HOOSIER HOMESTEAD AWARDED

A Huntington County family that has operated a farm in Jefferson Township for more than 150 years was one of 58 Indiana farming families honored Aug. 7 at the Indiana State Fair as Hoosier Homestead families.

Audra Riggers, who now lives on the farm, and her father, Wallace Riggers, accepted the award.

To be named a Hoosier Homestead, farms must be owned by the same family for more than 100 consecutive years and consist of more than 20 acres or produce more than $1,000 of agricultural products per year.

The Riggers family received the sesquicentennial award, recognizing 150 years of family ownership, but Audra Riggers says the farm has been in her family longer than that.

"I went to the Huntington County Courthouse and looked at the oldest books in the recorder's office and the auditor's office, and it was listed in 1859," she says.

Riggers was then able to document family ownership of the farm back to 1843, but says the family believes the farm was established in 1829 or 1830.

The current house on the property is the second home built there. "I live in the new house," Riggers says. "It was built in 1888."

She grew up in the house and has never left.

The house, Riggers said, was built with bricks made on site. Many of the bricks used in downtown Warren buildings were also made on the family farm, she adds.

The farm was founded by Riggers' great-great-great-grandfather, John A. Richardson, and handed down to her great-great-grandfather, John Richardson, and then to her great-grandfather, Ottie Richardson. Ottie never married but took in an orphan, George Riggers, and raised him as a son.

George died before the farm could be passed on to him, so it went

NEW BOOK AT WPL

The Heiress of Winterwood, a book written by an author with local ties, is now available at your Warren Public Library. The book was written by Sarah E. Ladd, whose mother grew up in Warren. Her mother was Ann Gibboney Wall and her grandparents were Lawrence and Colleen Gibboney.

Sarah is a graduate of Ball State University and holds degrees in public relations and marketing. She now lives in Indianapolis with her husband and daughter.

The Heiress of Winterwood is the first book in the Whispers in the Moor trilogy. The next book, The Headmistress of Rosemere, is due to be released in December of this year. This first title was the recipient of the 2011 Genesis Award for historical romance.

BASEMENT NEWS

Free weekend on apparel, housewares, books and movies at the Bargain Basement, August 23 & 24. The items marked "not in bag sale" are not free.

We will be closed Labor Day weekend.

We will be switching to fall and winter the weeks before and after Labor Day. If you would have a few hours to help us out in the switch over we would appreciate it greatly since we are short on volunteers.

Please stop in and give us your name and phone number and we will call you to let you know which days we would need you.

Thanks to everyone for your support.

Someone left two mattresses outside at the Bargain Basement. They were in poor condition. Luckily we found someone to dispose of them. We cannot be responsible to get rid of items that belong in the landfill. We cannot take mattresses, TV's, bathroom sinks, toilets or large furniture. If you have any of these please take them to Habitat for Humanity in Huntington.

We thank Wendall Summers again for fixing another light fixture. He is an asset to our community for all he does, not just for us.

MARSHALL MARVEL

The Huntington County Extension Homemakers would like to invite county residents to Marshall Marvel, a historic day trip and tour of Marshall, Michigan.

Attendees will kick off the day at the Michael W. Schragg Postal Office Museum where they can observe antique Post Office memorabilia including a Birch Bark letter, a 1890's store front and a 1931 Model A Mail Truck. The trip continues with a guided driving tour of Historic Marshall where participants will view Greek revival homes.

In the afternoon, trip-goers will take a visit to the GAR Civil War Hall, a building constructed in 1902 by Marshall Civil War Veterans. The tour then

FIRST SERVICE

Solid Rock United Methodist Church celebrated a milestone event with its first worship service in the new building on Bennett Drive on August 11, 2013. A congregation of over 200 listened to inspiring music from soloists, the choir, and the praise team, joined in song, and heard words of affirmation from Pastor Kathy Newton, followed by a shared carry-in meal.

Solid Rock was formed on August 1, 2008, a merger of the former Jefferson Center and Warren United Methodist Churches. Planning for a new building began immediately. A successful capital funds campaign was conducted in the fall of 2009. Five years following the merger, the dream of a new facility has become reality.

Thanks be to God for this gift, and to those who have and continue to faithfully support this project!

KUDOS, KICKS & KARATS

THE UPTOWN GARDENER

by Ruth Herring

Today it is looking more and more like fall, they are mowing and the grass is looking as if it hasn't seen rain for a long time and some of the flowers are starting to lose their vibrant colors they had a few weeks ago. So I have been thinking of planting more spring bulbs and what color I want. The green beans are still producing and have several servings put away in the freezer and I'm sure they will taste good this winter. Dale Schwob, Wayne's good friend left me some veggies on my porch recently and they certainly tasted good. Thank you for thinking of me.

I have started some quilting projects to have made ahead to work on when the days get shorter and to cool to sit outside. Also have a couple craft shows Treva and I partake in so need to get really busy preparing for them. For the most part so far at my new home I haven't had time to be bored.

It was not long ago when this time of year and sunny days I would be thinking of washing all 50 windows, with storm windows it was double. Now I can get them done in record time if I choose to. Sure don't miss all those windows and mega rooms to keep clean.

When it was time for Mom to clean it was pull up all the room rugs and take outside and let them air good and take the carpet beater to them and get the dust all out. We scrubbed the floors good and let them dry and then we put many layers of papers down to help insulate the floor for winter. With the clean windows fresh washed curtains walls and woodwork washed it was a good feeling to know the house was clean for winter.

That was days when often we had a huge pot of vegetable soup simmering on the stove. Mom always put up many jars of mixed vegetables from the garden along with tomatoes and juice and also some canned meat to prepare some tasty meals especially if she had time to make fresh baked bread to go with it. To us that was a meal in itself. I am sure soon I will be making a big pot of soup, but I will freeze portions to have as I want it and the fresh baked bread will come from the farmers market.

A fall recipe I found for potato soup that sounded good and as Wayne always said make sure you try it before putting it in the paper. I think you can't go wrong on potato soup.

Pare and dice up potatoes or use small red skin potatoes and wash and dice with skins on cook till tender.

In a skillet melt 2 tablespoon butter or bacon fryings add flour and stir till it forms little balls stirring all the time and browned. Add this to the potatoes along with milk and a bit of cream. The flour thickens the soup and if desired add some diced onion and diced bacon fried crisp. Salt and pepper to your taste.

Enjoy.

MARKET SPOTLIGHT

This weeks spot light The Shakes!

They have been apart of the Farmers Market for 2 years. They bring a variety of vegetables each week. Which include an assortment of peppers, green beans, cucumbers, egg plant, tomatos, squash and pumpkins. They locally grow their own produce for us to sample each week. They have lived in Warren for 8 years and before that they lived in Huntington.

We are so happy they moved her so we could have them be a part of the Farmers Market! They have 8 kids, 17 grandkids and 2 great grandkids. Come out and see them this week from 8-11 and purchase some of the delicious vegetables they offer.

Also this week you can come out for breaded tenderloins from the Lions Club. Jeff will be there with his assortment of produce. Or how about some cookies and other baked goods? Rember this is better quality than what you will find at the grocery store! So save your vegetable shopping for at the Farmer Market.

RECYCLING E-WASTE

An Indiana law prohibiting dumping televisions, computers, and other consumer electronics in landfills has been in effect for three years.

Did you just buy a new flat screen television, but need to get rid of your old tube TV? Maybe your computer has finally fizzled out, or a new tablet has replaced your old handheld device. Instead of throwing these old electronics out with your trash, the Indiana Department of Environmental Management (IDEM) encourages Hoosiers to participate in the state's e-waste recycling program.

It is illegal for households, public schools and small businesses to dispose of e-waste in a landfill, so IDEM has been working with citizens, county solid waste districts, and electronics retailers to make the disposal of e-waste as simple and affordable as possible. Proper disposal sites for each county can be found here: http://www.in.gov/idem/recycle/files/ewaste_collectors_list.pdf.

During the first three years of the program, Hoosier households, small businesses, and public schools have recycled more than 66 million pounds of electronics and the availability of e-waste recycling options has expanded. A detailed report documenting the program's progress and success can be found here: <http://www.idem.IN.gov/recycle/2428.htm>.

Electronics contain heavy metals, including lead, mercury, cadmium, and hexavalent chromium that can be harmful if released into the environment. Recycling electronics ensures these materials are safely managed and that valuable materials such as steel, glass, copper, gold, and aluminum are reclaimed for the manufacturing of new products. Reusing and recycling raw materials from e-waste conserves natural resources and avoids pollution.

Meredith Jones, Director of IDEM's E-Waste Program, says while many people are taking advantage of the program, even more citizen participation is needed.

"We need to remind Hoosiers that the law exists," she said. "Lack of awareness about the law and program remain one of our biggest challenges."

Indiana's Electronic Waste Law began to go into effect in 2009, after its passage through the General Assembly. Today, hundreds of businesses and solid waste districts across the state collect e-waste from Hoosiers.

Established in 1986, IDEM (www.idem.IN.gov) implements federal and state regulations regarding the environment. Through compliance assistance, incentive programs and educational outreach, the agency encourages and aids businesses and citizens in protecting Hoosiers and our environment.

CARNIVAL

Circle of Friends Carnival at Dillman Church September 4th from 6:30-8 p.m. All children (3 years old through 3rd grade in 2013-14) are invited to kick off the new year of Circle of Friends with a carnival.

At the carnival, the kids will enjoy popcorn, hot dogs, ice cream sundaes, a hay ride and several carnival type games such as ring toss, the fishing game, etc, with prizes to win. We have a new director, Kristie Small, who has some new and exciting changes to make this year to the Circle of Friends Wednesday night program.

So invite some friends and come one, come all to the amazing big-top, where Jesus is King!

ICE CREAM SOCIAL

The Dillman Church Ice Cream Social will be held on Saturday, September 7th from 4-7 p.m. The menu will include sloppy joes, sloppy dogs, veggie trays, chips, assorted homemade desserts and, of course, Dillman Church's famous homemade ice cream. Free will donations will be taken that will go toward the Building Fund.

4-H COUNCIL MEETING

The Grant County 4-H Council will hold its annual meeting on Monday, August 26, 2013 at 7:00 p.m. in the Community Building at the Grant County Fairgrounds.

MONDAY MORNING GOLF

Results of the Monday morning 10 week golf league at Dogwood Glen are as follows:

1st place winning team was Dick Hinton-Dick Lintner. Tied for 2nd place were the teams of Pat Shuttleworth-Dan Poulson and Bud Lee-Jim Slaughter.

We had 11 teams of 2. This was a good start for the first year. Thanks to all that played.

OPEN HOUSE

The award-winning Christmas City Chorus will hold an open house for interested female singers, Monday August 26 and September 9, 7-9:30 pm at the Church of the Brethren, 2302 S. Geneva, Marion (west of the bypass on 26th). The chorus invites female singers of all ages and voice ranges to experience an evening with the chorus in a regular rehearsal. Guests should come prepared to join in the singing and to enjoy a social time meeting the members of the chorus. Any singer looking for an outlet for their singing and dancing talent is encouraged to come and learn more about the chorus. Music training is helpful but not necessary as new members learn under the capable hands of the chorus music leaders.

Christmas City Chorus is one of over 600 choruses in Sweet Adelines Intl that teaches and performs the art of four-part a cappella harmony, barbershop style. The music includes special arrangements of today's ballads and upbeat songs, popular show tunes, jazz, gospel and classic standards. Music education is a top priority of the chorus and members enjoy many opportunities to improve as singers. Members come from 10 counties in east central Indiana including Wabash and Huntington. The chorus performs for various public, civic and private events around the state.

The chorus is a consistent award winning chorus in their 7 state region having won 1st, 2nd and third place medals in their divisions; Most Improved Chorus and the Audience Choice Award for Most Entertaining Chorus. For more information on the upcoming guest nights, joining the chorus or hiring the chorus for performance, call 765-677-SING or visit the website www.christmascitychorus.org.

GENEALOGY REPORT

SNIDER

Fayne Lee Snider, 58, of Warren, passed away peacefully at his home after an extended illness, on Thursday, August 15, 2013.

Born March 20, 1955, at Travis AFB, CA, he was the son of Donald P. and Elsie M. (nee Feltner) Snider, both deceased.

On April 30, 1993, he married Lisa K. Millington, (nee Souers), in Huntington. Living in the Huntington/Warren area most of his life, he attended Huntington North High School, was a veteran of the U. S. Marine Corp; serving from 1973 through 1976, and was a member of American Legion Post 7 in Huntington.

He worked at Kelly Box in Fort Wayne, Fischer Engineering in Huntington, and most recently was employed for over 25 years at Indiana Box in Huntington, formerly Northern Indiana Packaging.

Mr. Snider was a dedicated Indianapolis Colts fan (even in their down years), enjoyed various genres of music and old movies, woodworking, and renovating the home on what he called their "two-acre dream". But above all else, he loved his family. He once told his wife, "our kids are the icing on the cake" and he was immensely proud when the grandkids called him Papaw or Grandpa.

Survivors include his wife; children Ron (Irena) Millington II of Greenwood, Christina (Eric) Bruce of Huntington, and Erin Clouse and fiancé, R.J. Ramey, of Columbia City; grandchildren Jacob, Noah, and Rebekah Bruce of Huntington, and Makayla and Ezekiel Millington of Greenwood; sisters Cheryl (Bud) Bixler of Hindman, Kentucky, Donna Shafer of Fort Wayne, and Renay Rivers of Columbia City; brothers Christopher Snider of Fort Wayne, and Leslie P. Snider; and eight nieces and nephews.

At Mr. Snider's request, there will be no viewing but a memorial service will be held on Monday, August 19, 2013 from 2:00 PM to 5:00 PM with services following at 5:00 PM at McElhaney - Hart Funeral Home, 715 N. Jefferson St., Huntington, IN.

In lieu of flowers, preferred memorials are to the American Legion Post 7 in Huntington or Lilly Bear's Rescue in care of McElhaney-Hart Funeral Home, 715 N. Jefferson St., Huntington, IN 46750.

DEER HUNT WORKSHOP

Don't know a thing about deer or deer hunting but would like to learn?

The Department of Natural Resources has the solution — the Hunt, Fish, Eat outreach program that introduces new hunters to the basics for getting started.

"Hunt, Fish, Eat: White-tailed Deer" features four three-hour sessions beginning at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 5 at the Salamonie Lake Interpretive Center (3691 S. New Holland Road Andrews, IN 46702) and continuing on the following three Thursdays (Sept. 12, 19 and 26) at different local sites.

The program is free and open to new hunters age 18 and older. Participants are asked to attend all four sessions.

The hands-on, safe environment provides an opportunity to learn the skills necessary to begin hunting white-tailed deer in Indiana. The sessions focus on such topics as the history of white-tailed deer hunting in Indiana, rules and regulations, introduction to equipment, firearms and safety, deer sign, field set-up, tracking and field dressing your harvest, and handling and preparing your harvest for the table.

At each session, participants will be able to sample venison recipes and check out a variety of gear and resources available to hunters.

SENIOR FALL FEST

The annual Senior Fall Fest at Salamonie Lake will be Sept. 9-11, with a focus this year on Miami Indian culture in Indiana. All ages are welcome this year. There will be a program fee of $3 after the standard entrance fee of $5 per in-state vehicle or $7 per out-of-state vehicle.

Senior Fall Fest will kick off Monday at noon with the Senior Monday Luncheon at the interpretive center. Advance registration is required. Participants should bring a prepared dish to share, table service, drink and a $1 donation for the provided main dish. A presentation by the vice chief of the Miami Nation of Indiana will follow.

Senior Fall Fest will include more than a dozen programs, including presentations on Miami language and culture to hands-on craft sessions on beading, finger weaving and flint napping. Salamonie is taking registrations by phone for programs with limited seating. Some programs also will have a materials fee. For complete program information, visit dnr.IN.gov/uwis and click on "Miami Indians: The Tradition Continues."

A book reading at 7 p.m. on Wednesday by Helen Frost, author of the young adult novel "SALT: A Story of Friendship in a Time of War," will conclude the fest.

To register for the Senior Monday Luncheon or limited-seating programs, call (260) 468-2127.

Camping reservations can be made at Camp.IN.gov or 866-622-6746.

For more information on other UWIS programs, see dnr.IN.gov/uwis or Facebook.com/UpperWabash.

NEW OR USED?

(BPT) Conventional wisdom says that a new car will always cost you more than a used one. Why? There's a higher price tag and you have to face the depreciation that comes when you drive off the dealer's lot. Previously, if you were looking to save money, used vehicles were thought to be the best option. However, as supply may not be meeting demand, conventional wisdom may not hold true.

"Several years ago, we would have advised shoppers to go the used route in order to save money, but in the current economic state, used car prices have skyrocketed, which could make buying new just as economical," says Patrick Olsen, editor-in-chief of Cars.com.

Experts suggest that the sluggish economy pushed more people out of the new-car market and into the used-car market. This resulted in a strain on used inventories, jacking up prices. Additionally, the 2009 Cash for Clunkers program also removed more than a million used cars from the market.

"It's all about supply and demand," says Olsen. "Low supply means car shoppers can expect to pay a premium for a used car that would usually be affordable, since new cars are so much more plentiful."

While used-car prices have dropped a little in recent months, they remain high compared to historical standards. Aside from looking just at cost, experts like Olsen, say that buying new or used has many different benefits.

Some of the advantages to buying a new car:

- * Reduced maintenance expense, largely because of warranty coverage
- * Free roadside assistance
- * Often lower financing charges, which can be spread over a longer loan term
- * Peace of mind knowing that you are the first owner
- * That unique feeling of owning something brand-new

On the contrary, there is a definite case to be made for buying used. "If you aren't married to the idea of buying a new car, used vehicles also offer some great benefits," says Olsen. "The top perk remains affordability. Buying used can often let buyers drive a nicer, more luxurious car than they could afford if buying new."

Other benefits of buying used:

- * Someone else paid for the depreciation
- * Often there is leftover warranty coverage

Another trend that makes buying used an intriguing option is the proliferation of certified pre-owned programs. The idea started with luxury brands, but today, most manufacturers have these programs.

"Consumers can be assured that they are getting a great car when buying through a certified program," says Olsen. "Only newer, low-mileage cars are usually included, and they have to undergo a rigorous inspection by the manufacturer to be considered for the program."

Certified vehicles are normally covered by a new warranty that extends beyond the original factory warranty. There are also sometimes special low-financing options for certified vehicles.

What the future holds for the great new or used debate remains uncertain, but the improving economy has resulted in record-breaking new-car sales in 2013.

"This means that, in theory, the supply of used cars should go back to normal, and buying used should once again be cheaper than buying new," Olsen says.

TRUSTING THE WEAKEST LINK:

WHAT DATA BREACHES

MEAN TO YOU

(BPT) - You've seen it in the headlines. Hundreds of data breaches, often at large corporations, happen every year - and consumers suffer the consequences.

Data breaches have become a constant reality of a connected world. Although many people choose to ignore the problem, you can take steps to defend yourself.

What is a data breach?

According to the U.S. Department of Justice, a data breach "includes the loss of control, compromise, unauthorized disclosure, unauthorized acquisition, access for an unauthorized purpose or other unauthorized access, to data, whether physical or electronic."

In other words, a breach occurs when a corporation, organization or institution is intentionally hacked or robbed, or inadvertently exposes information through a clerical or technical error. Data breaches aren't always due to malicious attacks. Sometimes they're the result of a mistake, but the consequences are still grave.

When a data breach occurs, confidential information, such as your Social Security number, bank account details, credit card number, personal health information or even wireless phone and utilities accounts are released.

In 2011, there were 855 data breach incidents, according to "2012 Data Breach Investigations Report" from Verizon Enterprise. In the past, corporations like Sony and Citibank have had the misfortune of experiencing such a crime.

The real misfortune, however, is the victimization of the consumer.

Why should you care?

The odds are you'll be part of a breach sooner or later. The Verizon 2012 Data Breach Investigations Report cites 174 million compromised records in 2011.

Unfortunately, it's completely out of your hands. Let's say you do everything right on your end: shred documents, use secure websites, etc. You're still only as safe as your weakest link.

That weak link could be anywhere your personal information resides - at your doctor's office, employer, bank, favorite restaurant or even the place you got your hair cut last week. You may be doing a lot right, but what about everyone else?

The worst part is that victims of data breaches often become victims of identity fraud. According to a study done by Javelin Strategy and Research, "Data shows that consumers who received breach notifications in 2012 had a substantially higher risk of identity fraud - over 4 times higher - than those who didn't receive these notifications."

In addition, the Verizon 2012 Data Breach Investigations Report also shows that only eight percent of victims discover their own breaches. So 92 percent learn about it from a third party, but that can take weeks or months. The longer your information is out there undetected, the higher your risk for fraud.

If you do receive a letter, your information is out there for good. Even if you don't experience fraud immediately, you could later - several months or even years later. That's why it's important to take privacy seriously.

What can you do?

While companies continue to boost security in order to respond to this threat, here are a couple of ways you can strengthen your defense against data breaches.

* Do not provide your Social Security number unless it is absolutely necessary - simply ask if it's required.

* Never use your name, a child's or pet's name in your passwords.

* Create passwords with upper and lower case letters, non-sequential numbers and symbols. Change them at least quarterly.

* Do not use the same password for multiple accounts; this will minimize the damage in case your information is compromised.

* Review your bank statements monthly and your credit reports annually. Even if you haven't received a notification letter, you could already be a breach victim.

Above all, it's important to stay cautious. Data breaches might be an inevitable consequence of a connected, wireless culture, but that doesn't mean you should become complacent.

For more comprehensive protection from fraud, hire an identity theft protection service like LifeLock to monitor your personal information for misuse or exposure. For more information, visit LifeLock.com or call 1-800-LifeLock.

DO-IT-YOURSELF WEEKEND

WARRIOR SURVIVAL GUIDE

(BPT) - Whether you are woodworking at your workbench or staining a piece of furniture in the garage, Mark Clement, home improvement expert and co-host of the national radio show MyFixItUpLife, offers these tips to make the most out of your DIY weekend projects while also feeling comfortable enough to successfully finish them:

Focus on form and technique. When learning a new technique, go slowly, step by step, until you've mastered it. Allow your body to become accustomed to the various motions required. Moving efficiently is one of the best ways to avoid injury.

Create a comfortable workspace. Be conscious of how long you are standing in the same spot working on your project and how your back feels. To relieve pressure and soreness on feet, knees and back, use a durable mat like the Stanley Utility Mat that is engineered with an optimal balance of cushion and support. For more information about the Stanley Utility Mat, visit <http://stanleyutilitymat.com/> and to tune into MyFixItUpLife visit <http://myfixituplife.com/DIY/>.

Have a first aid kit. Even if you are being extremely cautious, accidents can happen and it's best to be prepared. Keep a first aid kit with all the essentials near you at all times and seek professional medical help if necessary.

to Wallace Riggers, George's son and Audra's father. Wallace was born on the farm in 1938.

Audra Riggers, the first female owner of the farm, received the property in 1999.

Riggers rents out the farm ground but cultivates a small orchard and berry patch herself.

"It's really been a labor of love to keep it," she says. "I feel very blessed to be there and be the steward of our family's legacy of six generations at the farm."

The Hoosier Homestead families were recognized by Lt. Gov. Sue Ellspermann and Indiana Department of Agriculture Director Gina Sheets at the State Fair.

State Rep. Dan Leonard, R-Huntington, extended his congratulations to the Riggers family.

"The Riggers family has continued their long agricultural heritage, and in so doing, they have kept alive Indiana's strong historical ties to farming," Leonard says. "Farming is much more than an occupation; it is truly a way of life for many Hoosiers. I am pleased to see this family honored for the hard work they have put in to maintaining their farm for 170 years."

The program began in 1976 to acknowledge the contributions these families have made to Indiana agriculture. More than 5,000 farms have been recognized since the program was established.
