KUDOS, KICKS & KARATS

THE NEW SCHOOL PRAYER

Now I sit me down in school
 Where praying is against the rule.
 For this great nation under God
 Finds mention of Him very odd.
 If Scripture now the class recites,
 It violates the Bill of Rights.
 And anytime my head I bow
 Becomes a federal matter now.
 Our hair can be purple or orange or green,
 That's no offense, it's the freedom scene.
 The law is specific, the law is precise,
 Prayers spoken aloud are a serious vice.
 For praying in a public hall
 Might offend someone with no faith at all.
 In silence alone we must meditate,
 God's name is prohibited by the State.
 We're allowed to cuss & dress like freaks,
 And pierce our noses, tongues & cheeks.
 They've outlawed guns; but FIRST the Bible.
 To quote the Good Book makes me liable.
 We can elect a pregnant Senior Queen,
 And the unwed daddy, our Senior King.
 It's "inappropriate" to teach right from wrong,
 We're taught that such "judgments" do not belong.
 We can get our condoms, & birth controls,
 Study witchcraft, vampires & totem poles.
 But the Ten Commandments are not allowed,
 No Word of God must reach this crowd.
 It's scary here I must confess,
 When chaos reigns the school's a mess.
 So, Lord, this silent plea I make:
 Should I be shot,
 My soul please take.

HALLOWEEN SURVIVES ALL REFORM ATTEMPTS

Unlike other holidays with pagan roots, many Halloween customs have survived millennia virtually unchanged. The one change hoped for by the ancient Christian church never really took hold.

According to Julia Vitullo-Martin, writing in The Wall Street Journal, the Celts who lived in northern Europe around 6 B.C. are largely responsible for many recognizable Halloween customs. The period of Oct. 31 to Nov. 2 was Samhain, a time for appeasing the forces of darkness. Dressing in costumes was the way the Celtic druids fooled malevolent spirits into thinking that the humans were also creatures of the dark underworld. The Celts lit bonfires for purification. Even bobbing for apples has Celtic roots in a ritual for predicting marriage.

By 601, Christianity was taking hold in northern Europe and missionaries were urged not to eliminate pagan rituals, but to incorporate them into Christian holidays.

Holidays such as Christmas replaced pagan days, and most pagan practices, such as eviscerating a goose on Dec. 25, also disappeared. But Halloween remained starkly similar to pagan rituals designed to recognize and placate evil.

In the ninth century, the Roman Catholic Church attempted to reform the practices of Oct. 31 by making Nov. 1 All Hallows' (Holy Person or Saint) Day, an occasion to honor the saintly Christians who died in the faith.

The name stuck well enough and the day before All Hallows' Day became Halloween (the eve of Hallows' Day), but the practices of the day stuck around too. By the 16th century, the reformer Martin Luther objected to any practice of Halloween because it was too pagan.

Despite saints, popes, and reformers, Halloween has hung on in popular practice, today taking on more of a whimsical mood, but surviving nonetheless.

BAYVIEW READING

The Bayview Reading Club met at the Hostess House on September 19th for their Fall Party. Twelve members were present.

Lunch was served in the Blue Room followed by the program, given by Phyllis Kepler on the history of the Hostess House.

The Hostess House was built by Samuel L. Plato, one of the first black architects at that time, for J. Wood Wilson, a banker, as a wedding present for his young wife Lillian Pompell Wilson, known as Peggy.

During the year it was under construction, the couple traveled abroad, purchasing many things for the house. The French paper for the entrance hall and the grand staircase was purchased in Paris. A lovely large vase was purchased for the specially designed niche in the library, now known as the Blue Room.

In 1916 Wilson had passed away and Peggy went to New York with instructions to the maintenance people to keep the house in perfect order until she returned. When she returned in 1928, she was not alone. Dr. John Colon Vaughn operated on Peggy for acute appendicitis and a short time later they were married.

Life continued much as it had in the past with the entertaining of Peggy's guests. After the market crash of 1929, Peggy moved back to New York, but Dr. Vaughn remained in Marion where he opened an office and soon built up a good surgical practice. He died in 1940.

The house stood empty for many years. In May 1950 a group of local women purchased the house and began restoration. The Hostess House opened to the public in September 1950.

ADOPTION FAIR

In Indiana, we know there are families who want to provide a loving adoptive home to children who wait. The reality is, more than 1,000 "special needs" children are in foster homes, dreaming of permanent families. There is no better time than November, National Adoption Month, to learn more about "special needs" adoption. Couples and single adults can attend a statewide adoption fair from 9 am. to 1 p.m., on Saturday, November 11, at the Indianapolis Marriott Atrium, 7202 E. 21st St. (corner of 21st and Shadeland), in Indianapolis.

The children who wait are considered "special needs" because they are older many of them are teens. Some children have been abused; neglected and abandoned. Some are waiting for a family that will welcome their brother and sisters, as well as themselves. Some have disabilities. All are looking for a place to call home!!!

INTERNET AND CORRESPONDENCE CLASSES

Because of the recent focus on high gas prices, Hoosiers interested in furthering their education should know that, no matter where they live, they can now take college classes without driving several miles to a college campus. Taking classes through videotape, the Internet, satellite/cable television, CD-ROM and correspondence/independent study can be more convenient than commuting to a college campus-saving students time, wear and tear on their cars and money at the gas pump.

The Indiana College Network (ICN), a partnership of Indiana's colleges and universities, has just printed its distance education class catalog for spring and summer 2001. Over 1,300 courses will be offered this spring, including 480 Internet courses and more than 600 correspondence/independent study classes which can be completed at home. Students can obtain assistance with all types of distance education classes at adult learning centers throughout the state.

The classes are equivalent to on-campus courses at participating institutions-Ball State University, Indiana State University, Indiana University, Ivy Tech State College, Purdue University, University of Southern Indiana, Vincennes University and the Independent Colleges of Indiana. Undergraduate and graduate degree programs are available through distance education in a variety of fields, including education, information technology, business administration, health services, engineering, computer science, biblical studies, communications and general studies.

To obtain a free copy of the new class catalog and for distance education degree and certificate program information, contact the JCN Student Services Center. This office also provides assistance in locating adult learning centers, as well as information about financial aid and career development. The ICN Student Services Center can be reached at 1.800.426.8899 and info@icn.org; information is available online at www.icn.org.

The ICN Student Services Center is a service of the Indiana Higher Education Telecommunication System's (IHETS) Indiana Partnership for Statewide Education (IPSE), whose mission is to ensure that lifelong learning opportunities are available via distance education to Indiana residents no matter where they may live or work.

To schedule an appointment for a flight physical with Dr. Greenman, call The Caylor-Nickel Clinic at (219) 824-3500 extension 7200. The Caylor-Nickel Clinic is located in the heart of Bluffton on State Road 1.

LAZZARO RE-CERTIFIED

Debra Lazzaro, M.D., of The Caylor-Nickel Clinic, was recently re-certified by the American Board of Family Practice. Board Certification ensures that a physician possesses a fund of knowledge and competence in the care of patients which satisfied the American Board. Dr. Lazzaro had to pass required tests in order to be re-certified.

Dr. Lazzaro has been a member of the Wells County community since 1993. She is a graduate of Miami University in Oxford, OH, and the Medical College of Ohio. She completed a family practice internship and residency at Saint Elizabeth Medical Center in Dayton, OH. She was originally certified by the American Board of Family Practice in 1988 and re-certified in 1994.

REUSED PACKAGING

One of the greatest challenges facing the Postal Service is the control of hazardous materials (HAZMAT), both declared and undeclared, in the mailstream. In order to protect the health and safety of our employees and the general public, the Postal Service restricts the type and quantity of HAZMAT that is permitted and places specific packaging, marking, labeling, and documentation requirements on shipments. Many of these potentially hazardous materials regulated in the mailstream are common household items, including cosmetics, cleaning supplies, alcoholic beverages, and aerosols. Postal Service employees are instructed to prevent packages containing HAZMAT from entering the mailstream unless these packages meet Postal Service requirements for mailing. If a package that does not meet postal requirements is discovered in the mailstream after acceptance, employees are instructed to isolate and remove the package from the mailstream and return it to the mailer.

Many items mailed in reused boxes are returned to the mailer because of outside package labels and markings that indicate HAZMAT. When the actual contents are identified it is usually found that the contents were mailable and no disruption or inconvenience would have occurred if these materials were properly packaged.

Many of these returned items were packaged in boxes that were obtained at grocery, hardware, and liquor stores and formerly contained everyday household items. Because of safety concerns, compliance with all federal and state laws governing the transport of HAZMAT, and privacy statutes, the Postal Service must assume that all markings and labels on a package identify the actual contents. Packages of this nature should be isolated and removed from the mailstream and customer notification and disposition of the parcel should be determined. The package may be forwarded on surface transportation or returned to the mailer.

It is acceptable to reuse boxes for mail shipments if all former package markings and labels have been removed or completely obliterated by the mailer. Merely crossing out a label or marking or writing the current contents on a box is insufficient to allow mailing. If any evidence of former HAZMAT contents is visible, the parcel cannot be accepted. The former markings and labels must be marked out even if the parcel will be wrapped in paper for mailing because if the wrapping becomes damaged during shipment, these markings will cause the package to be returned. The Postal Service accepts reused boxes in the mail-stream when these guidelines are followed. Questions regarding the mailability of reused boxes should be directed to your local post office or rates and classification service center (RCSC).

SUNDAY VISITORS

Although Sunday worship services are always wonderful at the United Methodist Memorial Home, this Sunday's were especially meaningful. One of our Chaplains, Rev. John Wallace, arranged a program of thanks and appreciation, honoring those in the community who give so liberally of self in service to others. We were blessed to have the following join us in worship: Rod Jackson and wife (sheriff), Ron Boxell (deputy sheriff), Steve Donnelly (town marshal), Tim Ford and wife (fire chief), Larry Poulson and wife (assistant fire chief), Scott Canady and wife (fire department captain), Dave Mosier, Roger Buckner and Pat Smith (EMS), Marilyn Morrison (town clerk), Jackie Huffman and Ron Neff (town board) and Oatess Archey (Grant Co. sheriff).

Jack Brady, Grant County Coroner, introduced our guest speaker, Oatess Archey. We were favored with special music by Warren Hall, accompanied by Kell Wygant.

Our thanks to all who had a part in making this such a special worship service and our heartfelt appreciation as they continue to serve us.
