CLOSING FOR TRANSITION

As we are going through a transition period, the Warren Public Library finds it necessary to close a few extra days during the month of July. We will be closed on Saturday, July 17 and Monday, July 19. Summer Reading prizes that were to be picked up on Saturday, July 17 may be picked up either Tuesday, July 20 or Saturday, July 24.

We hope this does not cause undue inconvenience, and thank our patrons for their understanding and patience.

RETIRING

Want a headline that isn't about politics? Well, here it is: "Phyllis and Harold Harness are retiring from the Bread of Life Food Pantry after 16 years of caring for the needy of the community". The success of this venture has been the result of the outstanding community support. This was proven time and again when area pantry shelves were bare, you responded every time to our call for help. Then, too, we were blessed with willing, faithful volunteers. We have learned this God-given service will continue as before. May our loving Father continue to touch your hearts as you support the Bread of Life Food Pantry.

KUDOS

I am writing to let the community know how great the Roadrunner Bus trips are. Last week my husband and I went to the Tin Caps game with the Roadrunners group. What a great experience! Every detail was taken care of, all we had to do was get on the bus and enjoy the trip. We have gone several times with the Roadrunners and recommend the trips to anyone, young or old. Thanks Sandy, Colleen and all those involved with this great ministry!

The grant, if approved, is expected to begin the revamping of the heating system at the Center. This is needed to reduce the extreme heating expenses.

The Annual Salamonie Summer Festival Volleyball Tournament took place on July 4th at Tower Park. Teams started arriving around 10:00 a.m. for the morning practice rounds. The Double Elimination Tournament started after lunch with eight teams in the Fun Division and five teams in a Competitive bracket. "Notorious D.I.G" won the Fun Division with "Ball Diggers" finishing second. "Weekend Warriors" (pictured above) defeated "Block Party" to win the Competitive Division.

Both Tournaments started around 1:30 and were over around 5:30 p.m. Shade trees, good music, cold water and a nice breeze kept the players going in the 90 degree heat. Thanks to everyone who helped with this year's tournament!

Silas Allen Pulse was born July 25, 1842 one half mile from Warren along the Salamonie River. His early years were spent farming with his father and attending school. When the Great Rebellion broke out, he volunteered as a musician. When the order to dispense with bands was issued, he left the service and returned home. Mr. Pulse worked as a salesman in the mercantile of Good and Brother, in Warren, but in 1863 he again entered military life, enlisting in Company A, Thirteenth Indiana Cavalry. Lieutenant Pulse was named to lead his men, in an operation, to retake a bridge. He placed himself at the head of the men, who, inspired by his fearlessness, sprang forward and succeeded in taking and holding the bridge. Mr. Pulse was discharged November 1865 with the rank of captain.

Back in Warren, Silas purchased the mercantile establishment of S.L. Good. He added more inventory and soon moved the wood building to the west and built the brick building we call the Pulse Block. Mr. Pulse had many other interests, including over eight hundred acres of valuable land. Six hundred acres was a single farm in Wells County. Upon this land, there were a number of oil wells, the royalties from which were highly compensated, which amounted at one time to about one thousand dollars a month. He also had a lot of livestock.

Writing about Mr. Pulse would be incomplete without mentioning his home. This home was located on the lot next to Markle Medical Center. The house was one of the most beautiful, accessible and complete residences in the county. The original building, a brick structure, was erected by his father, John Pulse in 1861. Silas remodeled, enlarged and supplied the house with all of the modern improvements which make living among men of wealth, in those days, a luxury indeed. The structure was surrounded by a natural grove of beautiful and graceful trees which presented a most luxurious and home-like appearance.

HANDLING DEPRESSION

by V Neil Wyrick
I am sometimes asked if I have ever been depressed.

Well, I've had some times in my life when what I was carrying around certainly didn't make me jump with joy.

Times, when though I had a loving earthly wife, wonderful children, a job that fulfilled me, great recreational pursuits and good health; I still needed to practice emotional math.

To count my blessings real good. And keep on counting them until I had fought through my depression, or a down day, a bad hair day, whatever you want to call it. Actually, I call it a gift from the devil's workshop.

I also try daily to apply what I was unconsciously learning in my youth – that each new challenge that produces a new skill gives me a sense of accomplishment and less opportunity for boredom.

Success of any kind does that and makes it hard for depression to settle in. All the things you can do to avoid boredom, do them. Boredom, the very thought is depressing. No worse than that...it is frightening.

So...go home today and pull out one or more of your baby pictures. Look at that innocent, wide-eyed face; the you in your beginning who was so excited about everything you saw and were experiencing. And then really consider, "Has the world become less interesting or have I become less interested?"

Send me in search of that which will save me from being a cynic. Don't let me take all the fun out of a magic show, or go to a circus and find I can no longer laugh when all those little people keep pouring out of that little car. Let me still be enthralled when the lion tamer puts his head in the lion's mouth.

Or filled with wonderment by the moon that keeps steadily moving across the sky. Give me back who I was before I left Middle School and picked up being blasé in High School.

Let me feel free to sing in the shower, even if the shower is from the clouds and I am walking down the street without a raincoat or umbrella. Let me find joy that once I found from just wiggling my toes in the mud. Let me..."

I remember when I was a little boy and I found out that trees weren't just for looking at, but also for climbing. For the rest of my boyhood, I spent more time up in the air than on the ground. And I was so excited. You just can't be depressed when you are being Tarzan swinging through the trees.

Then, while I was still very young, I learned that those strange marks on pieces of paper were letters, and that if I learned to interpret them I could do what Mom and Dad called reading. And when I read, I could be a cowboy or a king, or go to strange and wonderful places, and I filled my mind with imaginative thoughts and it was exciting. Who can feel bad, child or adult, when a good book is massaging their brain?

If I asked, I don't know what you would tell me still gets you excited.

But there is so much happening in this old world to grab your attention: art and music, baseball, an upcoming sports event, the list is endless.

But if your answer is nothing, that you find nothing that really excites you, then go looking, please...because if you don't, depression has already come looking for you.

And not in the same old places. You are overwhelmed by lethargy, are too busy or not inclined...then unrelieve. Talk to some friends about what they do for a hobby, learn a new game, if you don't have a garden there must be a park you can drive to and walk around in. The word sometimes is NEW. Something new or resurrect something old you gave up in the midst of giving up. The word is ACTION when you feel less like it so you won't continue to feel even less like ACTION.
