BE PREPARED

September is National Preparedness Month. The goal of this month is to encourage individuals, families and communities to take proactive steps in preparing for various emergencies and disasters. House fires, tornadoes, winter weather and power outages are just a few emergencies that can affect Hoosiers.

Each member of your family needs to know their role and what to do for each emergency. That includes the older members of your family. The focus of 2023's National Preparedness Month is preparing for older adults.

"Just like every member of your family, older adults face great risks when it comes to emergencies, especially if they are living alone, have a disability or live in rural areas. We need to check in on our family members and neighbors before, during and after a crisis to make sure they have the support they need," said IDHS Emergency Management and Preparedness Director Mary Moran.

This focus underscores the necessity of creating inclusive emergency plans that consider factors like mobility challenges, medical needs and social isolation, which can significantly impact the well-being of older individuals during crises.

Tips for planning for elderly adults in an emergency include:

* Plan how you will communicate with older adults if you have a communications need.

* Plan for food, water and essentials they will need.

* Plan ahead for transportation if they need help evacuating.

* Include items that meet their individual needs, such as medicines, medical supplies, batteries and chargers, in their emergency supply kit.

You can learn more about creating emergency kits and plans at <https://www.in.gov/dhs/get-prepared>.

REGISTRATION MONTH

Indiana Secretary of State Diego Morales and the National Association of Secretaries of State (NASS) encourage citizens to celebrate national Voter Registration Month by registering to vote or updating their existing registration.

The Secretary of State's Office coordinated voter outreach efforts every day at the Indiana State Fair. Hoosiers from throughout the state registered to vote, and many others checked and updated their voting registration.

"As Indiana's Chief Election Officer, one of my priorities will always be encouraging all eligible Hoosiers to register to vote. It only takes a few minutes, and it can be done online. Every election is an opportunity for people to exercise their right and have a voice in their community. Getting registered to vote is the first step and then we need Hoosiers to show up at the polls on Election Day," said Indiana Secretary of State Diego Morales.

Voter registration is available at county clerk's offices or online at IndianaVoters.com. The deadline to register to vote is October 10, 2023, for the upcoming Municipal Election on November 7, 2023.

Requirements to vote in Indiana:

* Have a valid Indiana Driver's License or Indiana State Identification Card or other government issued photo ID

* Be a citizen of the United States

As I said before, on to trip #2 to California.

Summer of 1983, we embarked on a trip of a lifetime to California by the Amtrac train system. I must say it was one that went down in the record books as one of the best trips. Well so we thought.

It all started with us taking a commuter train from Indianapolis to Chicago, so at 3 in the morning we loaded up in my uncle Arts car and headed to Indy to catch the train. Now I really don't know why we didn't just go to Waterloo, maybe they weren't up and running yet, but we headed to Indy and was dropped off. We boarded our commuter train to Chicago and of course I have never rode a train so I was in for an adventure. Now I'm going to be honest with you all, I wasn't feeling so good that morning, because of the partying I did the night before, yep I was hungover pretty good or maybe still a little under the influence, but I managed to keep it under cover somehow. So we arrived in Chicago and we had time before we needed to board our train to the west coast, so we went to the bathroom, freshened up and took a little time to check out Union Station. Well when we got done in the bathroom, we went out to find dad and he was nowhere to be found. Oh great we lost dad. We knew he wasn't in the bathroom cause he went first then stayed with the extra bags. We looked around and finally found him, he was over talking to 3 Buddhist men. I told mom "oh great dad got trapped by the 3 bald guys wearing robe's" so we walked over and mom grabbed dad by the arm and pulled him away, "come on we got a train to catch" and we went to the area where we needed to be, early. Lol

So we headed out to board the train and there she was this silver, blue and red bullet looking thing that was about to take us on this remarkable trip to the west coast the "California Zepher". We boarded on an found our seats, mom and dad in front and I was one seat back behind them, thank god so I could still recover in peace. Then this strange man said excuse me, I now had a seat companion, he put his belongings where he needed them and set and stared out the window. Now mind you once he set down he didn't speak one word, never looked up, nothing, he stared out the window, I thought to myself good I have a quiet trip.

So we take off and we are leaving Union Station heading out to the wild west and I say this, no pun intended. I thought we would never get out of Chicago, it went forever and ever and finally I seen some countryside. My mom finally turns around to check on me and ask me how I was doing, oh I'm doing great, meanwhile I'm still trying to keep from getting sick cause now we are really moving and the train was doing

A TRIP AROUND LAKES

HURON & SUPERIOR DAYS # 3 & 4

by Larry Ryan

After spending the night in Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, which lies on the north shore of the St. Marys River, we boarded the Algoma Central Wilderness Passenger Train and headed north. This train only departs every other day for the seven hour trip to Hearst, Ontario. It was time to let someone else drive.

There was One strict requirement to be met before tickets would be sold for this rail trip. Each passenger must have verified, overnight hotel/motel reservations in Hearst! Why? There was no return trip to Sault Ste. Marie on the same day. Of course my wife had made reservations! She always planned ahead. Our garage door was not opened until all overnight reservations were securely in hand! She took no chance of not having a prepaid, complementary pillow to call her own for the night!

The day spent rail traveling was relaxing even with the repetitive jostling of the train cars as they crossed the rail connections. Standing on the platform at the rear of the last rail car (no caboose), was the perfect location to photograph memories. Wildlife sightings were essentially negative except for several species of birds. The land dwellers must have been spooked by the noisy train engine.

The town of Hearst had a population of 5,500 and was the northernmost terminus by rail or highway in this area. It was located next to the Mattawishkwia River and 300 miles north of the US border. Hearst was noted for wilderness hiking, fishing, and a variety of winter activities. Our brief stay included visiting the Gilles Gagnon Welcome Center, window shopping, selecting a restaurant, and testing our stamina to climb hotel stairs. No elevator!

Hearst is affectionately known as the "Moose Capital of Canada" and a main attraction is the Rheault Distillery. I can truthfully announce that we did not come in close contact with either one!

People journey to this area to view the "Northern Lights," also known as the Aurora Borealis. The summer is the least desirable time to see this phenomenon due to the extended daylight period. September to March is the ideal viewing period for the spectacle—more darkened sky—best background. This phenomenon results when a solar storm approaches our atmosphere and mingles with gasses. Oxygen produces red and green lights.

The next morning we were on the same train for the southbound, return trip. About half way to Sault Ste. Marie, we passed through Hawk Junction, ON. A map identified this crossing as being a 15 minute drive east of Wawa, ON which lies on the east shore of Lake Superior in Michipicoten Bay. Wawa will be on our route tomorrow. We are looking forward to seeing Lake Superior, the largest of the Great Lakes.

We were glad to have taken this two-day excursion, but also relieved to be free of the train's rhythmic jostling. A good night's sleep was also enjoyed. However, the train's "bouncing" feeling lasted another day!

NATIVE PLANT WORKSHOP

Eco Fest in Fort Wayne is welcoming the public to learn about native plants, native landscaping, and invasive species at a community native plant workshop. Fall is a great time for both planting and planning, so this workshop will be held on Sunday, September 10th from 3:00 to 4:30 P.M. at the Allen County Public Library's Main Branch in Meeting Room A.

Native plants provide critical habitat for many pollinator species including butterflies, moths, bee species, and more. Integrating plants that naturally occur and thrive in the Northeastern Indiana climate can also help to reduce water usage while providing natural beauty to landscaping and gardens.

The workshop will feature Indiana Native Plant Society's chairperson, Freya Berntson. Attendees can expect to learn about the benefits of incorporating native plants into gardens and landscaping, while also learning the basics of both native and invasive plant identification. Tips will also be offered to help attendees maneuver HOA regulations.

Attendees are asked to pre-register via email to ecofestfw@gmail.com. There is no cost to attend, but donations based on your ability to give are encouraged and will be accepted at the workshop itself. Interested individuals can learn more by visiting ecofestfw.org

Submarines were crucial to the success of America's defense strategy during the two World Wars [1914-1918;

1939-1945,] but their maiden missions actually happened at the time of the American Revolution.

According to History.com, "[They] were first built by Dutch inventor Cornelius van Drebel in the early 17th century, but it was not until 150 years later that they were first used in naval combat. David Bushnell, an American inventor, began building underwater mines while a student at Yale University. Deciding that a submarine would be the best means of delivering his mines in warfare, he built an eight-foot-long wooden submersible that was christened the Turtle for its shape. Large enough to accommodate one operator...[it] was entirely hand powered. Lead ballast kept the craft balanced."

The Grateful American Book Prize recommends The American Turtle Submarine, The Best-Kept Secret of the American Revolution by Arthur Lefkowitz.

In June 1776, Founding Father Richard Henry Lee of Virginia proposed a congressional resolution: "That in all continental commissions, and other instruments, where, heretofore, the words 'United Colonies' have been used, the stile be altered for the future to the United States."

History.com reports that "By September, the Declaration of Independence had been drafted, signed, printed, and sent to Great Britain. What Congress had declared to be true on paper in July was clearly the case in practice, as Patriot blood was spilled against the British on the battlefields of Boston, Montreal, Quebec and New York. Congress had created a country from a cluster of colonies and the nation's new name reflected that reality."

The Grateful American Book Prize endorses The Epic Story of 1776: 25 People, 13 Colonies and 1 War by Jenny L. Cote and Libby Carty McNamee.

As country-wide know-how ascended in the 19th century, postal service fell behind; to bolster it; the Overland Mail Company was rolled out on September 15, 1858, with an investment of $1 million-- [$37,279,390 in 2023's currency].

History.com says that funds were required to make a "winding 2,800-mile route and [to build] way stations at 10-15-mile intervals. Teams of thundering horses soon raced across the wide-open spaces of the West, pulling custom-built Concord coaches with seats for nine passengers and a rear boot for the mail."

Known also as the Butterfield Overland Mail Company it "operated from 1858 to 1861 under contract with the U.S. Postal Department, providing transportation of U.S. mail between St. Louis, Mo. and San Francisco, Calif. The route proposed by the Butterfield Mail Co. became known as the 'Oxbow Route' because of its shape on a map, starting in St. Louis and then dipping southwesterly through Missouri, western Arkansas, and the Indian Territory, turning west across Texas and southern New Mexico and Arizona, and then curving north again in California to finish at San Francisco," according to the company's website.

The Grateful American Book Prize recommends The Butterfield Overland Mail: Only Through Passenger on the First Westbound Stage by Waterman L. Ormsby.

5 FUN FOOD ROLE-PLAYING GAMES FOR LITTLE ONES

(StatePoint) It's common to ask kids to stop "playing with their food," however, when playtime rolls around, food and fun go hand in hand.

Role-playing games involving grocery stores, cooking, restaurants, and other food-centric activities and scenarios, can be excellent opportunities to teach kids about flavors, colors and numbers. They can also model how to interact in common social situations and help kids develop a healthy relationship with food. With that in mind, here are a few toys and games to try with little foodies:

1. Run an Ice Cream Cart: Learning is sweet when pretending to run an ice cream cart. The Scoop & Learn Ice Cream Cart from LeapFrog, for ages 2 years and up, lets kids create a variety of imaginative and tasty-looking ice cream combinations using four flavors of ice cream, three toppings and three syrup flavors. Kids can use the magic scooper to build customer orders, which will recognize the colors and flavors, then press the pump to add pretend syrup while counting to ten. By choosing from six animal order cards and following the instructions, kids can build memory and sequencing skills. They'll have fun ringing the bell to let "customers" know their order's up! Then, when they're ready to move to a new location, they can store the accessories and push the cart around to hear upbeat songs and music.

2. Throw a party: Have your child throw a "dinner party" and invite all their stuffed animals to attend. Pretend to prepare a big festive meal, going through the steps of cooking each dish. Then, set the table and sit down to dinner with your "guests."

3. Go on a Picnic: Learn about colors, shapes, manners and more while on a pretend picnic with the Shapes & Sharing Picnic Basket for ages 6 months and older. Kids can lift the lid to hear cheerful phrases and unpack the 15 play pieces, including colorful plates, forks, cups and food. The interactive shape sorter on the lid recognizes and says the shape and color of each food piece. Kids will hear polite food requests and learning songs by pressing the butterfly button, and get rewarding responses that encourage good manners when they drop the correct food in the basket.

4. Run a Farm: One of the best ways to familiarize kids with where food comes from is to play farm. Incorporate a lightweight watering can, along with toy foods, into the game and pretend to do chores like watering plants, harvesting crops and gathering eggs.

5. Go Shopping: Kids can take turns being the shopper or the store clerk when playing with the Count-Along Basket & Scanner, designed for ages 2 years and up. Featuring play food, shopping lists and an interactive scanner that recognizes each food piece, kids can carry the shopping basket or expand it into a rolling shopping cart, switching between three interactive play modes to learn all about food groups, names of food, colors, shapes and numbers.

Food is a central part of life, providing nourishment and an opportunity to gather with loved ones. That's why it's so important to make sure it's part of playtime too.

TEACH KIDS KINDNESS AND GRATITUDE WITH THANK YOU NOTES

(StatePoint) Nearly 60% of Americans say they send thank you notes at least occasionally to show their appreciation for a gift or favor, according to a recent poll from AmericanGreetings.com.

While writing thank yous might seem time consuming, it's actually a wonderful opportunity to teach children important life lessons such as kindness, gratitude and empathy.

Whether they are thanking their new teacher, their favorite fall sports coach, or a friend or family member, here are a few tips and tricks for creating meaningful – yet simple – thank yous with kids this back-to-school season and beyond.

Focus on the Positive It's important to give children a "why." Parents should explain that when people receive a thank you note, it not only makes them feel good, but it lets them know that the gift arrived safely and was appreciated. By placing the emphasis on the person who gave them the gift – rather than on themselves – it changes thank yous from a pain-point to a positive.

Make it a Fun with Devices Kids love devices – so put their screen time to good use with apps like American Greetings Creatacard for iPad. The app offers a fun, easy and engaging tool to make and send greeting cards. Plus, receiving them will be just as exciting – as homemade cards from kids are enjoyed by 93% of Americans!

Whether making a card from scratch, coloring a card or customizing a pre-made design, the Creatacard app allows kids to explore their imaginations. Simply choose from a variety of virtual (and mess-free) tools, such as pencils, paint, markers, photo frames, stamps and stickers to add designs, images and personalized messages. Best of all, the app is free to download, and cards can be sent instantly via email, text, messaging apps or shared on social media.

Power of Personalization

According to the American Greetings poll, personalized messages are the most important and enjoyed part of thank you notes. Parents should encourage kids to think about what made the gift so special and be sure to communicate that message. Was it something they really needed or wanted? Will they use the check or money for a specific purpose? Spending a few extra minutes personalizing each note will go a long way to show their sincere appreciation.

Timing is Everything – The Sooner the Better!

It's proper etiquette to be timely in sending thank you notes. In fact, 54% of Americans say they should be sent within one week of receiving a gift. Build good habits with kids by sending thank yous as soon as possible. It may be helpful to plan ahead and establish a set time within a week of the celebration for children to create and send their cards.

HOW AMERICAN FARMERS PROMOTE ECONOMIC AND NATIONAL SECURITY

(StatePoint) After steadily declining for over a decade, global hunger has reached an all-time high. Continued supply chain disruptions from the COVID-19 pandemic, Russia's invasion of Ukraine, escalating inflation and a rapidly changing climate, have exacerbated challenges around the world, particularly in developing countries, and today, as many as 828 million people still go hungry.

Experts point out that hunger is not just a product of such crises, it can perpetuate more hunger and regional instability, especially in areas already experiencing violent conflict.

"Heightened levels of food insecurity make it much more difficult for communities to build lasting peace, which in turn, leads to greater food insecurity," says Dan Glickman, former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture. "By working with our partners around the world, America and American farmers can help save lives at this critical moment."

These issues were front-and-center at the recent U.S. Global Leadership Coalition's (USGLC) 2023 Heartland Summit, which took place in two Heartland cities: Detroit, Michigan and Sioux City, Iowa. The annual summit brings together leaders from across the Heartland for critical conversations on how global investments in agriculture and U.S. international affairs programs help to create jobs, feed the hungry and reduce poverty around the world. According to event leaders, these are this year's biggest lessons and takeaways:

world directly impacts local Heartland communities' success and prosperity. It's why hundreds of farmers are speaking out on why investments in diplomacy, development and global food security help keep America safe, strengthen the U.S. economy and strengthen families and communities across the Heartland.

American agricultural exports of U.S. farm and food products to the world posted its best export year ever in 2022, totaling $196 billion and topping the previous record set in 2021 by 11% -- clearly demonstrating the indispensable nature of American farmers to America's economy.

With food insecurity severely impacted by global crises, the work of farmers and the American agriculture community to help feed the world is essential. It's why USGLC's network—Farmers for Prosperity—aims to shine a spotlight on the crucial role farmers play in solving critical global issues and how U.S. global leadership is essential to protect the security, health and economic interests of American families.

Farmers around the world grow the food that sustains families and creates stability in communities and countries. Amid growing threats on the global stage from wars, drought and climate change, farmers are part of the solution.

American farmers have unique views on what it takes for the United States and world to prosper, making it important for them to raise their voices in an effort to help shape U.S. foreign policy.

U.S. leadership in the world is vital in advancing national economic and security interests. When it comes to issues like trade, America can only stand up to countries like China and Russia when it's on the global playing field.

The State Department and USAID are vital links in helping open new markets for American agricultural products, which is not just good for American farmers, but promotes stability and security globally. At the same time, the long-term goal of empowering farmers and communities around the world to feed themselves builds a safer, more prosperous world.

To watch the 2023 Heartland Summit, visit heartland.usglc.org.

"Fighting global hunger by strengthening our nation's leadership around the world, enabling our nation's farmers to compete, and building new stable markets for our agricultural exports is a moral imperative and a matter of U.S. economic and national security," says Glickman.

MEDICAID AND CHIP HELP FAMILIES ACCESS MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES FOR KIDS

(StatePoint) The state of mental health among youth continues to be of public concern. According to the latest Centers for Disease Control and Prevention Youth Risk Behavior Survey, youth mental health problems have increased significantly over the past decade, reaching an all-time high.

For instance, from 2011 to 2021, the rate of female high school students saying they feel sad or hopeless increased from 36% to 57%; for male students this rate increased from 21% to 29%.

Stressors at school, home or elsewhere can cause mental health disorders to arise, leading to negative impacts on how children learn and build relationships with others. If your child may need mental health support and doesn't currently have health coverage, you have options. Free or low-cost coverage through Medicaid and the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) offers many benefits, including doctor's visits, prescriptions, emergencies and the coverage of behavioral health services, including mental health services through pediatricians, mental health professionals, local community providers and organizations, as well as school systems. People who are pregnant or postpartum may also be eligible for this health coverage and mental and behavioral health services.

Who qualifies for Medicaid or CHIP? Eligibility varies by state and is determined by how many people are in a household and household income. For instance, in most states, a family of four with household income up to $60,000 per year may qualify for Medicaid, CHIP or both. To learn more about state-specific options, visit InsureKidsNow.gov or call 1-877-KIDS-NOW. Enrollment is open year-round.

What if my child currently has Medicaid or CHIP coverage? Medicaid and CHIP coverage must be renewed annually. If you or your children have Medicaid or CHIP, it's time to pay attention to your health coverage. Keep an eye on the mail for renewal information from your state. When it comes, complete the forms and send them back right away. Failure or delay in responding can result in you losing coverage, even if you are eligible for Medicaid and CHIP. If you have lost coverage, go to HealthCare.gov to find quality plans and help paying costs.

What types of services are covered through Medicaid and CHIP? To help care for all parts of a child's health, Medicaid and CHIP also cover routine health care visits, like preventive care, dental and vision checkups, specialist visits, physical, speech and occupational therapies, and emergency services. These programs also cover a wide range of mental health and substance use services such as counseling, peer support services, inpatient psychiatric services and case management services for needed medical, educational and social services. Services are covered through Medicaid for children and teens up to age 21 and through CHIP up to age 19.

States have flexibility to determine if services may be delivered using telehealth.

These services are necessary to prevent, diagnose and treat a broad range of mental health symptoms and disorders, as well as substance use disorders.

Caring for mental health is caring for overall health. Early detection and intervention of mental health and substance use issues is crucial to the overall health of kids, teens and people during and after pregnancy, and may reduce or eliminate the effects of a condition if detected and treated early. Take the time today to explore coverage options through Medicaid and CHIP.

the sway back and forth type thing, yep slosh, slosh the stuff from the night before. I think I learned my lesson right then and there. So she finally said let's get up and move around, go to the bathroom etc. Ok I said, so we ask where the bathroom is and it was below us, so we descended down this some what spiral stairway and it was definitely one place you didn't want to stay too long, very cramped kind a tunnel going down to the lower level. It didn't take me long to get down the steps, too enclosed for me, and there they were the glorified port a pots. You had room to pull your pants down and up and that was it. My dad hasn't seen them yet but he was due to soon, so that would be a good conversation soon to happen. And just as I guessed it, it was quite the conversation. Lol.

So as the afternoon turned into a couple of naps, it was time to go to the dining cart. So we had a time reservation in and we went down the tunnel past the glorified port a pots to the dining cart. I believe I had a hamburger and fries for supper and a soda. We went to the observation deck and checked it out and watched the country go by all beautiful. it was a great first day. Until next time, I'll finish my trip to the wild wild west, because it was a night to remember for a very long time. So next week I'll continue this adventure. Have a great week.
