10 DOCTOR-RECOMMENDED HEALTH RESOLUTIONS FOR 2026

(StatePoint) With a new year ahead, the American Medical Association (AMA) is offering Americans 10 evidence-based tips for staying healthy in 2026 and beyond:

- Get health screenings: Schedule preventive visits, tests and screenings so your physician can catch conditions before they become more serious.

- Manage stress: Mental health is part of overall health. Techniques such as meditation, deep breathing and yoga can help reduce stress. Ask for help from a mental health professional when you need it.

- Be physically active: Start the year off by prioritizing physical activity. Strive for at least 150 minutes of moderate-intensity activity or 75 minutes of vigorous intensity activity each week. If you have a sedentary lifestyle or primarily sit for long stretches at work, build in frequent breaks to stretch and move throughout your day.

- Follow a healthy diet: Drink water instead of sugar-sweetened beverages and eat nutritious, whole foods, including fruits, vegetables, whole grains, nuts and seeds, low-fat dairy products and lean proteins. Avoid unhealthy ultra-processed foods, especially those with high levels of added sodium, saturated fats and sugar. Drinking sugary beverages, even 100% fruit juice, is associated with a higher mortality risk, according to a study published in JAMA Network Open.

- Stay hydrated: Drink plenty of water or other beverages composed mostly of water, such as milk or herbal tea, to avoid dehydration and to keep your body functioning properly. Even mild dehydration can drain your energy and make you tired. Adult men should get about 15.5 cups of fluids a day and women should get 11.5 cups, according to the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine.

- Get plenty of good sleep: To maintain your health and emotional well-being, most adults need 7 to 9 hours of quality sleep. Rest helps boost immunity and improve mental clarity.

- Update vaccinations: Vaccinations remain the best defense against flu and other serious respiratory viruses. Since significant flu activity can stretch into May, it's not too late to get a flu shot. The AMA recommends vaccination as long as the threat of flu remains. Talk with your physician or other health care professional to determine which vaccines are right for you. To cut through vaccine confusion and have open, honest conversations with your physician, first go to the AMA website for evidence-based information. For help finding a flu vaccine in your area, visit GetMyFluShot.org.

- Drink in moderation: If consuming alcohol, do so in moderation as defined by the U.S. Dietary Guidelines: up to one drink per day for women and two drinks for men, and only for adults of legal drinking age.

- Quit tobacco, nicotine and e-cigarettes: Ask your doctor or health care professional for resources and guidance to help quit smoking, vaping or using other nicotine products. Make your home and car smoke-free to eliminate secondhand smoke exposure.

- Follow medication directions: When taking prescriptions, store them safely to prevent diversion or misuse, and properly dispose of any leftover medication. If you're prescribed complete the full course to prevent antibiotic resistance.

"With the holiday cookies eaten and those missed workouts officially last year's worry, the new year is a great chance to refocus on the healthy choices you want to make in 2026," said AMA president Dr. Bobby Mukkamala. "Even tiny changes now can snowball into major gains for your long-term health."

OUTWIT SCAMMERS WITH THESE SMART TIPS

(StatePoint) Scammers don't take days off. From phishing emails to package theft, fraudsters and scammers can cost you money. Fortunately, you can stay one step ahead of them with these simple tips to help protect yourself.

1. Strengthen your online security: Safeguard your accounts by using unique, 12-character passwords and enabling multi-factor authentication whenever possible. Avoid using public Wi-Fi, such as free internet connectivity in coffee shops or libraries, where cyber criminals might be lurking to access your information. Instead, it's safer to use your phone's mobile hotspot. Be cautious of unsolicited emails or messages promising prizes or freebies — if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is. Block and report anything suspicious before deleting it. And ask your provider what services they offer for safe browsing, such as Safe Browsing from T-Mobile 5G Home Internet to block malicious links.
2. Donate only to trusted charities: Before making charitable donations, check online reviews by looking up the organization and "complaint" or "scam," or use trusted resources like Charity Navigator.

Be cautious with AI-generated content where fraudsters may use AI tools to create convincing emails, websites and fundraising messages. Use a credit card instead of a debit card as they offer stronger fraud protections and don't give scammers direct access to your bank account.

3. Use your wireless provider's scam protection: Scammers often rely on robocalls and spoofed numbers to make calls look inviting to answer. Most providers have protection from robocalling and spoofing, including T-Mobile and Metro by T-Mobile, which give customers Scam Shield, a free feature that labels scam calls as "Scam Likely." These calls can be blocked by dialing #662# or turning on Scam Block in the T-Mobile app, giving users peace of mind. Lastly, forward suspicious texts to 7726.

4. Monitor deliveries and protect packages: Mail and package theft happen all year round, especially as online shopping continues to grow. Track your shipments in real-time using delivery notifications and apps. Consider installing a smart door camera to monitor activity on your front porch. Many models offer live video feeds and motion detection, sending real-time alerts so you can quickly contact authorities if needed.

5. Stay informed and report suspicious activity: Stay updated on more tips and protections you can take with resources like T-Mobile's Privacy Center and the Federal Trade Commission (FTC). If you encounter suspicious or fraudulent activity, report it to the FTC at ftc.gov/complaint and the National Center for Disaster Fraud. By reporting

5 ADVANCES IN ALZHEIMER'S CARE AND TREATMENT IN 2025

(StatePoint) For the millions of Americans touched by Alzheimer's disease, 2025 brought major advances in understanding of brain health and progress in diagnosis and treatment. Here are the year's biggest advances, along with how you can take action with this knowledge in 2026:

- 1) A structured plan can sharpen brain health.

In a major U.S. clinical trial of older adults at risk for cognitive decline, two healthy lifestyle plans in the Alzheimer's Association's U.S. POINTER study improved memory and thinking skills over two years. Both interventions included exercise, brain-healthy nutrition, cognitive training and heart health monitoring. However, participants in a highly structured program that also included regular coaching and peer support showed significantly greater brain health gains, demonstrating that when brain-healthy habits are organized and supported, people stick with them and thinking skills benefit.

Next steps for families: Start small but structured: aim for 150 minutes of weekly exercise of at least moderate intensity, Mediterranean-style meals, 7–8 hours of sleep per night, and 2–3 short brain-training sessions each week. Put goals on a shared calendar, find an exercise or brain-health buddy, and schedule regular check-ins with your clinician or healthcare professional.

- 2) Simple blood tests can help spot changes earlier.

Treva's Recipe Box by Treva Flemming

I love stuffed bell peppers so when I seen this recipe for stuffed pepper soup I knew I had to try it.

So, for Saturday supper, I tried it and it was very good. You might want to add some fresh bread or rolls with it for a little something extra to have with it but it is filling. So I'll share with you the recipe. Note: I have added salt pepper and farm dust to season it up a little.

Stuffed Pepper Soup

1 c. prepared instant white rice
 1 pound of ground beef
 2 cups of chopped green peppers
 1 cup chopped onion
 1 jar -26 oz. chunky tomato pasta sauce
 1 can-14 oz Italian diced tomatoes, undrained
 1 can 14 oz beef broth
 salt and pepper to taste
 Farm dust seasoning or Italian seasoning to taste

Prepare rice according to package direction. Meanwhile in a large pan, cook the ground beef, green peppers and onion until meat is no longer pink, drain well. Stir in the pasta sauce, tomatoes, broth and prepared rice, heat thoroughly, add seasonings to your liking.

GENEALOGY REPORT

In 2025, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) cleared two blood tests that detect Alzheimer's-related brain changes, offering a less invasive, less expensive option for those experiencing memory changes to support diagnosis and potentially reduce the need for PET scans or spinal taps. Blood tests are not stand-alone diagnostic tools, but their use can help guide next steps for testing, treatment and planning. The Alzheimer's Association has developed clinical guidelines to help specialists determine when to use blood tests alongside established "gold standard" tests and clinical judgment.

Next step for families: Ask your health care team whether an Alzheimer's blood test makes sense for you or a loved one, and how your results would affect lifestyle and health care plans. If they recommend testing, ask them to refer you to a specialist who can explain the results and next steps.

3) Americans want to know and act sooner.

A recent Alzheimer's Association national survey of adults 45 and older found most want to learn early if they have Alzheimer's before symptoms impact their lives, and 9 out of 10 would take a simple test, if available, to clarify next steps. Nearly 3 in 5 respondents said they would accept a moderate or high level of risk to take medication that could slow the disease's progression.

Early awareness unlocks time to live healthfully, organize support, consider treatment options, and plan finances and care preferences.

Next step for families: Bring your top concerns, what's changed (memory, mood, function), and goals for the next three months to your next appointment.

4) Treatment can be easier to take.

The August 2025 FDA approval of Leqembi for delivery via weekly subcutaneous injections may ease treatment for some patients. Those who complete initial infusion treatments as directed for 18 months can now receive their subsequent weekly treatment using at-home autoinjectors.

Fewer infusion clinic visits can mean less travel and lower caregiver burden, making it easier to stick to treatments for eligible patients. Decisions depend on eligibility, monitoring requirements, side-effect profile, and your clinician's judgment.

The Alzheimer's Association encourages clinician participation in ALZ-NET, a nationwide program collecting real-world data on Alzheimer's treatments.

Next step for families: If treatment is on the table, ask whether at-home injections might be an option after the initial phase, and what monitoring you'd still need.

5) A new clinician hub helps care teams stay current.

When clinicians have fast access to evidence-based resources, patients get clearer answers and more consistent care. The new centralized professional portal, ALZPro, launched by the Alzheimer's Association, now curates practice guidelines, professional training, and point-of-care tools for earlier detection, appropriate test use, treatment eligibility and safety monitoring.

Next step for families: Let your health care professional know that the Alzheimer's Association has new research, training and support materials for professionals.

For information, support, research and public policy, visit The Alzheimer's Association at alz.org or call 800.272.3900.

From new diagnostic tools and treatments to proven lifestyle plans, major advances in Alzheimer's in 2025 can change how you manage the disease in 2026.

ZAHM

Christine Diane (née Michael) Zahm, 67, entered eternity peacefully in her Huntington home on Saturday, Dec. 20, 2025.

She was born on September 16, 1958, in Kenton, Ohio, to James Richard Michael (Captain) who preceded her in death and Mona Gail (Dutton) Fletcher, who lives in Warren.

Christine married Richard "Dick" Zahm on February 7, 1997. He survives in Huntington.

She was a 1976 graduate of Elida (Ohio) High School.

Christine was co-owner of Northside Cleaners and Parkmoor Car Wash for many years.

Her life was a quiet light that touched everyone who crossed her path.

From childhood, when she first placed her trust in Jesus, Christine sought to love others the way He loved her.

Joy was her constant companion - present in her words, her service and the countless ways she placed others before herself.

Christine cared deeply and gave freely, pouring strength and compassion into those around her.

Her generosity reached far beyond her home, extending to missions and to her faithful work at Covered with Love. stepchildren, Connie Smith, of Huntington, Cindy (Mike) Cook, of Huntington, and Rick (Laura) Zahm, of Huntington; nine grandchildren; four great-grandchildren.

Even in her final days, when her earthly journey grew short, Christine's spirit never dimmed. Along with her father she was preceded in death by her sister, Lisa Rymarquis, and stepfather, Jerry Fletcher.

Gratitude flowed from her - to every nurse, technician and doctor who watched over her. A Celebration of Life honoring Christine will be on Saturday, March 14, 2026, at 1 p.m. at Life Church, 900 E. State St., Huntington.

Christine's kindness remained unwavering, a reflection of the One she followed.

To know her was to witness a life anchored in Jesus.

And our invitation to you is the same invitation she lived by; say "yes" to Him. In Him, there is peace that outlasts hardship, and a joy that outlives us.

Like Christine, you can be a child of the Living God, knowing that your last breath here leads to your first breath in His presence.

When you remember her, may you remember the love of Jesus she so beautifully carried.

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." (Matthew 5:16)

Along with her loving husband, Richard "Dick," of 28 years, Christine is survived by her daughter, Brianna Spurgeon; her mother, Mona Fletcher; her Dawn graduated from Eastbrook High School in 1991 and went on to complete her education at Wrights Beauty School in 1993. As a beautician Dawn loved cutting and styling hair at salons including JCPenney and also became the go-to hairdresser for everyone in the family.

Her strong work ethic and dedication to provide took her in many directions in the workforce throughout her life. Aside from cutting hair, some of her most enjoyed jobs were QVC, Peyton's Northern, and most recently Red Gold where she acquired some very valuable friendships.

Dawn was self-taught, DIY, "let me YouTube that" smart. Very little could hinder her ability and determination to figure out how to fix, improve, create and do things herself; even without experience or prior knowledge.

A lover of adventure, taking chances and flying by the seat of her pants- Dawn was capable of navigating and leading with minimal fear. She enjoyed traveling and taking road trips, mowing her yard, thrifting, her pets, and grabbing a diet Pepsi and her lottery scratch offs at the convenience store.

Dawn was preceded in death by her parents Bob, Betty, her mothers long time partner Dick Elliott, and her Brothers David Gibson and Doug Gibson.

Dawn is survived by her 3 children, Kyra Oliver of Matthews, Brittany (Conner) Crouch-Monahan of Muncie, Alexander Monahan of Montpelier, Grandsons, Price Oliver and Slade Oliver of Matthews, One Brother, several nieces and nephews along with numerous friends.

She will be deeply missed by those who knew her.

With Consideration of Dawns wishes she will be cremated with no services.
