THE UPTOWN GARDENER

by Ruth Herring

Folks spring, I am sure, is on its way. I can see trees in full bud ready to open. I am sure we are all ready for that. I check about every day to see what might be coming up around the house, I have put some plant fertilizer and Epson salt around the planter and beds to give everything a boost.

There will be no vegetable garden for me this year except to have tomato, pepper plant and a few hills of green beans, in the flower bed, thanks to a friend who shared some bean seed with me. As you can see I weakened and have to get my hands in the dirt.

This time of year at the old homestead dad and I would be planting potatoes and tilling up the rest of the garden for later planting. How I loved to be following behind him and my chore was picking out any small rocks or corn stalks from last year and also collecting fish worms for a later fishing trip to the creek for a bit of R&R.

Soon it will be time for mushrooming hopefully we get enough rain and moisture for them to be a productive sport this year. How I loved that time of year when I would be eager to go bring up the cows and while they always had to go out into the creek and stand forever, I would look for those wonderful morsels.

I would never take a sack along to put them in. It seemed the sack would bring me bad luck and never find any. So many times I just made a pouch out of the skirt of my dress and got along just fine, but it was a challenge to wade out in the creek with a skirt full of mushrooms and trying to get the dumb animals to move out and head toward the barn. Yes in my day we wore dresses and hardly knew what blue jeans were besides there was no room in the pockets. You could make good use of those dresses with full skirts. When mom fixed the mushrooms she sliced them in half and soaked them in salt water to chase the bugs out and then fried them in pure home churned butter. That was some mighty fine eatin.

Happy Spring everybody.

GARDEN NOTES

The Warren Community Garden group members met Monday, March 18 at The Knight Bergman Civic Center. The garden will be located at the corner of Bennett Drive and 11th street with our estimated size of garden to be a plot 30 feet by 90 feet. There is going to be plenty of room for all the goodies we intend to plant!

Ben Herr has generously offered to till and ready the ground for planting as soon as the soil test is finished. A plot of about ¼ acre for sweet corn and potatoes will be planted east of Warren, giving the community plenty of room for smaller vegetables at the Warren Community garden site. Plans for the variety of vegetables being planted are being finalized, with an addition of a small herb garden and flowers to be included.

The group discussed ways to get information out to everyone regarding when planting, weeding, and harvest days would occur. It was agreed we will continue with articles in the Warren Weekly. Also, The Community Garden will have a facebook page coming soon to send out information and connect with interested community volunteers.

The Warren Community Garden is about "Neighbors helping Neighbors." Everyone is welcome to volunteer in whatever capacity. Part of making a successful Community is realizing the talents of many to achieve a common goal. If you are interested in helping or volunteering, our next meeting will be Monday, April 22 7:30 pm at The Knight Bergman Center. All are welcome!

HUNTER EDUCATION

Indiana Conservation Officers are encouraging hunters to be safe this spring when taking to the woods. Indiana Hunter Education is a good place to begin and is required in order to purchase a license for anyone born after December 31, 1986. A person unable to complete Hunter Education may purchase up to 3 Apprentice Licenses in his or her lifetime, which allows them to hunt with the assistance of a licensed hunter at least age 18. The DNR is offering free hunter education courses throughout the state. An online course is also available; however, there is a fee. A complete list of upcoming Hunter Education classes can be found online at www.passitonindiana.com. Online registration is recommended to ensure a seat in the class.

The 2013 spring turkey season opens April 24 and runs through May 12th. The youth spring turkey season is April 20-21. Hunters are allowed to take 1 male or bearded turkey during the regular spring season or during the youth season.

Indiana Conservation officers offer these safety TIPS for you to follow while turkey hunting:

- Whistle or shout to alert approaching hunters of your position.
- Never wave or stand up.
- Never sneak in on a turkey or use a gobble call near other hunters.
- Never crowd another hunter working a bird.
- Never shoot at sound or movement.
- Be extremely careful using turkey decoys.

· Do not wear red, white, or blue outer wear or exposed inner clothing.

· Don't assume you are the only hunter in the area.

· Be certain of a hunting partner's location.

· Know and identify your target and what is beyond.

· Always keep your gun pointed in a safe direction.

· Always keep your finger off the trigger until ready to shoot.

· Never use alcohol or drugs before or while hunting.

· Respect property rights and secure permission before hunting.

· Hunters should unload their guns when crossing fences, climbing into stands, jumping ditches or traversing steep ravines.

During this season, many people are also in the woods searching for wild mushrooms. Before partaking in this seasonal activity, obtain permission from the landowner and ask if anyone has permission to Turkey Hunt. Even if you are the only person allowed to be in the woods, never assume you are out there alone. A mistake in property boundaries could put you in the woods with another Hunter. If you are hunting on state property, be sure to check that property's regulations for permitted activities and times.

Whether you are turkey hunting, mushroom hunting or enjoying a spring walk in the woods, be on the lookout for suspicious activity. Things you may come across include baited areas, marijuana grows, and methamphetamine activity. Anyone with information regarding any suspicious activity or fish and wildlife violations are urged to contact Indiana Conservation Officer's Central Dispatch at 812-837-9536. Fish and wildlife violations can be reported by calling 800-TIP-IDNR or on the TIP website www.1800tipidnr.org. Callers can remain anonymous and are subject to a reward if information leads to a conviction.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK (APRIL 14-20)

By Susan Akers,
Executive Director

Indiana Library Federation I heard someone ask the other day, "Are libraries still relevant with the advent of the internet and e-books?" For those who haven't stopped by their libraries in a while, take some time during National Library Week (April 14-20) to visit the library and experience the vast array of services, programs and resources there.

With 42 million annual visits to our state's libraries, Hoosiers of all ages are able to enjoy traditional books, e-books, computer classes, DVDs and CDs. Visitors research, read, share, learn, attend quality programs and use information for lifelong learning and leisure pursuits.

A large number of visitors ask library staff to help them learn how to use their e-reading devices, learn how to operate computers, learn how to better develop resumes and to apply for jobs online. Untold thousands flock to the library to ask staff about all types of software or to receive assistance in completing e-government forms.

While the recession drove more people to visit their libraries, we need to recognize that libraries were already very busy places, attracting record numbers of visits. The library is a place that is open and welcoming to all regardless of one's socioeconomic position. It is the place where teens have discovered that the library is a cool place to go while at the same time scores of young parents engage in important childhood literacy programs.

Yes, the library is very relevant today, and it also serves as a "living room" for democracy. Libraries further the convictions of our forefathers that a society flourishes when people have access to information. With resources that serve business owners and entrepreneurs as well as the homeschooled and people with special needs, libraries are uniquely positioned

TIMBER ADVICE

Indiana Conservation Officers and the DNR Division of Forestry are providing useful tips to landowners that can assist in protecting their valuable timber resources.

Indiana hardwoods, such as black walnut, red and white oak, and other valuable species are sought by the timber industry. Landowners should follow some simple steps before signing a contract with a timber buyer.

"Some Indiana landowners are taken advantage of every year, and they lose money and resources because they are not aware of the value of timber or the steps needed to protect themselves," said Duane McCoy, timber licensing forester with the DNR Forestry.

To protect forestry resources, landowners should follow these steps:

Hire a consultant forester to represent you and mark and advertise your timber sale.

1. Always get several bids from different timber buyers.
2. Ask questions and get references from the timber buyer.
3. Mark the trees to be cut with a paint mark on the stem and at ground level.
4. Know and understand the fine details of the contract.
5. Never make an oral agreement.

6. Know how much you will be paid and the method of payment.

7. Be a good neighbor and work out any property line disputes prior to harvesting.

"Marketing the mature timber from a family property is generally something that will only occur once in a person's lifetime, and it must be done with knowledge that protects the interest of your investment," said Lt. Tony Stoll, DNR Law Enforcement District 9 commander.

The DNR offers a free information packet titled "callb4ucut" to Indiana citizens considering harvesting their timber. See www.callb4ucut.com for further information.

CUT YOUR LOSSES

by The FlyLady,
Marla Cilley

We all make mistakes! This is a fact of living. So why do we beat ourselves up when we have made a bad choice. I think it is because deep down inside we are doing what has been done to us all of our lives; punishing ourselves. This has got to stop.

Instead of admitting that we have made a bad choice we keep trying to make that decision work. Maybe we should take a lesson from business and cut our losses and move on. Instead we keep trying to fix things to make them better. Clutter is clutter no matter what form it takes.

You can't organize clutter; you can only get rid of it! I want your home to be filled with things that make you smile. Our lives are too short to continually deal with that pink elephant in the living room. One time a dear friend was moving from a home where she had lived twenty-seven years. It was hard for her to let go of things. Eventually she came up with a plan. If she had any doubt about whether something should be packed; she would set it in the main path to the truck. On the first day she would gingerly walk around the item. The next day she pushed it aside and if on the third day she kicked it; it when to the curb. This showed her that she really didn't love it as much as she had originally thought she had.

We can decorate that pink elephant but it is still a pink elephant. It is sucking the life right out of you. You spend your whole day doing your best to make it fit. God knows we don't want to admit that we made the mistake of bringing that pink elephant home in the first place; that we wasted money and worst of all our time. We just keep plodding along; hoping that the pink elephant will not get mad and become the bull in the china shop. The sad part is that it already has. Just being in your living room it is destroying the most important thing in your home and that is you!

Many years ago I had a diseased gallbladder. I was sick all the time. This gallbladder was toxic to me. Once it was removed I was able to get on with my life. Relationships can be like this too. We have all had people in our lives who suck the life right out of us. You may be with someone right now who is toxic to you. You may have a friend that uses you to make themselves feel superior. You may be struggling with an abuse situation that you hope and pray will get better. They don't get better. They get worse. This abuse can mean a lot of things: physical, emotional, sexual, drug, alcohol and financial.

It is time to cut your losses and strap on your wings to FLY; Finally Loving Yourself. For when you are FLYing, you realize when something is clutter in your life. As nurturers we really do want to help everyone but in the end, we can only help ourselves. This is not a selfish attitude. It is all about self-preservation. This type of clutter is going to destroy your spirit.

Accept that you made a mistake! Forgive yourself and cut your losses by decluttering. In business if you lose a nickel on everything you sell and you sell a million of them; you are losing a million nickels. Stop the blood-letting!

It is time to FLY by Decluttering! For more help getting rid of your clutter and CHAOS, check out her website and join her free mentoring group at www.FlyLady.net or read her book, Sink Reflections published by Random House.

HOW TO MANAGE MONEY

WHEN YOU'RE BETWEEN JOBS

(BPT) - Though the U.S. economy has been gradually improving, job changes - both involuntary and voluntary - remain a fact of American working life.

"It's also a fact that bills need to be paid whether you're employed or not," says J.J. Montanaro, a certified financial planner with USAA.

To help you cover expenses and protect your finances as you transition from one job to the next, Montanaro offers these tips.

1. Decide how to collect your final pay.
2. File for unemployment benefits. It may take two to three weeks to process your claim, so contact your state's unemployment office pronto.

3. Reduce your spending. 4. Strengthen your emergency fund.

5. Avoid cleaning your financial slate. While you may be tempted to use your severance or other assets to pay off your car, credit cards or other debt, you may be better off making only the required or minimal payments.

6. Review your health insurance options. At most companies, federal law allows you to keep your employer-provided health insurance for up to 18 months.

7. Protect your retirement. If you have a 401(k) or other employer retirement plan, avoid the temptation to cash it out when you leave.

STORY TIME

Mr. Rick Forrester from the Warren Public Library recently visited the Small World Preschool. Mr. Forrester read the story The Yarn Story. The book was about the sharing and how sharing with others makes us happy. The 3-4 year old class has listed to several stories read by Mr. Forrester throughout the school year. We appreciate the support he has given to the preschool.

DR SEUSS & PAJAMAS

Students at the Small World Preschool participated in the Dr Seuss Reading Program during the month of March. A pajama/movie day kicked off the program. Our goal was to have the children be read to for five minutes each day. At the end of the month, the children were rewarded with a certificate and a coupon for a free Flash Pizza from East of Chicago! Thanks to everyone for your enthusiastic support!
