CATTLEMEN TO MEET

The Huntington County Cattlemen will meet on Thursday September 13 at 7:00 p.m. at the Huntington County Courthouse Annex. Topics for discussion include: proposed changes for beef and starter calf projects; date for Beef ID Day in 2019; judge selection for Preview Show, 4-H Fair Beef Show, and 4-H Fair Starter Calf Show in 2019; and an update on Beef Quality Assurance (BQA) for 2019.

Interested 4-H members and parents involved with the beef and/or starter calf project are encouraged to attend this meeting. As a reminder, submit bios of judge candidates in advance of the meeting.

For more information, contact Purdue Extension – Huntington County Office, 1340 South Jefferson, Huntington or call 260-358-4826.

LIBERTY CENTER DAYS

The 17th Annual Liberty Center Days Music Festival will be held at the Liberty Center Park on Sunday, September 9, starting at 12:00 noon. There will be several bands playing - Mountain Dewe Boys, Austin City, Six Feet to Salvation, Jamie Lewis and the Dave Lile Band - for your entertainment.

There will be a bike ride sponsored by The Freedom Riders, Chapter 7 Bluffton. Registration from 9am to 10:30am. Kickstands up at 10:30am. There is a $10 fee per bike.

Miscellaneous prizes will be drawn, with the 1st place prize being a griddle, gas grill, 2nd place $100 cash and 3rd place, $50 cash, with raffles and other prizes all day. If you buy a raffle ticket, you do not need to be present to win.

All proceeds will be donated to the music festival for the Liberty Center Park for improvements.

Please bring lawn chairs. No alcohol permitted.

FESTIVAL MINUTES

The SSF Committee held our monthly meeting on August 14th at KBC at 6:30pm. The meeting started with Joyce Buzzard giving a treasury report that showed a net gain for this year's festival. The Festival dates for the 2019 SSF will be July 3rd (Fireworks) – July 7th, with the parade on Friday, July 5th. The fireworks have already been scheduled for next year.

Fundraisers were discussed with the Annual Golf Outing scheduled for June 1st. We will also be having a fundraiser at East of Chicago in October as well as a meal at KBC in the spring.

It was recommended that we have tents over picnic tables by the vendors. There is a company in Bluffton that will possibly donate the tents.

Several events will be returning this year. The Horse and Pony show will be on Saturday. The Movie on the Hill will be on Friday after the parade. We will also be continuing with the Family Fun Freeway, the kids art program and the Pretty Funny Balloons.

We discussed options for this next year's theme. If you have any suggestions, please let one of the officers know and we will be voting on a theme at the next meeting.

Officers were nominated and voted on for this year's festival. President – Cheryl DeWeese, Vice-President – Melinda Daniels, Treasurer – Joyce Buzzard, Secretary – Kari Heim. Our next meeting will be on Tuesday, September 11th at 6:30pm at KBC. If you have any ideas or suggestions please contact one of the officers or attend the meeting.

FURNISH FARM GROWS HEMP

Ananda Professional uses a homegrown, all-natural approach to farming. They grow 100% of their Hemp product outdoors in Kentucky soil. One of Ananda Hemp's founders is Brian Furnish, an 8th generation Kentucky farmer. Brian is the Director of Global Production and a leading authority on hemp legislation. He authored the only federally legal path that exists for industrial hemp production and distribution (Section 7606 of the 2014 Farm Bill). This federal regulation allows the distribution of CannaBiDiol (CBD) products in any State that authorizes their sale.

Indiana law became effective July 1, 2018. Ananda Hemp is a completely vertically-integrated company, working side by side with their farmers, and processing their crops on-site at one of the world's most sophisticated state-of-the-art CBD production and laboratory facilities. Ananda follows the FDA Current Good Manufacturing Practice (cGMP) regulations, which ensures product consistency, purity and potency. They bring their products from their Farm to Your Pharmacy!

The Warren Pharmacy has partnered with Ananda Professional to make their Hemp-derived CannaBiDiol available. Ananda Professional produces Pharmaceutical Grade, 100% Legal, Made in America, non-psychoactive, full spectrum Cannabinoid products. All Natural products from Farm to Pharmacy! Their products are available as a Sublingual Tincture (or Oil), in marked dropper bottles, which is the common method of producing this product. Their THC Free Tincture is helpful for those who may be in a job or situation where Drug Testing may occur. They also produce a SoftGel Capsule, which is available in bottles of 30 and 60. And a Salve for any irritating spots on your body that you desire relief for. You can visit their informative website: www.anandaprofessional.com

The Indiana legislation that allows these products to be sold without a prescription, restricts all products sold in Indiana to have less than 0.3% of THC, which is the psychoactive ingredient in the Hemp plant. Indiana has very strict requirements for these products.

Stop by the Warren Pharmacy, and talk with your Pharmacist, Terry Daniels, about the many benefits this product may have for you and your loved ones.

VENISON PROCESSING WORKSHOPS

The Purdue Cooperative Extension Service, in partnership with the Indiana Department of Natural Resources' Division of Fish & Wildlife is once again sponsoring its' award-winning series of September venison processing workshops. During each workshop, a deer will be skinned, butchered, and prepared in a variety of ways for the participants to taste. Food safety and handling procedures, as well as an update on deer health issues will be presented. These highly-acclaimed programs are designed to provide hands-on opportunities for participants to practice what they have been taught. The personable and experienced instructors ensure that there is an informal atmosphere during the programs, and pledge to stay afterwards until all questions have been answered. The overall goal of our instructors is to equip participants with the skills and knowledge necessary to safely

IS IT TIME FOR THAT CAREER CHANGE?

from the American Counseling Association
 Current news reports seem to show that in many areas of the country the economy is performing strongly. Housing prices are up, corporate profits are increasing and unemployment rates in most places are at historic lows.

An environment like this can be a good time to evaluate your own employment situation and how satisfied you are with both where you're working and the kind of work you're doing. If the answers you find show you aren't enjoying your career, this might be the time to consider a change.

While making a mid-life career change can seem frightening for most people, if the alternative is staying in your current position where you're feeling unhappy and unsatisfied, then such a change is at least worth considering.

Start by asking yourself some questions about your current career:

- Do you find you dread going to work each day?
- Does Sunday afternoon leave you depressed because Monday morning and work are approaching?
- Is your current work providing a sense of contentment or accomplishment?
- Are there things you enjoy about your work, or do you find it difficult to be interested and motivated in your job or field of work?
- Do you feel your abilities and experience are being underused?

If you're answering yes to the majority of such questions, it's a strong sign you may be ready for a career change. That doesn't mean you should head for work tomorrow and hand in your resignation, but rather that it's time to start researching options.

Your library or local bookstore is a good starting place. There are numerous books on career change that can help you identify your abilities, interests and values.

You may also want to consider meeting with a professional counselor specializing in career and employment guidance. Such counselors can provide resources such as interest and personality tests that can help you clarify your goals and identify possible careers. A counselor will work with you to help you narrow your focus and to develop a plan for action.

Making a major career change can seem daunting but staying in a job that leaves you unhappy and dissatisfied can lead to serious problems. Done correctly, a career change can give you a better sense of control over your life, and excitement about the opportunities in your future.

REFRESHER BOTTLING COMPANY

The Refresher Bottling Company was started in a building where the Church of Christ now stands in 1911. Then they moved to the north next to the church. The Bottling Works was owned by Jim Schemehorn. After operating in these two locations for two years, he built onto the left side of his barn at his home, across from where the Trailer Court is now.

No machinery was used to bottle the pop. Cleaning and capping the bottles was done by hand. The pop was delivered on a flat bed wagon. A team of horses were used to deliver the delicious flavors to points such as Plum Tree, Majenica, Mount Etna, Dillman, Montpelier and Van Buren.

The slogan for the Refresher Bottling Company was; "As good as the best and better than the rest." Refresher pop sold for fifty cents a case of twenty-four bottles. The Kolatona they bottled was sixty cents. Kolatona was a recipe given to Mr. Schemehorn by a doctor from Huntington. The doctor had stomach problems and claimed the celery flavored drink had cured him.

The busiest time was getting ready and during fair week. They would bottle as many as ten cases, per person, in an hour. The bottling company closed in the early 1920's.

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS EXERCISES

On September 10, 2018, area hospitals, health departments, emergency managers and other healthcare partners will participate in an operational exercise. The exercise will test many capabilities of the area's healthcare system. In the 11 counties of Indiana District 3, 19 hospital facilities and close to 100 healthcare partner facilities will be included. The healthcare partner group is made up of long term care facilities, ambulatory surgery centers, rural health clinics, dialysis centers, home health, hospice and physical offices.

These facilities are tasked with participating in these emergency preparedness exercises due to CMS (Centers for Medicare and Medicaid) regulations, however the focus is how to improve response and be more self-sustaining during emergency events.

Vantage Point Consulting is proud to be selected to plan, conduct and evaluate this large exercise. Many hours of planning and coordinating among the healthcare facilities is required to conduct a successful exercise. This exercise process starts with setting objectives and determining the emergency that is to be included in the scenario.

Visitors, residents and patients will likely will not know anything different is occurring on September 10. Patients' and residents' needs come before the exercise.

COLLECT TREE SEEDS FOR CASH

Indiana's state tree nurseries in Vallonia and Medaryville may pay you to collect certain tree seed throughout the state.

Each year, the nurseries, part of the DNR Division of Forestry, plant millions of seeds to produce tree and shrub seedlings for conservation planting within the state. Each year much of the seed the nurseries use is supplied by collectors from all over the state. DNR Forestry pays seed collectors on the basis of "pure live seed." That term means the seeds must be from the required tree species, and cannot be infected with disease or infested with insects.

DNR Forestry's goal is to produce 2-3 million seedlings each year for conservation plantings. Because of natural factors, achieving that goal requires planting about 8.5 million seeds. DNR Forestry, which operates the nurseries, orchestrates statewide seed collection with the goal of diversifying the seed source. Such diversification allows the nursery to grow seedlings that will be well adapted to grow into mature trees throughout the state.

Some of the seeds being sought, and the price per seed offered, include black oak, black walnut, pin oak, red oak, shumard oak, and white oak (2 cents per each qualifying seed); and bur oak, chinkapin oak, swamp chestnut oak and swamp white oak (3 cents per each qualifying seed). A complete list of species needed, prices and dates needed is at dnr.IN.gov/forestry/9799.htm.

Some pointers for collecting:

- Always call first to see if the seeds you plan to collect are still needed.

- Collect only seeds and fruit – no leaves, sticks, or trash.

- Keep species separate – if you're not certain that two (or more) trees are the same species, keep them in separate containers.

- If you are not certain if you have the proper species, email a photo of the seed/fruit, leaves, bark, and twigs to the address below for identification.

- Most of the listed species are ripe and ready to collect when they fall off the tree.

- Healthy acorns (with the exception of bur oak) will fall free of the cap.

- Keep the seeds/fruit cool until you can deliver it to us – an air-conditioned basement is good for a short period of time.

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW TO SURVIVE ANY DATING SCENARIO

Dating is never easy. Never mind first impressions and the getting-to-know-you awkwardness, the Internet has created a world where every foible, every flaw, every little thing (both literally and figuratively) is on display for the all the world, including potential dating partners, to see.

"Surviving any worst-case scenario comes down to not panicking, having a plan, and ultimately being prepared," David Borgenicht, author of The Complete Worst-Case Scenario Survival Handbook: Dating & Sex, told the Chicago Tribune in an interview. "And this applies to the realm of dating."

This is why it's important to be prepared for any dating scene so you aren't wondering whether leaving-by-the-bathroom-window might actually be an option.

The following tips will help you avoid the minefield of dating.

- You spill wine all over the table, yourself or your date. The best-case scenario is that you and your date laugh it off. Bonus? If you like one another, it's an easy way to ask them out for a second date — to a dry cleaners where you'll foot the bill. At worst? If the sparks aren't there, it's a built-in excuse to end the evening early.

- You're running late. There are a million ways things can go wrong—unexpected traffic, the boss asks you to stay later than you planned, mistiming on how long it takes to get ready — and all of a sudden you've kept your date waiting. In this instance, take a few minutes to send a quick text message or phone call to let them know you've run into a snag, but will be there as soon as possible. Better yet, give them a timeframe. One caveat: try to keep it light. If you sound stressed about being late, they'll be stressed while they're waiting.

- You're a smokeless tobacco user. For smokeless tobacco users, the mere thought of taking a spit cup or bottle on a date is horrific, and of course, an absolute no-no. So, what to do? You might think about investing in a portable spittoon made by FLASR, an Atlanta-based company that specializes in creating smokeless tobacco accessories.

To avoid the messiness that sometimes goes hand-in-hand with using smokeless tobacco, the FLASR flask has an advanced closing mechanism, ensuring that it stays securely closed when not in use, thus eliminating the risk of spills and leaks often found with cups and bottles. In addition, the small size of the FLSR flask allows users to enjoy smokeless tobacco unobtrusively while in public.

LEWIS

Michael G. "Mike" Lewis, 67, of Warren, died Tuesday, Aug. 28, 2018, at his home in rural Warren.

He was born March 12, 1951, in Huntington County.

Survivors include his brother, Paul (Judy) Lewis of Warren; and a sister, Betty (Sammy) Collins of Batesville, Ark.

He was preceded in death by his parents, W. Allen "Stretch" and Velma Johnson Lewis.

In honoring his wishes, there will be no calling hours or services. Arrangements are being handled by Glancy-H. Brown & Son Funeral Home in Warren.

WRIGHT

How does one summarize a life of 36,655 days?

On August 27, 2018

Elenore R. Wright, 100, was surrounded by her family as she joined the church triumphant. Just last April 18th, she celebrated her 100th birthday at York Place, Marion, Indiana, where she resided.

She is survived by her sons, Dr. James B. Wright (Peg) and Richard B. Wright (Nancy), four grandchildren, Staci Wright-Adams (Frank), John, Brent and Alison Wright and 2 great grandchildren, Christian Wright and Gabriel Pyle. She was preceded in death by her husband, John Scott Wright, Jr. in 1965, her parents James Marion and Lulu Pilkington Convoy, grandson Waylon Wright, and great-grandson Jordan Daniel Wright.

Elenore was born one mile east of Van Buren on a 40-acre farm. She attended elementary through high school in Van Buren where she was active in Art Publication Society and Music Distribution. She went on to study music at George Washington University, St. Louis, MO and Ball State University, Muncie, IN.

Elenore was musically gifted. She was formally trained as a pianist, played beautifully by ear and had perfect pitch. After studying piano with Delight Lee for eight years, she rode the interurban from Van Buren to Marion to continue her piano studies with Edward Turechek at the Marion Conservatory. While there, she gave many recitals and began her piano teaching career. She continued giving private piano lessons in her home for over 40 years.

John and Elenore were married in 1939 and owned a restaurant in Van Buren that was the gathering place after all the VBHS athletic events. Together, they built a beautiful home in Van Buren for which Elenore drew up the blueprints. She was known to be quite the decorator and was called upon to design church facilities in Van Buren and Gas City. She loved landscaping and took pride in the care of her yard and home. Elenore worked at the Van Buren Post Office, drove a rural mail route, and retired from the U.S. postal service after 30 years. She was a member of Beta Gamma Federated Women's Club, Van Buren United Methodist Church and the Van Buren United Methodist Women. She previously had served as their church pianist.

The family would like to thank the staff at York Place for their love and dedication in their care for Elenore. Her sense of style, wit, sense of humor, and her love will be missed by her family and friends. We would also thank the Ferguson & Glancy Funeral Home in Van Buren for their caring service in determining final arrangements.

The family will be celebrating her life by greeting friends at the Van Buren United Methodist Fellowship Hall on Wednesday, September 5, 2018 from 4-6 P.M. In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the Van Buren United Methodist Church. Interment will be a private family service.

Loving and kind in all her ways, upright and just to the end of her days;

Sincere and true, in her heart and mind, beautiful memories, she left behind.

7 HEALTHY, KID-APPROVED LUNCHBOX IDEAS

(BPT) - Kids' school days are packed with learning, laughing and lots of fun. To get the most out their time in class, it's important their bodies and minds are properly fueled. Packing a healthy lunch is on of the easiest ways parents can support their child's education during the day while they can't be there. Healthy foods keep distracting hunger pangs at bay while providing important nutrients to support focus and learning.

Many traditional healthy foods aren't necessarily kid-friendly, which leaves moms and dads wondering how to pack a wholesome lunch that will actually get eaten. Fortunately, a little creative thinking and a few simple lunchbox tricks can help you create tasty meals that will fuel your kids throughout the school day. Consider these seven smart ideas and be inspired to create your own kid-approved combinations.

Think outside the loaf: Sandwiches are a lunchbox staple, but that doesn't mean you're limited to two pieces of bread. To add variety and boost nutrient intake, incorporate fun variations. For example, use whole-grain tortillas to create wraps, or, go one step further and cut up the rolls for bite-size "sushi" that makes it fun for lunching. Another idea: use whole-wheat waffles as the sandwich ends and fill with peanut butter and banana or cream cheese and apples.

Colorful creations: Ever notice how everything associated with kids has tons of color? Children are attracted to vivid hues and you can use this to your advantage when you pack lunches. Put a rainbow in every lunch by packing colorful produce such as green cucumber, cherry tomatoes, purple plums, orange carrots and yellow peppers. You'll keep things visually stimulating and the various colors of fresh foods mean they are getting a variety of vitamins and minerals.

Fantastic freeze-dried fruit: Fresh fruit isn't always an option and that's when delicious Crispy Fruit freeze-dried snacks from Crispy Green can save the day. The perfect complement to any healthy lunch or the ideal lightweight portable snack, Crispy Fruit comes in many single-serving varieties to keep lunchboxes interesting, including banana, apple, pineapple and pear. You can feel good about giving your kids a snack that is 100 percent fruit, non-GMO and allergen-free with no additives or sugar added.

Breakfast for lunch: Is it backwards day? No, but you can get a little crazy by shaking things up when you pack breakfast foods for lunch. Kids will grin with joy as they open their pack to see their favorite whole grain cereal with a side of milk, or muffins with secret healthy ingredients like fruit or shredded veggies. You might even consider your child's favorite breakfast sandwich or a yogurt parfait as a wholesome lunch option.

Slurp up soup: Cold lunch doesn't necessarily need to be cold. Get a reusable insulated container and get ready to delight those kid's taste buds with vitamin-rich soup. Whether you choose a hearty alphabet soup bought from the store or decide to make a batch at home, look for options packed with different vegetables and limited salt. Simply heat up in the morning and it will be ready and waiting come lunch time. Warm soup satisfies the stomach while warming the heart.

Dip and munch: If you have a hesitant kid who is known to snub their nose at fruits and veggies, consider making eating more fun by packing a side of dip. Children adore the act of dipping and it makes eating a fun, interactive activity. A little yogurt will encourage kids to gobble up fruits like orange wedges, apple slices or halved strawberries. Low-fat salad dressing or hummus is the perfect pairing for veggie straws including carrots, celery or sweet peppers.

Protein pick-me-up: Protein helps kids feel fuller for longer, getting them through those lengthy school days. It's important to pack a protein source in lunch, but meats aren't your only option. Eggs are high in protein, so try hard-boiled or scrambled and pack in an insulated container. Other kid-friendly foods high in protein include cottage cheese, Greek yogurt, beans and many nuts or nut butters.

You are what you eat, so it's important to choose your children's foods wisely. For more tips about packing wholesome lunches and living a healthy family lifestyle, visit www.produceforkids.com/poveryourlunchbox or smartlifebites.com.

GOING GREEN A SMART REAL ESTATE STRATEGY THAT ADDS VALUE

Real estate insight: Green home improvements boost value, shorten sale time

(BPT) - Are you thinking of selling your house and want to know some of the best ways to boost your home's value, demand top dollar and potentially inspire a bidding war? Whether you're selling in a few months or a few years, there is one strategy that gets noticed in real estate markets across the United States: green home improvements.

Green homes can sell faster and for more money than comparable houses without eco-friendly features. Better yet, green homes are increasingly in demand. More than half of people rank green and energy efficiency as top requirements for their next homes, according to the U.S. Green Building Council.

What are some of the most in-demand features that can boost your home's value now and prepare it for a higher sales price in the future? Here are five improvements to consider to green your home and help it stand out from the competition.

Solar panels: Can you imagine producing enough energy that your local utilities company pays you for the surplus? With solar panels, this is possible. Plus, solar panels are extremely attractive to buyers who like that a system is already in place, and they can simply move in and enjoy the benefits. Plus, there's a $5,911 resale increase per installed kilowatt, according to the USGBC, which means a 3.1

kilowatt system could improve your home's resale value by about $18,000.

Smart water-leak detection: Home water leaks waste 1 trillion gallons of water per year, according to the EPA. Fixing detectable leaks is a no-brainer, but what about hidden leaks? Use intelligent-water technology like the Phyn Plus smart water assistant + shutoff, which is installed on the main water line after the meter. This device analyzes your home's water use 240 times per second to detect tiny changes in water pressure. Not only can you target invisible water leaks and make repairs to reduce your water footprint, but the device also shuts off the water in an emergency, so you (and future homeowners) never have to worry about damage from things like a burst pipe. Learn more at www.phyn.com.

New windows: Heat gain and loss through windows are responsible for 25 to 30 percent of residential heating and cooling energy use, according to the U.S. Energy Department, which recommends looking for the Energy Star label and reviewing ratings from the National Fenestration Rating Council. Homebuyers are sure to like the updated appearance of new windows, plus they'll appreciate the savings from increased energy efficiency. For a typical home, new Energy Star windows can save $126 to $465 a year when replacing single-pane windows, and $27 to $111 a year when replacing double-pane, clear-glass windows.

Landscaping and treescaping: The right landscaping provides wonderful visual allure to a home, but it can do so much more than that. Strategically planting trees and shrubbery can provide bountiful eco-friendly benefits. During the hot months, shade from trees and other large plants can help keep a home cooler, so your HVAC systems don't have to work as hard. During cold months, these same plants can serve as windbreaks, cutting those chilly gusts and helping protect your home from heat loss. By adding the right plants to your yard, you'll add curb appeal and green resale benefits that go beyond beauty.

Smart thermostat: Programmable thermostats are the norm for today's houses, allowing homeowners to set a schedule and forget it. You can save as much as 10 percent a year on heating and cooling by simply turning your thermostat back 7 to 10 degrees F for 8 hours a day from its normal setting, according to the U.S. Energy Department.

Savvy homeowners looking to get the most out of green home improvements during resale should consider a smart thermostat. These types of thermostats go beyond simple programming and are able to analyze home usage trends, make energy-efficient setting suggestions, and can be controlled remotely.

Whether you're moving soon or will some time in the future, green home improvements boost value now. When it comes time to sell, these updates are sure to capture the attention of the modern homebuyer.

DON'T HAVE TIME TO WALK AND MEDITATE?

TRY THEM TOGETHER

(BPT) - The mental and physical merits of walking are well established, from helping ward off depression to preventing heart disease. Meditation, likewise, can help reduce anxiety symptoms and improve sleep quality. Have you considered combining these seemingly very different activities?

Walking meditation, which doesn't take much of an investment in time or money, can be a good way to reap multiple benefits.

Walking meditation isn't a stroll in the park or an hour in the lotus position, rather something in between. The goal is to be self-focused and mindful of your body in motion. To get started, consider these steps from UC Berkeley's Greater Good Science Center:

* Find a place that's relatively free of distractions and where other people won't make you self-conscious. Your path - whether it's a hiking trail or a little-used hallway - doesn't have to be long; the whole point is to go nowhere, slowly - and safely.

* Relax your hands and arms, stand up straight and take a few deep breaths. Take 10 to 15 small, deliberate steps, counting them in your head. Be mindful of the way your feet feel as they rise and land on the ground, weight shifting from heel to toes.

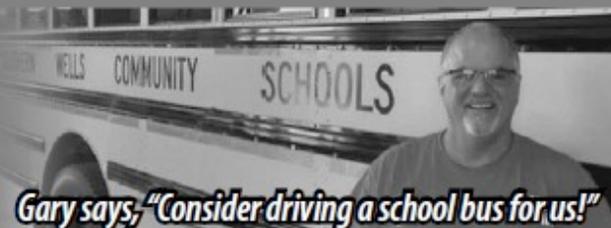

* If your mind wanders, try to push out extraneous thoughts and focus on your breathing or the sights and sounds of your surroundings.

* Pause for a breath, turn around and start again.

Why meditate in the first place? Meditation may help cancer patients by relieving their stress and fatigue. It may reduce blood pressure and alleviate some symptoms of menopause and IBS. There is also evidence that it improves the quality of life for female patients struggling with fibromyalgia by helping them deal with depression and conflict, according to the National Institutes of Health.

Meditation can be good for people of all ages. A Journal of Alzheimer's Disease study found that meditation may help slow the cognitive decline that leads to Alzheimer's and dementia. When college students added meditation to walking, they had lower levels of anxiety than when they merely walked for exercise, according to a study in the American Journal of Health Promotion.

As you take a moment to slow down and practice walking meditation, keep in mind that the results can also be slow. Studies have shown benefits after as little as 10 minutes per session, but most were based on practicing four to six days per week for several weeks.

TIPS FOR STAYING CONNECTED ON GRANDPARENTS DAY

(BPT) - Being a grandparent is a joyful experience, but one of the hurdles can be staying connected with family, especially as a first-time grandparent. With an affordable smartphone and reliable wireless network, grandparents can easily capture and share the special moments that matter, no matter the distance.

With Grandparents Day approaching on September 9, lifestyle blogger and grandmother to 25 Honey Good shares her tips for "Rookie Grandparents" to easily stay connected with their family during this new and exciting chapter.

1. Embrace the emoji and acronyms: Today's young adults do everything on their smartphones and the savvy grandparent stays connected by communicating with them on their level. If your grandchild sends you a text acronym that you don't understand, simply Google it! And embrace emojis! They are how many of your grands are accustomed to communicating, so don't be upset if your long-winded text garners a thumbs up or heart response. Instead, opt to have fun with emojis yourself.

2. Strike a pose: Encourage your children to share each and every moment they capture of your grands with a quick picture or video text. Let them know that too many pictures of your new grandbaby are never enough! You can easily create your own printable photos, or even photo albums, using a variety of services that flawlessly transfer digital memories to print.

3. Social media can be a lifesaver: To maximize your ability to stay connected with your grands, you have to make the extra effort and master the types of communication that your children are most comfortable with. They likely include Facebook, Instagram, Twitter and even Snapchat. Just use your smartphone to stay connected to your kiddos' favorite social media networks wherever you go! You can keep on adventuring while also adoring the newest addition to your family.

4. Stay connected and capture the moments that matter: Whether you're across town or across the country from your grands, it is essential to find a reliable way to capture and share the moments that matter. With Tracfone, "Rookie Grandparents" can stay connected with grands and other family members, no matter the distance. And yes, it's more than affordable - with the 30-day smartphone plan including talk, text and data for just $15, you can easily capture and share your favorite moments without breaking the bank. Even better, you can enjoy Unbeatable Nationwide Coverage(TM) on America's largest and most dependable networks to ensure you're fully connected this Grandparents Day and beyond.

With no activation or cancellation fees and Unlimited Carryover(R)* to keep any unused minutes, text and data, you can change your no-contract plan as often as your needs change, without penalties.

You can depend on Tracfone to stay connected this Grandparents Day and beyond, thanks to Unbeatable Nationwide Coverage(TM) on America's largest and most dependable networks. For more information on affordable, no-contract plans, visit www.Tracfone.com.

Prices do not include fees or taxes. Airtime Service Plan required for activation. A month equals 30 days. Smartphone plans do not triple. *Service must be active and in use within any six-month period.

USING LAND IN LIEU OF A MORTGAGE DOWN PAYMENT

(BPT) - Sponsored Ad Content from Vanderbilt Mortgage and Finance, Inc.

Saving up for a new home can take many people years and to most it can seem like there is no easy answer to achieving their dream. According to the U.S Census Bureau as of July 2018, just 64% of Americans currently own their home. The hurdle that stands in the way of homeownership for the remaining: saving up for the down payment. The great news is, there are other easy options to help you open the door to your new home faster. Many lenders will allow land - either owned or given as a gift - to be used as collateral instead of a cash down payment when obtaining financing to purchase a new home.

Basics of land in lieu Land equity is valuable, but does not work the same as cash. It can potentially be used to secure home purchase financing, but will not lower your actual loan amount like a cash down payment.

The amount of land equity needed will depend on the borrower's credit worthiness, which is determined by a lender's criteria. Depending on the purchase price of the home and the value of the land being used as an alternative to a down payment, little to no additional cash could be required to obtain financing. The lender will hold a lien on the land used as collateral as well as the home, but the liens will be released when the loan is paid in full.

Prefabricated and Manufactured Home Loans

Some lenders will accept land as collateral provided the land has equity value that meets a certain percent of the sales price and the land is free and clear of all existing liens. The amount of equity required is based on the borrower's creditworthiness, the loan program applied for and other factors. For example, if the sales price of a new home is $100,000 and the lender requires 10% equity for the home loan, the land will need an equity value of at least $10,000. The value of the land is usually assessed by a third party, like an appraiser or the local tax assessor. If the land equity does not meet the required percentage, the borrower can talk to the lender to learn about their alternative options.

Typically, manufactured or prefabricated homes have a starting price that is lower than the starting price of a new site-built home with land, so they can be a smart option if saving for a down payment takes a lot of effort.

Making homeownership a possibility for everyone

Trying to secure financing can seem like a big step, especially for first-time home buyers. But, there are options tailored to fit just about every need.

"Our goal is to provide home financing options to customers that best fits their needs," said Eric Hamilton, President of Vanderbilt Mortgage and Finance, Inc. "If obtaining a cash down payment is a challenge, then we have educational resources and specific programs to help those who want to reach the goal of homeownership."

If you do not have any land to use in place of a down payment, that is ok too! Check out these helpful tips on how to save for a down payment.
