can you just feel the adrenaline pumping through your veins? I am getting stressed out just writing this because I have lived it. Then next thing we do is add to our adrenaline addiction with a caffeine fix. Before you know it; you are buzzing and everyone around you is walking on eggshells because they don't want to poke the bear.

Then you hop in the car still rushing and half dressed. You have to run back into the house because you forgot your keys and purse and the stress is mounting. Since you were in such a hurry; you didn't eat any breakfast. Now you are running on empty and you are praying that your car is not on empty either, because who has time to stop and get gas. This is when we are pushing the limits of our cars and our bodies.

This kind of stress causes more accidents than anything. Why do we do this to ourselves every single day all in the name of perfectionism? We need our rest and we can't play catch up on the weekends to get it. Start your Before Bed Routine right after dinner. Slow down your thinking by reading or listening to music. Lay out your clothes for tomorrow. Put the things you need to take with you by the door. We call this our launch pad. Now here is the most important thing to do. Set a bedtime for yourself. Yes I know you think you are an adult now and don't need a bedtime; but you really do! Do it for your body, mind and spirit and for those around you! Getting enough sleep will make you a different person! Think about your child when they didn't get their naps. Are you ready to FLY by Finally Loving Yourself enough to go to bed at a decent hour?

CARRYING A GRUDGE

by V Neil Wyrick

It's been a long while since I heard this bit of wisdom from an old farmer a number of 58 years ago and I may have embellished on it or forgotten some of it. But this is how I remember it.

"Son," he said, I was 26 and he was pushing toward ninety. "Son, when you're down a bit just remember that every path has its puddles and that if you want to start feeling better be a nicer person. 'You'll just always feel much better when you practice kindness than when you practice meanness and it really doesn't take a very big person to carry a grudge."

And I thought if a truism I have carried around for a long time "A very small, insecure person can carry a very large grudge."

Okay...it's experimental time. Work with me on this one. It may help keep you from being a "grudger," or at least lessen the number of the "grudges" you hold in your heart and are giving you heart trouble.

First, make a fist and squeeze it as tight as you can.

Now squeeze it tighter and tighter still and more so.

Now hold it there until your hand is getting tired. Keep on squeezing.

Enough already? You feel it is time to let up.

Now notice something. If you squeezed it long enough and hard enough, there is pain in your fingers now that you finally let go. And if you went even longer than common sense told you you should it would hurt even more.

Ah, are you beginning to get the message? The longer you carry a grudge and squeeze it close, the more it hurts you.

Another phenomenon...the longer you squeeze the more energy it takes to remain focused and accomplish the same amount of "squeeze power." That's right, the longer you carry a grudge the more of your life and energy it consumes and the less time and energy you have for everything else.

It has been said that life is too short to carry a grudge. Well, actually it's too long.

The Huntington North DECA Club was involved in the district competition at Fort Wayne Snider HS, on January 19th. The students did very well competing in a role play situation as well as a written test in their particular field. We had two 1st place teams; Chad Wingo and Andrew Sizemore competing in Financial Services, and Kole Hale and Luke Doughty competing in Marketing Communications. The two 2nd place teams consisted of; Lauren Daas and Drew Schnitz competing in Travel and Tourism, Abby Blocker and Brooke Lengerich competing in Hospitality Services. One 4th place team of Conner Kreider and Gabe Hess competing in Sports and Entertainment. One 6th place team of Leah Ness and Taylor Bailey in Hospitality Services. All of the students have now qualified for the state competition to be held in Indianapolis on March 3-5th.
